

DIG IRRIGATION PLAN OUTLINED

Congress Will Be Asked to Build a Dam at Junction of Snake and Columbia.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Pendleton, Jan. 10.—What is thought to be the greatest irrigation and power scheme in the inland empire has just been started at the little town of Two Rivers on Snake river, where petitions have just been signed asking congress to build a dam across Snake river at Five Mile rapids, 12 miles above the junction of the Snake and Columbia rivers, for the conservation of water for power and irrigation purposes. The dam would form a reservoir which would cover at least 50,000 acres of land in Walla Walla, Franklin and Benton counties, Washington and Umatilla counties in Oregon if completed, and every effort of the commercial bodies of the inland empire will be brought to bear to secure government action. With the power to be generated at the government dam, if undertaken, all the cities of the inland empire could be lighted and electric lines could be operated for 100 miles in every direction. It is looked upon as a feasible plan, and engineers will be brought to the dam to look over the features of it when the matter is presented to congress.

MODERN CONVENIENCES FOR JOSEPHINE POOR

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Grants Pass, Or., Jan. 10.—The "county house," as it is called, or home for the indigent of Josephine, has been completed, and all indigent of the county have been notified by the county court to take up quarters at the place provided for them. The county house is located on a hillside two miles from the city, the grounds being grown to laurel, oak and other native trees. The building contains 20 rooms, with many modern conveniences, such as bathrooms, ward-rooms, and other accessories. The building is electric lighted and steam heated. A portion of it will be used for a county hospital, where the sick and injured will be cared for. A supervisor has been appointed by the county court and will have entire charge of the farm and home.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) The Dalles, Or., Jan. 10.—The churches of this city are making a special effort to start a religious revival, and to that end services are in progress at several of the local houses of worship. At the Christian church Rev. and Mrs. S. W. Jackson are holding evangelistic meetings which have been largely attended and are meeting with comparative success. The Bethel mission workers hold services every evening, and the First M. E. church is to conduct meetings under the supervision of the pastor, Rev. L. E. Kufus, assisted by Rev. F. W. Cooper, a preacher of ability.

Open Press Congress.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Buenos Ayres, Jan. 10.—The Press congress has opened war on the law of residence, and also its fight for newspaper Sunday rest. Also agreed to have an international congress in 1910. A great fire in a great cork factory here has destroyed property to the value of $200,000. One hundred foreign artists are competing in the competition for designing a monument to commemorate the revolution for our independence. A petition has been presented to the president asking for enforcement of the naturalization of foreign laborers.

DID C. A. SIMONS SHOOT TO KILL?

Scandinavians at Ashland Are Fighting on Case of Slain Countryman. (Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Medford, Or., Jan. 10.—There promises to be a long jury at Jacksonville in the case of C. A. Simons, charged with manslaughter for the killing of Albert Engvall. At a late hour the jury has not reported. Simons, who is chief of police of Ashland, shot and killed Engvall, a tramp, the night of November 27 while the latter was running away from him. Engvall had committed no crime, and according to the evidence submitted had been standing at a fire outside the limits of Ashland. When approached by Simons and ordered, with his companions, to line up, he fled. Simons shot three times to hit the fugitive, and claims that one of the bullets struck a rock and was deflected, causing Engvall's death. Scandinavians took up the prosecution, engaged Robert G. Smith as special prosecutor, exhumed the remains and introduced sections of the skeleton with expert witnesses to prove the shot was intentional. Smith closed in one of the most eloquent pleas ever heard in Jacksonville.

CAREY F. MARTIN'S CASE DISMISSED

Court Holds Defendant Not a Perjuror in Preparing Luper Affidavit. (Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., Jan. 10.—The case of the state vs. Carey F. Martin ended in a strange jumble of argument between counsel and bench, until District Attorney McNary gave it up and asked that the indictment be dismissed. The court held that Martin had not committed perjury in preparing the affidavit his client, T. J. Luper, swore to as being the facts and the truth as he verily believed. It was held that this was not taking an oath in the sense of the term employed in a case of perjury, where it must be known that defendant knew the affidavit to be false, and with criminal intent, administered the oath or procured it to be made. In ruling on the case Judge Burnett held that because the form of verification was to the effect that he believed the contents of the complaint to be true, the state could not prove that he knew it was false. The substance of the ruling was that ordinary verifications in pleadings are not indictable if untrue. The district attorney said he would reserve the right to bring an indictment in another form, but from expressions at the trial it is not believed he will do so. The matter as it stands is a victory for Martin.

JOSEPHINE SESSION OF CIRCUIT COURT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Grants Pass, Or., Jan. 10.—Judge Hanna has opened the January term of Josephine county circuit court. Aside from two larceny cases and one case of assault with a dangerous weapon the docket is made up of civil suits and cases in equity; divorce cases also come in for a fair share of attention, as usual, there being some nine or ten couples who desire the matrimonial knot untied. This is the first term of court held since last July, the bank holidays declared by the governor preventing the holding of the fall term. Judge Hanna expects to clear the docket by the close of next week, as none of the cases are long.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 10.—An army of several hundred unemployed men marched through the city to the mayor's office today and demanded that the municipal lodging-house be opened. Art and Bad Boys.

We have not yet thoroughly informed ourselves as to the effect of surrounding on character. In a large way we talk of environment and are all pretty well agreed that it is more important than heredity. We are beginning to understand, too, that sanitary and hygienic homes are a formidable foe to reckless living and dissipation. All of these ideas are in the air and are beginning to give promise of maturity at some distant time. A step further is taken by the directors who have directed the placing in the waiting-room of the juvenile court, in Chicago, a mural decoration and frieze which shall speak to the waiting bad boys who are summoned thither. Suppose any one of us had to decide what should be the character of the designs to be thus embodied. Should we select justice, scales and weights? Should we think of some terrifying allegorical figure with flaming sword, a menace to evil-doers? Should we select a black-visaged judge, dispensing righteousness and justice?

A happier conception is that of the artist who has been chosen for the task. This work is still under way, but enough can be seen to determine the character of the panels which are to form a decorative frieze around the waiting-room. He has chosen to depict healthy and happy boyish scenes. The first panel shows boys playing baseball in a field with other healthy youngsters under a tree. The second panel shows a regiment marching through a village street with the crowd cheering them. The significance is hereby made plain to the waits upon soldierly obedience, or perhaps it merely means to rouse the patriotism that is in every boy. A third panel shows a summer evening on the lake front at Chicago where the waters and the setting speak familiarly and may be supposed to awaken a sense of the beauty that lies all around the ordinary aspects of our daily life. The color scheme of the whole frieze glazes from brilliant blue to the glow of the ball field to the evening glow on the waters, and it is said to be restful and beautiful. It is the moral significance of the whole conception that appeals most strongly to all of us who are interested in the development of boys.

A wholesome, happy, cheerful state of mind should be aroused by such a presentation, and the boy who finds the wayward child who comes to the juvenile court is most easily approached and most tractable. There are many subtleties in adapting of public and private decoration to the uses to which the structure is to be put. And it promises something for a distinctly American art when such thoughts are expressed in purely American symbolism.

The Disappointed Duchess.

THE duchess of Marlborough, born Consuelo Vanderbilt, has not realized the hopes of her early girlhood, says The Delineator for January. She has recently made her first visit back to this country since her separation from the duke. London society is very sympathetic toward the young duchess, who is not only a general favorite, but a personal friend of the queen as well. Life has not dealt as well with her as it promised. Ten years ago she was full of enjoyment of everything; now she is saddened and not strong, and she seeks a retirement that her deafness almost enforces. By arrangement with her husband she has her two sons for half the year, and she has many interests: her embroideries, her books and her spaniels; but it is all very different from what seemed before her. Rumor has it that she was greatly disappointed at her husband's failure to achieve distinction in politics, and that she hated to see the untitled husband of Mary Leiter of Chicago go ahead to honor after her honor and own duke achieved nothing. However, though much has gone against her, she is still greatly admired in London society, and when she enters a drawing-room wearing her famous pearls that once belonged to Catherine of Russia, her ill-ars to overflow, adjust the rubbers and covers and let boll 15 minutes. Sponge Cake Without Eggs.—When eggs are so high it is sometimes a good thing to be able to do without them occasionally. Take one cupful of sugar, one of milk, two of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat all together and bake in a moderate oven.

Edmonton, Alta., Jan. 10.—The legislature of Alberta assembled for its third session today and was opened with the customary formalities. The session is expected to be a busy and important one.
