

DAIRYMEN ORGANIZE

Dairy Development Association Puts Movement on Foot to Promote All Features of Dairy Industry in Oregon.

To promote the dairy industry in Oregon and southwestern Washington; to make the quality of dairy products of the district the best of their kind, commanding the readiest market and highest prices in all markets; to aid the state dairy commissioners in enforcing the laws of the state governing dairy products, are the stated objects of the Dairy Development Association organized at the Calumet hotel last night.

N. M. Carlson of the Westharter creamery was elected president; K. C. Ziegler of Independence, vice-president; W. C. Day of the Washington creamery was chosen secretary and treasurer, and N. C. Nail of Vancouver and P. Knecht of this city, with the officers named, comprise the board of managers.

The organization is considered one of the most important steps ever taken for the good of the dairy industry in this state. The district affected is entirely to Portland and the objects of the organization have the approval of nearly every reliable dairyman and producer in the valley.

There are 120 creameries in the district, I believe, said Secretary Day this morning, and we do not propose to go ahead with 50 of them or even 100, but we shall have every one interested within six months. Another meeting and banquet will be held February 1st, when nearly every remaining creamery is expected to join us.

We are endeavoring to raise the standard of dairy products in this state so that the Oregon butter and Oregon cream will be known as far as Oregon apples. We can only do this by encouraging dairymen who are anxious to breed better stock and take more pains with their product. As long as some creameries will take inferior cream this will never come about.

Will Help Enforce Laws. "Our organization is almost unanimously welcomed among the dairymen and when we do not succeed we will be able to reject inferior cream and the producer will not be able to dispose of it. We will aid the dairy commissioner to enforce the sanitary laws. We expect to raise a large sum of money with which we will employ inspectors among the dairymen and their milk must be accepted by the inspector before it will be accepted by the buyer. In the same way we will employ inspectors to instruct the dairymen in the interests of better dairy products."

The plan proposed by the new organization is one that has been in force in many of the largest dairy states of the Union, and is considered absolutely necessary if the dairy industry in Oregon is to advance to its rightful place.

Secretary Day says the organization will have no immediate effect on prices to the consumer, but may ultimately, though the consumer will be assured that he is getting a superior product. The organization is not a combination in restraint of trade in any respect.

STRICTLY AMATEURS WILL BOX TOMORROW

Every man who goes into the ring is an amateur, and the matches are being conducted by an incorporated athletic club, of which Tommy Tracey is physical director. The matches promise to be exciting and it is expected that a large crowd will be in attendance, as amateurs always prove a drawing card in Portland.

TO TAKE DOWN CLOCKS TO KEEP FROM LOSING TIME

Managers of several large offices in Portland are thinking seriously of taking down the big clocks which have hung in prominent places on the walls for years, owing to the fact that so many clerks waste considerable time gazing at the dial to see just what time it is. The officials of these companies believe that the forces will work better and more contentedly when the clocks are gone and they won't know what time it is until the whistles blow for noon or quitting in the evening. Of course it is conceded that many of the men carry watches, but at the same time the managers believe that if the clocks are eliminated the clerks will soon get out of the habit of wondering how much longer they have to work. "It is all a habit," one manager says, "this business of looking at the clock. I know. I used to have a clock in my room. Now, I have taken it away. I used to look at it, perhaps a dozen times during the morning. I lost just that much time. Now I find that I get along much better without it. And I am sure our clerks could do the same. It is all a habit, I say."

$30,000 TRUST FUNDS DIVIDED

Judge Wolverton Issues Order Liquidating Numerous Title Guarantee Petitions.

Trust funds aggregating $30,000 held by the Title Guarantee & Trust company, were distributed by Judge Wolverton in the United States district court this morning. Petitions of others court this morning. The desire of the receiver as well as W. M. Ladd to settle all of these accounts as soon as possible.

It was stated before the court that E. C. Mears, the present receiver of the suspended bank, was at work on his report and that it would probably be completed by the first of next week. When Mr. Ladd takes over the affairs of the institution he will have a clearer and better view of the bank, with the approval of the court.

Soon after Mr. Mears makes his report covering his connection with the bank's business since he was appointed to replace George C. Hill, Judge Wolverton will appoint the other receiver who is to conduct the affairs in the future as they are being settled.

MAN CONSCIOUS OF IMMORTALITY

Cannot Divorce Himself From Full Realization of Hereafter.

Fred Butler will remain over and sing at the evangelistic services at the First Presbyterian church tonight and tomorrow night. When the elders tried to get him for all the services this week, the Plymouth Congregational church of Seattle thought it could not spare him from the Thursday evening prayer meeting, but late yesterday word came that the Portland people might hear him two nights more. Hundreds are availing themselves of the opportunity and last night the big church was crowded when he sang "The Holy City."

Dr. W. H. Foulkes spoke on "The Unanswerable Question," and said in part: "How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? In one of the four unanswerable questions of the Bible, it is, as it were, the last word after the New Testament gospel has been expounded and no answer can be found for it. The master artist is most competent to say what his masterpiece is and God has said it is man. Some would make God's great concern the ruling of indefinite words by cosmic law and put human life and its interests beneath his notice. They say it with a flippancy that their lives belie and when man turns the light of truth into his heart or searches out the word of God with it, he finds what he can scarcely believe, that God's greatest concern is to save a lost race. His work is to restore the divine image in your hearts. "Salvation is great because the soul is great in the eyes of God. In our superficial lives we seem to care more for the things that perish, but beneath the crust of material things there is the conviction that only one thing endures—the soul. The soul and its powers and achievements are the eternal things and man is not able to divorce himself from the consciousness of immortality."

"Salvation is great because it is God's great work. It is great because of the great cost. It costs you nothing but it cost God everything. It is free to you and how can you escape if you neglect so great a salvation?"
