

PORTLAND BENEFITS BY OPENING OF FIVE HOTEL

Tourist Travel Via California and Portland Will Be Greatly Augmented by Completion of Empress Edifice at Victoria, Formally Opened This Week.

Empress Hotel at Victoria, B. C., Completed a Cost of $1,000,000.

There is already a great coast movement of tourist travel to and from the Canadian Pacific railway via southern California, and with the completion and opening of the company's new Empress hotel at Victoria this travel will rapidly increase in volume. All of it will pass through Portland, said Frank R. Johnson, general agent of the Canadian Pacific railway, who returned today from Victoria, where he attended the opening of the palatial Empress hotel.

The Canadian Pacific's chain of tourist hotels, which was completed across the continent with the opening of the Empress last Monday, includes the Hotel Vancouver, at Vancouver; the Revelstoke, at Revelstoke; the Sicamous, at Sicamous; the Glacier house, at Glacier; Emerald Chalet, near Field; Mount Stephen house, at Field; Louise Chalet, at Logan; Banff Springs hotel, at Banff; Moose Jaw hotel, at Moose Jaw; Royal Alexandria, at Winnipeg; the Canadian station, at Caledonia; McAdam house, at McAdam; Place Viger, at Montreal; Chateau Frontenac, at Quebec. All these hostleries, under management of Hayter Reed, are striving to stimulate tourist travel over the Canadian Pacific lines.

Tourists Through Portland.

The character of this tourist travel is similar to that which enriches the coffers of southern California committees every year. The ebb and flow passes through Portland. Canadian Pacific people believe Portland to be the most beautiful city south of Victoria, and that there should be a tourist hotel built on one of the various ideal sites in this city for such a house of public entertainment.

Every attractive place that can be added to the tourist route around the continent gives that much additional strength to the argument of the railroad passenger agent for tourist travel routing this way. Mr. Johnson said, "If the tourist is given special attention and something out of the ordinary in the line of accommodations, he will make the Pacific coast route the most traveled path on the western continent."

As a matter of fact this route already contains four-fifths of the interesting sights and scenes in America, and the only thing remaining for us to do is to complete the chain of tourist hotels at every available point and then pull all together for the tourist.

Hotel Is Beautiful One.

An immense impetus has been given to Victoria by the building of the Empress. Rising seven stories, from a filled causeway, fronting on Victoria harbor's massive new stone seawall, the hotel is the most conspicuous structure in the city as the tourist enters the harbor. It is surrounded by about 19 acres of ground that will be landscaped and made to conform with the adjoining grounds of the parliament buildings.

The opening of the hotel was a notable success, due to the efforts of George H. Williams, chief of publicity; E. J. Coyle, assistant general passenger agent; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Gordon, who will manage the hostelry; A. B. Calder, general agent of the Canadian Pacific at Seattle; and Frank R. Johnson, general agent at Portland. Mrs. Gordon assisted in designing and directed the furnishing of the interior. She assisted at the formal opening and wrote the initial name in the hotel's first register.

Newspapermen Were Guests.

There were about 40 guests, nearly all newspapermen, and gathered from both sides of the boundary line. From the American side were Messrs. Jackson, Wolf and McNaughton, Spokane; Lorton and Roe, Walla Walla; Gibson, McDowell, Merrill, Deffenbaugh, Hedrick, Parkinson, Williams and Gilbert, Seattle; Williams of the Oregonian, Portland; and the Telegram, and Hyskell of The Journal, Portland.

Tacoma was the only prominent city not represented. The guests were entertained with a luncheon and dinner, and an informal reception and dance at the hotel in the evening, when about 200 British citizens and their wives participated in the festivities.

During the day the visiting newspapermen were taken to witness a session of the parliament where they listened to a stirring discussion between Premier McBride of the conservatives and Macdonald, leader of the Liberals on the Japanese immigration question. Afterward they were given an automobile trip around the island.

Creek Coal company has been incorporated here with capital stock $100,000, fully paid up. It will engage in a general coal mining business. The officers are: A. H. Brown, president and general manager; C. L. Brown, vice-president; J. E. Leonard, secretary and treasurer; John Stout, superintendent. The company will develop some 100,000 acres of coal land, on a half of this city. The company has bought 480 acres of coal land, on the Eugene logging camp, within a mile and a half of this city. The logging railroad of the Coal Creek Lumber company passes within a few feet of one of the best veins. There is a coal field directly east of Chehalis within three miles that is probably not exceeded in quality and area in the west. It is a high-grade of lignite of superior quality.

The Coal Creek company expects to be opening the logging camp within 60 days. Within a year it is hoped to have 100 men on the payroll.

STOCK HEARING IS POSTPONED

Council for Railroads Refuse to Produce Witnesses at Salem Session.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Salem, Jan. 22.—The hearing of stockmen before the railroad commission was suddenly terminated by the refusal of the council of the railroads to put in any testimony and the case was adjourned to February 10, when it will be resumed at Portland.

In the contention for stock-shipping contracts that shall be more reasonable for the shippers, R. A. Lister appeared for the Southern Pacific, James B. Kerr for the Northern Pacific, A. C. Spencer for the O. R. & N. Co., and L. McNary for the stockmen. Traffic Managers Malibouet and Henry Blakeley, traffic managers, were also present.

William Steusloff and H. H. Vandervort, representing the complainant, G. D. Burdick, a stockman of Marion county, were witnesses. They testified as to the bad condition of the stockyards and corrals in some of which cattle were injured and lost when loading. The main complaint is against the present stock-shipping contract, a bill of lading which provides that at certain valuations the shipper is given the regular tariff rates, but for double values of contents of car there is 10 per cent added to the rate.

On the Southern Pacific the rate for range cattle is $10 per head on the O. R. & N. not to exceed $1,000 per car, and the shipper signs a release for all loss above that amount to secure the minimum tariff. The Southern Pacific gives the attendant accompanying the livestock seven days to return. On the other lines the shipper gets a 30-day limit to return.

The railroad attorneys put up no defense whatever, as they did not object to the lines of testimony the attorney for the shippers would offer, and asked time to furnish witnesses and prepare arguments.

The commission went to Toledo today to hear arguments and take testimony in the case of Jones vs. the Corvallis & Eastern on the charge of insufficient accommodations to the public.

Birthdays of Baroness

(Edited Press Leased Wire.)

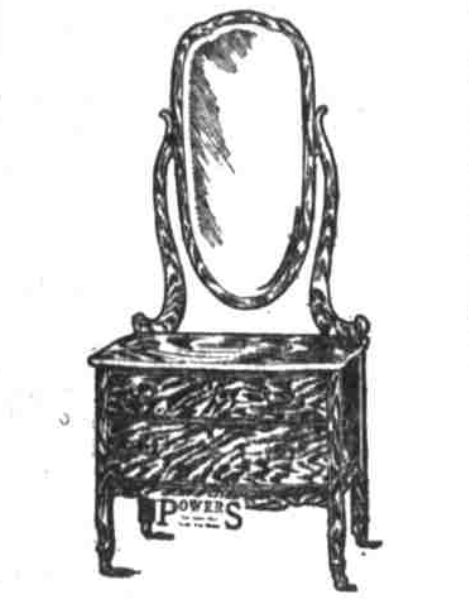

London, Jan. 22.—The little Baroness Clifton of Leighton Bromford, who besides being the youngest baroness, has the distinction of being the only girl among the twenty or more minor peers, was eight years old today. Elizabeth Adaline Mary Bligh, to give her full name, was born January 22, 1890, and succeeded to the barony in the same year. She is the seventeenth holder of the title, which was held before her by her father, the seventh Earl of Darnley, who died without other issue.
