HENEY HAS EVIDENCE IN

land, but W. Lair Hill, attorney for Mr. Mays, objected to the course of questioning as tending to put matter in the record which might be construed against him in the trial of the case which was pending. Mr. Mays insisted on his privilege as a man under indictment, and was excused from answering by the court. Mays was then excused until Monday morning, when he will come under the cross-examination of Judge Webster.

When Steiwer took the stand at the opening of court Mr. Heney began to question him regarding the political history of the state. The witness said that Hall had been a supporter of Senator Fulton for the United States senate but that this fact did not influence him in his vote. He told Judge Webster that he expected to be fined about $250 and to serve one day in jail, or to receive some similar punishment as he had been told he would be recommended for leniency to the court by the prosecution in return for his evidence.

The witness said he had written F. P. Mays, his attorney, asking that he be informed as soon as a suit was filed against him or the company for illegal fencing of land in order that he could pull the fences down and possibly defeat the purpose of the suit when it came up for trial.

Introduced Letter.

Mr. Heney then introduced a letter written by F. P. Mays to the witness regarding the fence case and in answer to his former letter. The letter from Mays stated that the attorney had seen Hall and that Hall was preparing both a criminal and a civil suit to be filed against the company or some member of it. He stated, however, that it was his belief that Steiwer would not be arrested under the criminal action, though Zachary, foreman of the company perhaps would be. Mays continued in his letter that he had reason to believe, however, that Hall would not file the criminal action, but would rest content with a civil suit. He stated that as soon as he saw Steiwer he would discuss the matter further with him but that it should be apparent to him that a strong pull was necessary to keep Hall from proceeding with the criminal action.

The letter went on to say that criminal suits would be filed against Beard and Thompson. Mays said he would let Steiwer know when the suit was filed and what land it covered, so that he could take the fences down and perhaps get the suit dismissed.

Continuing his testimony, Steiwer said he had been about the forty-third man to vote for Fulton on the last night of the session of 1903. He had believed that Harvey W. Scott was slated for the place until the last moment and had voted for Scott when his name was presented but when the tide turned he had voted for Fulton.

Going further into the intent of the questioning Mr. Heney asked the witness if he did not have a talk with Fulton on the night of the election at which Fulton had placed his hand on Steiwer's shoulder and said that he could do him a great service and intended to do so whether he voted for him or not. The witness said he did not remember such a conversation.

Heney Asks Question.

"Didn't you tell Hendricks that when you returned to Fossil after the session?" Mr. Heney asked.

The witness said he did not remember of having said such a thing.

"Did not Hall speak to you about the fence matter and then didn't Fulton come with his talk?" Heney persisted.

"I do not think so. I do not have any remembrance of any such talk," said the witness.

"Didn't you state that to Hendricks when you returned to Fossil?" Heney again asked.

"I don't think so. I don't remember," again answered the witness.

The witness in answer to further questions from Mr. Heney said that Hendricks had asked for clemency, though he had spoken for Steiwer and Zachary as well. Steiwer was told, the witness said, that his case was different, as the other two men had been convicted on one indictment, and that the consideration shown them would perhaps be different from what was given him.

James W. Rennick was the last witness called before the court adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Rennick said he had been a special agent in 1904 when he was directed to go from The Dalles to Fossil to investigate the Steiwer fence. Hall had written him a letter, the witness said, in which the district attorney asked that an investigation be made, since if the demands of the office in regard to removing the fence had been met he desired to dismiss the suit against the company.

Rennick said he had made the trip and had found the fences up and had returned to Portland, where he made such a report to Hall. Hall had been angered at the report, the witness said, and when he found that the fences had not been removed had said, "Then, by God, I will go after Steiwer."

After Judge Webster had asked the witness if Hall seemed angry because the fence had not been taken down and the witness had stated htat he did, the court adjourned for the day.

Brownell Closely Questioned.

George C. Brownell, the former political leader of Clackamas county, was on the stand during most of the afternoon yesterday. He underwent a pretty extended course of questioning by Mr. Heney and then for the remainder of the time sparred with Judge Webster on cross examination. Brownell said he was sick when he first took the stand and that he had not been out of bed for three weeks, until he came to Portland to testify. Under the stimulus of the tittering caused by some of his sallies, however, he soon rallied and finished strong just before 5 o'clock, when he was excused.

Brownell told the story of his connection with Hall during his fight for the district attorneyship in 1903, and related how Hall had bluffed him out of the race by holding the threat of indictment over his head. He also told of much of the political intrigues of the days of 1903 and 1904, bringing in the names of Fulton, Mitchell, F. P. Mays and others.

Brownell said that Hall had never at any time "stood him up specifically," but that he had called him into his office and showed his field notes, which had been acknowledged by the witness and which were fraudulent. Hall at that time, the witness said, had told him that Special Agent Greene was after his scalp and that he would have a hard time to square things.

Hall Promised His Aid.

Hall had posed as Brownell's friend, the witness said, and had told him he would try to stave off prosecution, but that Brownell would have to get out of the race for district attorney. The witness said that Hall had told him Mitchell and F. P. Mays needed Hall in the office of district attorney more than they did Brownell and that for that reason the witness had better give up his hopes of the office.

The witness told of a visit Hall had made to Brownell in 1903, at which time he had told the witness of an intended visit to Washington, urging that Brownell write an indorsement of Hall's candidacy for the office he was seeking. Brownell had written a letter to Mitchell, Fulton or the delegation in which he advised that Hall be given the support of the delegation for reappointment. He argued that Hall could do more with Multnomah county than Brownell and so it would be better politics to shelve Brownell and let Hall have the job.

Fulton Has the Telegram.

The witness said that he had received a telegram from Hall at Washington in January, 1904, which urged him to ask Fulton for Hall's appointment. He sent the telegram and then later gave Hall's telegram to Fulton, when the latter came back to Portland. Fulton had asked him for letters written to the witness by him and he had given them. Fulton had taken the telegram, never returning it.

Brownell said he had met Hall at the latter's office and had been asked to sign an affidavit denying that Hall had ever threatened him with prosecution or promised to protect him. The witness said Hall had wanted the document to use in his fight for reappointment, but the witness said he would not sign it. He had later given it to the government on the suggestion of Senator Mitchell.

Hand Always Held Out.

Brownell said that he knew he was up against it anyway, that Hall and Greene were after him, and that should a report of their findings be sent to the president he would not stand a chance for appointment. He therefore got out of the race. He had been a candidate for congress, however, in fact he had always been a candidate for anything that came along. He had found out, Brownell said, that the only way to do under the old regime was to reach out for everything in sight and get what he could. He had been a sort of political employment agency in Oregon City, had made many United States senators and had received promises in return for his labors. He had grown tired of that sort of thing, however.

The witness said that he had talked with W. J. Burns, the government detective, in 1905, at which time Burns had told him he was under suspicion. The witness had then gone to Senator Mitchell and asked him what he should do. He had said he was not guilty of wrong and after a discussion Senator Mitchell had advised him to turn over his letters and documents to the government. He had done this and since that time had told the government any information at his command that it was honorable for him to do. He said he had no apologies to make for his course.

Conviction No Disgrace.

R. J. Hendricks, of Salem, a brother of H. H. Hendricks, was called to the stand for a few moments after Brownell had been excused and told of a visit made him at Salem by Hall and of other visits. The chief point of Hendricks' testimony, however, related to a visit made by Hall two weeks ago today. At that time Hall wanted to know what Hendricks knew about the case and what his brother was going to do.

Hall argued that H. H. Hendricks and he should put up a defense together, the witness said, and argued that even should they be convicted it would be no disgrace, as others convicted of the land offenses had not suffered disgrace in the eyes of the people. Hall had told the witness, Hendricks said, that he had heard his brother had been approached by Heney, but that all promises made by the government were broken and that Heney's promises were no good. It would be better, therefore, if Hendricks did not accept the promises.

The witness testified that he had told Hall he knew nothing of his brother's plans.

EVELYN CALLS WRITERS "CATS"

Mrs. Thaw Declares Women Speak of Her as Though She Had No Soul.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

New York, Jan. 25.—With the arrival today of four witnesses for the defense in the Thaw trial, Attorney Littleton, chief counsel for the defense, can make good his promise to close his side of the famous case Monday night. The first draft of the hypothetical question to be prepared by the defense was submitted to District Attorney Jerome today by Attorney O'Reilly. This was done to obviate tiresome wrangling after the expert witnesses are sworn in.

Evelyn Thaw is indignant at the women writers who have been following her movements since her husband killed Stanford White. She expressed her feelings today when she called to see Thaw in the Tombs and characterized the writers as a lot of "cats."

"These women have written about me as they would write about a woman without a soul," she exclaimed, angrily. "But I wonder how many of these same women would measure up to the standard of excellence in womanhood if they had suffered the trials I have experienced.

"Their declaration that I married Harry Thaw for his money is a base, cruel lie. Why, if I had wanted only money I could have married a man worth much more than Harry. It has been Harry's money that has always been a barrier between us. These women have shown neither soul nor conscience in writing about me.

"Their great mass of lies has created a prejudice in the public mind against me which is unwarranted. All Harry and I ask for is acquittal and then to be let alone."

GRIP EPIDEMIC SPREADING

Over 500,000 Cases Reported in the Large Cities.

Leading Doctors Agree That the Only Sure Preventative and Cure is Duffy's Pure Malt Malt Whiskey as Prescribed.

Grip, with all its distressing symptoms and its dangers to poorly nourished persons, has been steadily increasing during the last few weeks, until now the disease has almost reached the stage of an epidemic.

The fact is that since the opening of this year grip has been on the increase. Grim statistics in the records of the health department show this.

Experts are agreed that grip contributes, by complication with other diseases, to the increase of the death rate. It is also a dangerous ailment, because of its liability, when neglected, to develop into pneumonia.

Doctors agree this epidemic could be avoided by keeping the system in normal healthy condition by using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as prescribed. Mr. W. A. Stagg, 1063 Pacific street, Brooklyn, N. Y., who is vigorous at the age of 73, has been cured several times of grip by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, taken as prescribed, and has also been saved by its use from the bad after effects of the disease.

Mr. Stagg writes: "For 30 years Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been my one medicine. I have always used it as prescribed, and it has proved a valuable aid, as is has not only cured several attacks of grip, but has prevented any bad after effects. I cannot speak too highly of what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done for me, and will always keep it to stimulate and tone up my system and as a sure cure for colds and grip. Although 73 years old, I am hale and hearty, due to the judicious use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey."

Write Dr. C. M. Curran, Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., and state your case fully. He will prescribe and advise you free of charge.

BACHELOR BUYS BABY CLOTHES

Los Angeles People, Stung at Auction, Threaten to Arrest Salesman.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 25.—Complaints to the police, threatened suits, criminal and civil, and attachments galore have resulted from an auction held by a merchandise brokerage company. The company asserts it was a bona fide affair, but two score or more of Jewish second hand dealers declare it was a humbug. Yesterday many of the dealers stopped payment of their checks after examining the contents of the boxes purchased by them. The company instituted attachments on the property of these men, who then complained to the police that they had been swindled.

The company was about to move to new quarters, and desired to get rid of the unclaimed boxes and decided upon an auction.

When the lids were pried off, yells of grief and despair split the air. One of the heaviest losers alleges that when he opened a big box marked "from Philadelphia," he found it stuffed with Los Angeles newspapers. Yet one or two of the buyers got something for their money.

Mrs. Rebecca Carney, a widow, became the owner of three pairs of trousers in a fair state of preservation. Henry Robinson, a bachelor, bid successfully for a neat looking little box, only to find to his intense disgust that it contained four dozen flat, white garments worn exclusively by very young babies.

Manager Murphy states that the auction was a perfectly honest one, and that he had no idea what the boxes contained.

LAWYER OUTWITS

both letters and in each threatened Mrs. Hawthorne with death if she did not give a messenger a pocketbook containing $500.

The first letter, written last Tuesday, instructed Mrs. Hawthorne to give $500 in gold and paper to the man they would send around to her house Wednesday evening. The letter was opened by Mrs. Hawthorne's daughter, Mrs. M. O. Collins, who immediately took it to George Black, without showing it to her mother. Later Mrs. Hawthorne received a telephone asking her if she had received the letter. She didn't know what the man was talking about and told him so. He said he would write again.

Mrs. Hawthorne received the second letter and Mr. Black, foreseeing that she would have another telephone message, made arrangements to have the telephone company notify him as soon as a call for the Hawthorne residence was made.

When these arrangements were completed he communicated with the district attorney and arranged to have an officer accompany him in an automobile to whatever place the telephone call should be made. In case this plan failed it was decided that a pocketbook, stuffed with stage money, should be given to any messenger who might call, and the purse was prepared and kept in readiness.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the telephone company notified Mr. Black of a call from the Arion dance hall. Mr. Black and an officer jumped into the automobile, and while Mrs. Hawthorne answered the telephone and bravely kept Haffner talking on the other end of the wire, Mr. Black rushed up into the Arion hall and captured his man, in the very act of talking to Mrs. Hawthorne.

A large revolver was found in his trousers pocket, which he admitted was intended to frighten Mrs. Hawthorne It was unloaded, however.

Mrs. Hawthorne is nearly 70 years old, and is very wealthy. Hawthorne avenue, Hawthorne park and Hawthorne addition in East Portland having been named after her husband, who owned much of the property in that part of the city. She played her part in the plan most carefully and bravely, according to Mr. Black.

Leo Honsig, the Austrian pardner of Haffner, remains the enigma of the case. He has made no confession, although it is claimed that when arrested in his lodgings at Front and Washington streets yesterday afternoon he admitted knowing Mrs. Hawthorne. It is believed that he may have planned the entire case, as he formerly collected for a Russian church in St. Johns, and is said to have called on Mrs. Hawthorne for a subscription.

SHAW IS AFTER IOWA DELEGATES

Former Secretary Says His Political Future Rests With One State.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 25.—Former Secretary Shaw expects to be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination if he can get the Iowa delegation.

"With the vote of Iowa as a rallying point my chances will be better than anyone else unless Taft wins on the first ballot which I cannot believe he will do," writes Shaw to friends in this state.

"You can assure my friends that I will stand in no man's way after June 16," he continued, "I am willing to gamble my political feature on a single throw of dice."

The statement solves the problem of what Shaw intends to do. He has not given up the idea that in some way the March convention may be landed in his interest.

SAN FRANCISCO MAYOR TO WED MISS JEFFERS

Dr. Taylor and Bay City Charity Worker's Engagement Is Announced.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 25.—Mayor Edward Robeson Taylor is to be married. A young woman who also loves San Francisco, is to be his bride. Miss Eunice Jeffers has shown her affection for the Queen City of the Pacific differently, but no less earnestly than has Mayor Taylor.

From early girlhood she has been active in the city's charitable work, identifying herself with the college settlement, with the girl's training school and with the various auxiliary organizations of Trinity church, of which she has been a member. As the wife of the mayor she will be happily situated to continue her activities and will as well take sympathetic interest in the general work of municipal reform in which her husband is officially enlisted.

Announcement of the engagement was made yesterday by Mrs. Mary W. Kinkaid, who has regarded Miss Jeffers as her ward. The marriage will take place early in February and the mayor and his bride will then depart on a honeymoon, which will be made necessarily short by the pressure of city business calling for the mayor's presence here.

Miss Jeffers is a daughter of the late Milo S. Jeffers, who was a prominent merchant on Market street.

DON'T BLAME HER

For she cannot help it. Women are often cross, irritable, hysteric, and declare they are driven to distraction at the slightest provocation.

Men cannot understand why this should be so. To them it is a mystery because in nine times out of ten this condition is caused by a serious feminine derangement.

A remedy is necessary which acts directly upon the organs afflicted, restoring a healthy normal condition to the feminine system, which will quickly dispel all hysterical, nervous and irritable conditions. Such is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

The following letter serves to prove this fact.

Mrs. Mattie Copenhaver, 315 So. 21st St., Parsons, Kans., writes:

"For two years I suffered from the worst forms of feminine ills, until I was almost driven frantic. Nothing but morphine would relieve me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness and made me a well woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

THE LAWYER TO STENOGRAPHER

Q. How many times per day do you lift a typewriter carriage to see what you are doing?
A. I don't know.
Q. Have you any idea?
A. No.
Q. Five times?
A. No; more than that.
Q. One hundred times?
A. More than that, I think.
Q. Two hundred times?
A. About that, I should think.
Q. How much does the carriage weigh?
A. I don't know.
Q. Three pounds?
A. At least that.
Q. And you say you lift it about two hundred times every hour?
A. Yes.
Q. Then that would average six hundred pounds per hour, and six working hours each day would be 3,600 pounds per day, and 300 working days in a year you would be lifting 1,080,000 pounds—540 tons. Think of it!
A. (A long sigh) I suppose so.
Q. Then why don't you get an L. C. Smith & Bros. Writing in Sight machine of the 1908 model, with ball bearings throughout; no carriage to lift, no swinging of the platen, work in full sight. All evident advantages over any other way, as you can see. Doubtless that was the reason the Portland Business College recently ordered fifteen.

Former Auto Driver for Abe Ruef Will Be Fined When Found.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 25.—The mysterious disappearance of Alec. Lathan, the former chauffeur for Abe Ruef, and an important witness for the prosecution in the coming graft cases, is still unsolved. This morning the taking of Lathan's testimony, which was scheduled to take place before Judge Lawlor, was continued until Monday. Should Lathan in the meantime be found he will have to make an extremely satisfactory explanation to Judge Lawlor or suffer a heavy sentence for disregarding the orders of the court demanding his presence yesterday.

District Attorney Langdon and Detective Burns declare that they have absolutely no knowledge of Lathan's whereabouts.

This morning, at the request of the attorney representing Eugene E. Schmitz, one of the defendants upon whom notice was filed that the prosecution desired to take Lathan's deposition this morning, requested Judge Lawlor to continue the matter until Monday. This request was not objected to by the attorneys for any of the other defendants or the prosecution.

BURBANK NOT NATURE FAKER

Stanford President Denies California Wizard Is an "Undesirable Citizen."

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Stanford University, Cal., Jan. 25.—Professor Luther S. Burbank, who gained fame through the discovery of the spineless cactus, is not a nature faker, President Jordan of Stanford says so. Moreover the latter repudiates the recent article giving the professor that appellation.

"I have great confidence in Professor Burbank's spineless cactus," said President Jordan today. "The plant will not replace or crowd out the wild species in Arizona, no one could expect that. It must be cultivated like other fodder plants. If it were open to cattle in the desert it would be devoured root and branch. A rapidly growing cactus yielding fodder, not rendered dangerous by spines is possible, and Mr. Burbank's methods seem adequate to produce it."

TWO MORE TO PEN FROM UMATILLA

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Pendleton, Or., Jan. 25.—Judge Bean, in the circuit court this morning, sentenced Mark Shackleford to three years and a half in the penitentiary. Shackleford was given half a year more than his accomplices, Kelly and Rayne, in the tenderloin holdup, as he was the leader of the gang. The three men rolled a drunk on Christmas day.

R. Patterson, convicted Thursday of obtaining his livelihood by shameful means, was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary.

Court adjourned until Monday, when the case of Mrs. Stoessel of Portland against Laing and Russell for $7,500 damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained by her late husband while driving a livery team belonging to the defendants. She alleges her husband died of his injuries.

Thoughtful people have a laugh on coffee cranks now and then.

"I had used coffee ever since I was a small child," writes an Indiana lady, "and have always had bad spells with my stomach.

"Last spring just after I began housekeeping, I had a terrible time with my stomach and head. My husband bought a package of Postum and asked me to try it.

"I laughed at it because none of my folks would ever try it. But I made some the following morning, following directions on the package, about boiling it well.

"I was greatly pleased with the results and kept right on using it. Now I wouldn't drink anything else. I tell every old coffee "grunter" I see about Postum, and all my folks and my husband's people except a few cranks, use Postum instead of coffee.

"When put to soak in cold water over night and then boiled 15 minutes in the morning while getting breakfast it makes a delicious drink."
