Exciting Trip of Breakwater

Coos Bay Liner Badly Damaged by Mammoth Wave.

Woman Passenger Saved by Sailors

Messboy Dies at Marshfield as Result of Injuries Sustained When Waves Swept Over Craft—Three Remain at Hospital.

The steamer Breakwater, Captain Macginn, returned from Coos Bay shortly before noon today, after a most disastrous voyage. Leaving Coos Bay, a mammoth wave broke in the port bow and nearly drowned several members of the crew and a few steerage passengers in the forecastle.

Annatasio Mallavia, messboy, is dead at Marshfield as a result of the terrific drenching and sailors J. A. and J. B. declare he died of heroin because the steamer was hit Saturday morning, as she went over the bar, and returned as quickly as possible in order to get medical attention for the injured men. The steamer was also broken over the bow. They were swept into the alleyway amidships and there picked up with great difficulty by other members of the crew.

This was not the last of the trouble, however. Saturday evening when the passengers re-embarked at Marshfield, Miss Murphy missed her footing and slipped into the bay. She was sinking for the last time when Gus Schultz, a sailor, leaped into the water after her. He, too, was about to give up when G. Haggdon, another sailor, leaped from the vessel and assisted her to shore, where they were soon hauled out. Those who witnessed the work of the sailors declare it is a deed of heroism because the current was swift and the night was dark.

Fine weather was enjoyed up the coast, but dense fogs were encountered last night on the Columbia. The steamer missed her course once and stuck in the mud until a pull by the stern wheel Astoria liner Hansalia.

Valuable Home Recipe

Will Break Up a Cold in 24 Hours or Cure any Cough that is Curable. Mix one-half ounce of Concentrated Oil of Pine with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whiskey. Shake thoroughly each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours. The renowned throat and lung specialist who established camps for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine, and whose reputation as a cure for contracted international attention, declares that the above formula is one of the very best remedies obtainable for an acute cold and that it will strengthen the lungs, relieve coughs and heal the bronchial tubes. Also, that it will cure any case of lung trouble not too far advanced. The ingredients are procurable of any good prescription drugist and easily mixed at home and should take the place as one of the most valuable remedies in the family medicine chest. Inquiry at one of the leading drugists elicited the information that Concentrated Oil of Pine is put up for dispensing only in half-ounce vials sealed in the screw top caps intended to protect it from heat and light. This is sold in bulk and the patent medicine put up and labeled "Oil of Pine" are to be avoided owing to their impurities.

Francis Heney—"Good morning, Mr. Senator, I'm glad to see you well." Senator Fulton—"Why, Brother Heney, it's a joy to see you here." Heney—"Dear senator, I hope you'll have a million-dollar year." Fulton—"I hope your life, dear Heney, will be loaded down with cheer." Heney—"Suppose you've read that Williamson a minor bout has won?" Fulton—"Oh, yes, but still you've got him, dearest Heney, on the run." Heney—"And that our old chum Futer is as free as bird in air?" Fulton—"Glad of it, Mr. Heney; yes, I am, upon the score." Heney—"And that McKintley's home-ward bound to get his just deserts?" Fulton—"Yes, and his clever capture both our foesmen greatly hurts." Heney—"Now, senator, we two must stand together as one man." Fulton—"You bet your life, old pardner! Come and see me when you can." (These inseparable companions always have their linen cleaned by us.)

Wilson, second engineer on the lost steamer Annie Comings, was made happy this morning when he was notified to call at the office of Local Inspectors Edwards and Fuller to get his license. Wilson's framed document went down with the steamer when she collided with the French bark Europe off St. Johns but it drifted down stream and was picked up by a boy near Reader's landing, six miles below the mouth of the Willamette. W. A. Hodge, Cornell, Esq., who called with the steamer's license, lost all his personal effects in the wreck. The regular weekly concert at the Seaman's Institute, Front and Flinders streets, will be given tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at 8 o'clock under the direction of Miss Eva Wells.

Along the Waterfront

The steamer Costa Rica sailed yesterday afternoon for San Francisco. The sailing date of the steamer Rose City from San Francisco for Portland has been postponed. She was to leave on the 11th of this month. The new date has not been named. The steamer Geo. W. Elder sighted a loaded three-masted bark off the mouth of the Columbia river yesterday afternoon, but its name could not be made out. The Elder reached Martin's dock at 10 o'clock this morning from San Pedro and way ports. She was detained by fog coming in the river. Twelve cargoes of lumber were shipped from Astoria mills last month, aggregating 131,028 feet. Captain Speier, harbormaster, has prepared plans for six moving buoys to be placed in the river where vessels

A Word on Banks

Banks are not always the hard-hearted propositions that some people would make you believe they are. Savings banks, for example, are the repositories of enough romance to make a corner in "human interest." Nearly all the money that trickles into these bulwarks of the people's savings has reached life in some picturesque way, for it represents some effort, denial, ambition or "touch." Human activity never made a better effort for individual independence than to start and maintain a savings account. Experience has demonstrated that it means more than the one who creates it ever dreamed of. It means much to the one who is making little. If he be wise its growth stimulates him, and as it grows his interest in two ways deepens, as the principal increases. Is there anything in this world quite so refreshingly self-satisfying as conscious independence? What makes it? A corpulent savings account. The savings bank is the vehicle for keeping and saving the results of the multiplication of your efforts, and the institution deserves credit for fulfilling a sacred trust. "THE GERMAN-AMERICAN" IS THE BANK FOR YOUR SAVINGS.
