The intruder is Mrs. Kamm, who opened the door of her suite at 207 Fourteenth street, Thursday night, 10 o'clock and came face to face with the stranger as he was about to enter the rooms across the hall, whose occupants were absent. J. Thorburn Ross and the other indicted officials of the Title Guarantee & Trust company gained further time for pleading in the circuit court yesterday by filing demurrers to the four informations filed against them. The principal among them being the claim that acts charged do not constitute a crime, that the district attorney failed to show that the acts were committed in Multnomah county, that he failed to charge that they were done within three years of the time of filing the information, and that he did not sufficiently state the nature and circumstances in each case. The demurrers probably will be argued during the coming week.

James Wilson has begun suit in the circuit court to recover $700 damages from the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, claiming that he was crowded off a car and thrown into the mud as the car was rounding the curve at the corner of Morrison and Chapman streets. He alleges that the conductor was negligent in permitting the overcrowding of the car, the swerving of the car as it struck the curve throwing other passengers against him with such force that he was unable to keep his hold where he was standing on the steps. He seeks for loss of wages for his doctor's bill and for the loss of $40 overcoat, which he says was ruined when he rolled in the mud.

Myers Jr. He denies the charge of his sister that she was cut off with $20,000 because of an insane father. An unknown miscreant during the last week has amused himself by shooting holes through the costly plate windows in the new residence of Lewis Montgomery, at Twentieth and East Salmon streets. The work of destruction has been done at night, several large panes of glass being broken out. It showed that the damage was done by small rifle bullets, one of which lodged in the sill. The police have been asked to investigate, the acts being attributed to malicious mischief or to spite against the owner of the property.

Robert Cahill, the young man whose wedding ceremony last Wednesday was marred by a bill collector demanding pay for printing the wedding invitations, says: there were no blows struck in front of the church where they were married, but that he only gave the impatient man with the bill a hard shove. That was enough to curb the collector he says, his fist not being required to protect himself and bride from further annoyance by the man who was waiting at the church.

CHARGES AGAINST SALOON-KEEPERS DISMISSED BY LIQUOR COMMITTEE.

Another saloon was whitewashed by the liquor license committee of the city council yesterday morning when the members voted to suspend sentence in the case against the Pup saloon, Thornton & Butter proprietors, who were charged with catering to the tastes of women. The owners were allowed to go pending good behavior.

This action was taken on the testimony of Captain Ervin, who stated under oath that he had detailed men to watch the place at Third and Jefferson streets and who reported they had been unable to find anything out of the way. Other witnesses testified to having seen women entering and leaving the saloon, some of whom were introduced. It was also shown at the hearing that the proprietors had been fined $65 for selling liquor to a minor woman. This was occurred on the ground that the woman had told the proprietors she was 21 years of age. The same woman caused the arrest of two other saloon-keepers under the same conditions.

The proprietors promised to keep women out of their saloon in the future, and inasmuch as the electrical piano and other improper conveniences existing about the saloon have been removed, the committee allowed the owners to go pending good behavior. A resumption of the cases will begin Monday morning at 10 o'clock, when the remaining six cases will be heard. These consist of the following: C. Turner, 215 Couch; Fred Fritts, 249 Burnside; Ed Johnson, 148 Seventh; Swanson & Jackson, 94 North Sixth; John Kubik, 423 Union avenue; William Sienk, 100 Sixth; Joe Hochfeld, 235 First.

Of these cases several are against saloons of notorious character, and it is expected that one or two will have the licenses revoked. Hochfeld has an application before the committee to transfer his license, but it is doubtful whether the committee will grant it before hearing the case against Hochfeld. He is accused of selling liquor to minors, harboring robbers, and is said to have been convicted of a robbery himself.

It was the unanimous opinion of the committee that in the future any saloonkeeper convicted of a crime be tried before the committee as soon as his case has been decided by the courts, and that the police be required to furnish a transcript of the evidence to the committee.
