Western Abstract & Loan Co., room 12, 268 Stark, opp. C. of C. bldg. WEATHER REPORT

The depression noted over British Co-jumbla last evening continued its rapid easterly movement, and this morning is approaching Manitoba. Moderate to heavy rains over western. Washington and northwestern Oregon, and light snow east of the Cascades have attended this eastward movement. The platean snow east of the Cascades have attended this eastward movement. The plateau high area is decreasing in energy, but is still sufficiently energetic to exercise the controlling influence over the weather of the entire southwestern portion of the country, clear skies being reported excepting along the California coast. The depression noted over the west gulf coast yesterday morning has developed into a storm area of decided character, which, with center about Arkansas, overspreads the entire southeastern portion of the country. Moderate to heavy rains over the lower Mississippi valley and south Atlantic states have attended this development. The temperatures along the entire Atlantic coast have risen decidedly since yesterday morning.

The indications are for occasional rain tonight and Sunday west of the Cascade range and for fair weather east of the range.
