PRESIDENT POLITICAL

Roosevelt's Attitude Toward Hughes Changes When He Discovers New York Governor Is Independent in Actions.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)
Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—Samuel G. Blythe makes a remarkable statement in the Saturday Evening Post concerning the relations of Roosevelt and Hughes. Blythe is a brilliant and reliable newspaper correspondent. Briefly summarized he shows that Roosevelt was responsible for the nomination of Governor Hughes in 1906, and that he essayed in every way to promote the Hughes political fortunes, until it was evident that there was no gratitude forthcoming from up Albany. And "how sharper than a serpent's tooth" is the sting of ingratitude.
The president has even gone so far as to discipline federal officeholders who opposed the Hughes policy. One Sanders was even told that he might resign.
It was expected that Governor Hughes would thank the president for this interference in his behalf. But never a word from Hughes.
Sanders Keeps Job.
The president at first became irritated because of this treatment, and then he wanted to see what the same Sanders, who was slated for removal because of "pernicious political activity" in New York state, was doing. He learned that he himself was doing for him. But then the president's attitude toward the governor of New York changed. A "pernicious activity" in state politics among federal officeholders evidently depends entirely upon whether this activity is in conformity or not to the president's wishes. Hence Sanders, who was to be removed for fighting Hughes yesterday is still on the job because the president himself is fighting Hughes today. Such is politics.
If what Senator Foraker says means anything, and most people believe it means just what he says, then hope of Republican harmony in Ohio is a thing of the past. Of course for this and condition of affairs, the senator lays the blame at the door of the secretary of war. In this latest statement Senator Foraker speaks of the overtures of peace originally made by mutual friends for the sake of the party and acquiesced in by him for that reason alone. He alludes with evident bitterness to Mr. Taft's recent frank avowal that he personally rejected the proposition on the ground that the secretary of war could not be a party to any deal that gave him the support of the Republicans of Ohio for the presidency, if it had to be coupled with an endorsement of Foraker for United States senator.
Sun Away or Fight.
"When Secretary Taft rejected all these peace offerings," said Senator Foraker, "I had either to run away or to resume the contest. The resulting situation is disagreeable, but I do not consider myself responsible for it. Moreover, in view of the facts I have given, I could not, if I so desired, take the initiative as to any new peace negotiations, or even consider or talk about anything of the kind on my own motion until Secretary Taft or some one speaking for him should lead the way. And from all I hear, nothing of that kind is likely to occur. It may therefore be regarded as settled that the contest will be fought out to the end."
This certainly is a declaration of war for Republican harmony in Ohio. Over the merits of the contest between Secretary Taft and Senator Foraker, Democrats are willing to let Republicans quarrel. But it does strike the disinterested spectator that any accusations coming from either side, and the other faction with having destroyed party harmony, are certainly akin to the kettle calling the pot black. Senator Foraker says that he "had always supposed it was the duty of one aspiring to the honors of a party, particularly its highest honors, to help compose its differences, and thus add to its strength, and against the common enemy," he scores heavily on Mr. Taft and not lightly upon himself, for it does seem to the ordinary observer that the way in which the senator disposed of the federal appointments in Ohio the other day was not exactly calculated to bring sweetness and light into an already badly strained situation.

General debility may arise from a variety of causes but weakness is always present, a tendency to perspire and fatigue easily, ringing in the ears, sometimes black spots passing before the eyes, weak back, vertigo, wakefulness caused by inability to stop thinking, and unrefreshing sleep. These conditions are simply a call for a blood tonic and builder.
Mrs. Lena May Brooks, Prairie Hall, Macon county, Ill., after several months of suffering finally found the right tonic in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:
"I suffered terribly from a general breakdown in health, was in bed for three months and after that was able to be up only part of the time. I was sick all over, being pale, weak and thin. My appetite was gone, my head ached most of the time, and often I would faint away.
"As the treatment I was taking did not help me, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking a few boxes, I began to get well rapidly. I am now as well and strong as ever in my life."

GOES TO NORWAY ON STOLEN COIN
Sheriff Culver Starts to New York to Bring Alleged Thief Back to Salem.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Salem, Or., Jan. 24.—Sheriff W. J. Culver left this morning for New York city to bring back for trial Hans Z. Hansen, who is wanted for stealing a team of horses and selling them in his own last June.
He was a farm hand for D. W. Claggett of this city, and worked the team on the latter's farm near this city. June 5 he disappeared and was never seen again. Later it was found he had sold the team in Yamhill county to a Dayton man for $300, and bought a ticket for his native land of Norway. The other day he returned and was arrested in New York, where Sheriff Culver had traced him.
The crime for which papers were issued by the governor of Oregon is largely by ballot.

$4,000 REWARD FOR MURDERERS

Governor Decides to Offer a Large Sum for Arrest of Casteels' Slayers.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Salem, Or., Jan. 24.—Governor Chamberlain has decided to offer a reward of $4,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers of the local family near Macleay about two months ago.
It was the belief of the sheriff's office when Culver and Minto concluded their investigation that the hired man Montgomery committed the crime, and then killed himself. The governor's whole family were murdered, and while unable to give any details is satisfied that the offer of the reward will help bring the perpetrators of the awful deed, that cost four lives and the destruction of a fine property, to justice.

PENDLETON WANTS STOCKYARDS MOVED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., Jan. 24.—After maintaining large stockyards in the heart of the residence district of the city for the past 25 years a movement is on foot to have the O. R. & N. yards moved to the outskirts of the city. The move is by means of the O. R. & N. cut-off west of Pendleton. It is probable that Unstilla county will become owner of the old railroad, and the city will be discarded by the cut-off and the county by converting this bridge into a wagon bridge, will give the city the main wagon road into the city. This will make it possible for the railroad company to erect large yards on the west edge of the city outside of the residence districts. Many good residences have been erected closer to the stockyards in the past few years and both the company and the city have been seeking a location for the yards on the outside of the city. It is possible that large stockyards on the west side of the city will be installed.

BERT PIXLER MUST RAISE LARGE BOND

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., Jan. 24.—After nearly a year spent as a fugitive from justice Bert Pixler, who was arrested Tuesday by Sheriff Taylor, was taken to La Grande, where he waived examination before the justice yesterday and was placed under $3,500 bonds, which was not furnished.
Pixler was arrested in Yakima by Sheriff Taylor of Unstilla county, and immediately after bringing him to Pendleton Sheriff Childers of Union county was notified, and he was taken to La Grande. Pixler is charged with having stolen a valuable horse some months ago from J. M. McCall at La Grande.
New Lodge at Pendleton.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., Jan. 24.—Pendleton lodge No. 214 of the Fraternal Brotherhood was organized in this city last night with a membership of 24. The organization was effected by Deputy M. L. Chappell of Portland. The following officers were elected: A. E. Lamber, president; Mrs. Sarah E. Gibson, past president; Mrs. Pearson, chairman; Mrs. Hattie Burnett, vice-president; Mrs. W. S. Kennedy, secretary; Mrs. Mary Finney, treasurer.
Checking a Terrible Disease.
(United Press Leased Wire.)
Geneva, Jan. 24.—A heroic attempt is being made by a number of young women of the Alpine village of Tenos in the case of the Grisons to stop a dreadful hereditary malady. The disease, which passes from generation to generation with growing intensity, is popularly known as "addition to bleeding." In those afflicted with it the slightest scratch causes a terrible loss of blood, in some cases nothing can stop the bleeding, even from a pin-prick, and a scratch of any depth is almost certain to cause death.

In Tenos the malady only appears in married women. For that reason the daughters of the families affected have now bound themselves by oath never to marry, hoping that by their abstinence of the joys of matrimony they may free their village from the disease that has made it notorious.
Campbell's Will Probated.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Astoria, Or., Jan. 24.—The will of the late Captain James E. Campbell, is admitted to probate. S. E. Harris has been appointed administrator, and F. J. Carney, E. M. Baker and Phil Bowers appointed appraisers.

AS OTHERS THINK

Everyone in Portland Has a Right to His Own Opinion.
While everyone has a right to his own opinion, yet it is wise to always consider what others think and profit by their experience.
Nothing makes life so miserable, or inflicts so widely with the usefulness of the average American, as to take all the value of this remedy. They take all the value of this remedy. They take all the value of this remedy. They take all the value of this remedy.
Woodard, Clarke & Co. are positive that in Mi-o-na stomach tablets they have the many disagreeable symptoms that follow this disease, such as distaste in the mouth, dizziness, flatulence, weakness and debility.
Their action in getting Mi-o-na on a course, shows plainly their belief in the value of this remedy. They take all the risk, and there will be no charge whatever for Mi-o-na unless you are satisfied that it has relieved you of indigestion.
Mi-o-na wakes up the stomach muscles and strengthens them so that they take care of all the food you eat in a natural, healthy way, without pain or distress after meals.
It costs but 50 cents a box, and does more real good than a dozen boxes of the ordinary digestive tablets. The absolute, unqualified guarantee of Woodard, Clarke & Co. shows their faith in the value of Mi-o-na.
