BUILDING IS GIVEN OVER

Healy and Lombard Declared Owners of Board of Trade Structure by Judge Gantenbein—Reorganized Bank May Sue to Recover.

An order was made late yesterday afternoon by Judge Gantenbein, of the state circuit court, whereby the board of trade building passes from the receiver of the Oregon Trust and Savings bank to the present holders of the property, Joseph M. Healy and Gay Lombard. A hearing was given in the matter during the afternoon, and Joseph Simons, attorney for the receiver, argued the case for the interested parties, and recommended that the transfer be made. It is said that if the proposed German-American merger is effected the new bank will take the matter into court and contest the transfer, on the ground that the Oregon Trust is entitled to $98,000 instead of $40,000 for its interest in the building.

Construction of the board of trade building, a 10-story reenforced concrete structure of the most modern architecture, was begun a year ago by the Oregon Trust and Savings bank, with depositors' money. It was based on an extremely favorable lease from Dr. E. H. Parker, owner of the ground, and occupies a central location, adjoining the chamber of commerce building, one of the most valuable properties from a revenue standpoint in Portland. When the bank suspended it had invested approximately $97,735 in the building.

Litigation Threatened.

The walls were nearly up. There were several thousand dollars of outstanding debts for material and labor, and the building was threatened with liens and litigation. The financial stringency came on, and it was impossible for the receiver to enlist capital to carry the project along.

Under these conditions the court was asked to consent to acceptance of an offer of $40,000 from J. M. Healy and Gay Lombard. The matter came up during the legal holidays, and final action by the court was impossible. The court made inquiries regarding the condition of affairs, and decided that it would confirm the sale, and the judge's word was given that if Lombard and Healy would proceed with work on the building the necessary order of transfer would be made on the expiration of the legal holidays.

Later the merger plan of saving the Oregon Trust was brought forward, and the men who were backing it made objection to the sale of the board of trade building on the terms agreed to by the receiver. These terms were payment of $5,000 cash, $5,000 in six months, and the remaining $30,000 in two years. It was declared that this was almost like giving the property away, and the court was sought to prevent the transfer.

Court Keeps Agreement.

However, the court was committed to its course, and could not draw back. It is said the agreement was the best bargain that could be made at the time, as the financial clouds hung very black over the situation, there was no telling when times would improve, and it seemed to be a question of the bank losing the entire property or taking what the receiver could get for it.

The court's action in confirming the sale does not, it is said, mean that the building is beyond recovery. The reorganized bank can bring the issue up again on a petition for rehearing or an appeal, and it is possible that by an arrangement reimbursing Messrs. Healy and Lombard and paying them interest on their investment for the period it is employed, the bank can regain possession of the property and save the $58,000 loss that now appears on the record.

RECLAMATION PLANS ON KLAMATH PROJECT

Work for Year Calls for $400,000—Some Items at Contract Stage; Others Shaping Up.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Klamath Falls, Or., Feb. 1.—The federal service has asked for bids on the flume to be built across Lost river to be 4,300 feet long. The plans for work on the Klamath project contemplate the spending of $400,000. The Lost river flume will use approximately 740,700 feet of lumber and Project Engineer Murphy will endeavor to secure it from the forest reserve, section 26, west of Pelican bay, being selected as the best location. Under the act of congress of 1905, lumber for government work may be taken from forest reserves, which will lessen the cost.

Work on the Keno canal, begun last year, will be completed, and surveys are now being made on the extension down the Klamath river to Keno, which may also be undertaken this year. Work at the Clerk lake dam will rest entirely with the land owners in that region. It is entirely a question of signing up.

The service is also planning the construction of about six miles of main canal this year, and bids will soon be asked for the earth work.

No trouble on the score of labor supply or cost is expected on any of the parts of the project.

HOOD RIVER REFLECTS WEALTH OF PROGRESS

Guests at Commercial Club's Third Annual Banquet Hear Stirring Words of Apple District's Unprecedented Advancement—Many Visitors.

"Hood River—an intensely American community."

"Hood River—she sets the pace and her energy and development will not down.

"Hood River—whose splendid citizenship and fruit are making Oregon famous on both sides of the Atlantic and Pacific."

"Hood River—a district which has accomplished more in the line of development and progress than any other community of 8,000 inhabitants within the bounds of civilization."

These are a part of the sentiments which echoed and reechoed through Odd Fellows' hall in the apple growing town last night at the third annual banquet of the Hood River Commercial club They are the sentiments which exemplify the indomitable Hood River spirit —the spirit that rose through the cloud of smoke ascending from nearly 300 cigars and captured and took possession of the many Hood River people and the scores of guests who sat at the tables.

Bound by Common Tie.

There was also the spirit of good fellowship and mutual effort in the line of advancement. Hood River was considerably closer to the metropolis and to other sections of the state represented when the last address was given. There had been a commingling of community interests. Hood River profited and felt a tingle of closer relationship by what was said at the speakers' table, and Portland and The Dalles and other sections were imbued with the overpowering spirit of progressiveness which rang from every word and action of Hood River's speakers.

Portlanders complimented Hood River on its sturdy citizenship, commercial honesty, that packed Hood River apples as good at the bottom as at the top, and unity of purpose which had sent the name of the district around the globe.

"No other community of 8,000 inhabitants within the bounds of civilization has accomplished what you have," said Tom Richardson in his address, and Hood River appreciated the remark, thanked the speaker with thunderous applause, and later informed the assemblage that the community had done nothing more than make a start compared to what it would produce and export within the next decade.

Attendance From Two States.

From Washington and surrounding towns in Oregon delegates were present from various commercial bodies to attend the banquet and lend a will and show a way to accomplish more. Portland's delegation arrived about 8:30 in the evening, and was met by a committee consisting of A. A. Jayne, Charles T. Early, A. D. Moe, Leslie Butler, Truman Butler, A. F. Davidson and P. S. Davidson. At the opera house, where the visitors were first escorted were Charles E. Hall, V. C. Brock, W. P. Andrus and W. L. Clark.

Governor Chamberlain and A. A. Jayne, president of the Hood River Commercial club, headed the procession of 300 banqueters, which proceeded to Odd Fellows' hall, after a general hand shaking. At the opera house Hood River apple cider had been sipped and Hood River Newtowns and Spitzenbergs and ice cream Winesaps were pleasing features of the dessert.

H. F. Davidson acted as toastmaster, and introduced Governor Chamberlain, who spoke on "The Local Commercial Club as a Factor in the Development of the State." He referred to the time when the state was without development leagues and compared that time to the present when through the unification of communities in the widespread organization of commercial clubs, Oregon was fast taking the lead of all states in the union. He mentioned particularly the fact that Hood River had through its commercial body set the pace for the rest of Oregon and congratulated the city and community on the splendid citizenship, which countenanced no obstacle nor wavered at handicaps in the way of progressiveness.

Lathrop the Funmaker.

Rev. A. H. Lathrop, pastor of the Methodist church, who has been in Oregon from the east but a short time, was the center of humor not only during his address on "An Easterner's Impressions of Hood River," but throughout the entire evening. His word picture, in which he painted Hood River five years hence, was the ocasion for repeated outbursts of laughter, and his quaint interpolations in the addresses of other speakers kept humor rolling during the entire evening.

Tom Richardson, manager of Portland's commercial club, followed with an address on "Community Advertising by Local Commercial Clubs," and his remarks were followed with closest attention. It was the common sense, homely honesty that had done more for Hood River than any other factor, he said, "for when the world opens a box of Hood River apples, the bottom ones are as good as the top and the top as good as the bottom, and they are good all the way through."

Hon. E. L. Smith's toast on "The Commercial Club a Factor in Promoting Unity," was punctuated with many bursts of applause, as were also the remarks of Rev. J. G. Tate who, in speaking of "Hood River, the Valley of Opportunities," emphasized the growing standard of moral fibre in the district which continued to improve as the educational facilities advanced and land values increased both in value and productiveness.

Cotton Feels Sorry.

W. W. Cotton was called on for an address and spoke briefly on the favorable action Hood River took yesterday in voting $40,000 for additional school facilities. He referred to it as the most important move the city had taken. Then he spoke humorously of his potato field in eastern Multnomah and how he had to persistently improve the standard of his crop to keep pace with Hood River apples. "I always feel doubly sorry whenever I come to Hood River," he concluded, "very sorry, indeed. First, because I don't come oftener, and second, because I did not buy land here when I first came 15 years ago."

Mr. Cotton was followed by Fred W. Wilson of The Dalles, who assured the banqueters that Wasco was giving up its most precious jewel in not resisting the move for Hood River county, but that the efforts to divide the county now were meeting with approval from the best and broadest minded citizens of The Dalles.

A. A. Jayne, president of the Hood River Commercial club, also spoke of county division. The petition which will be presented to the voters of the state in June has received over 12,000 signatures and opposition to the division, which was so bitter two years ago, has practically disappeared and in its stead has come hearty good will and approval.

Ask for River Dredging.

H. M. Cake spoke briefly on "Citizenship in Community Building," urging Hood River business men to erect a commercial club building as soon as possible in order to promote and facilitate the fine work already in hand.

"Better Apples," was the subject handled by E. H. Shepard, editor of "Better Fruit," and he gave comparative figures to show that Oregon is the greatest fruit producing state in the union.

J. L. Henderson closed the evening's list of toasts with an address on "Hood River's Commerce Outlets," and introduced a resolution calling upon congress for an appropriation sufficient to dredge the Columbia along Hood River's waterfront to a depth which would allow free and unhampered water transportation for the valley's products at all seasons of the year. The evening's program was interspersed with solos by Murray Kay and J. Adrian Epping.

Among the guests from out of town points were Governor Chamberlain, A. J. Capron, A. C. Jackson, H. M. Cake, W. J. Hofmann, Frank Chandler, William Chandler, Newton Clark, John B. Coffey, F. S. Stanley, W. H. Chapin, A. P. Tifft, Tom Richardson, W. W. Cotton, Dr. E. B. Wright, Colonel David M. Dunne, Don Steffa, E. C. Herlow, B. E. Fisk, F. L. Perkins, L. H. Lamberson, E. N. Blythe, Portland; Judge A. E. Lake, J. M. Patterson, F. R. Angle, F. W. Wilson, The Dalles; A. P. Bateman, J. N. Mosier, Mosier; Roswell Shelley, Carson, Washington; Rev. J. G. Tate, White Salmon.

NEAL CHARGED AS NOTE FORGER

Boise Cashier Is Arrested—Power in Idaho Politics and in the Church.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Boise, Ida., Feb. 1.—Horace E. Neal, former cashier of the Capital State bank, which suspended payment last week, was arrested last night on a charge of forgery. The arrest was made by Chief of Police Francis at Neal's home, but owing to his serious illness he was not taken into custody, a guard being stationed at Neal's home.

The specific charge against Neal is forgery of the name of J. L. Sewell, a wealthy sheep owner, to a note for the sum of $1,500.

It is alleged that forged notes aggregating $50,000 have been found in the bank by W. S. Bruce, receiver.

Neal for a number of years has been prominent in church and political affairs. He is superintendent of the First Methodist Sunday school. Three days before the bank suspended he left Boise, going to Portland, but returned last Monday on being informed that matters had been disclosed which required explanation from him.

Receiver Bruce has announced that the forged papers will not prevent the bank from paying depositors in full.

NEWS FORECAST OF COMING WEEK

Florida Republicans First to Name Delegates to National Convention.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—The first of the state conventions to name delegates to the Republican national convention will be held the coming week, when the Republicans of Florida will meet in St. Augustine. More than ordinary interest attaches to the gathering, because of the reported intention of the Republican negroes to capture the convention in the interest of Senator Foraker's candidacy for the presidential nomination. If the effort of the negroes fails, the convention will be controled by the federal office-holders, and as a consequence it is expected the Florida delegates will go to Chicago instructed for Secretary Taft.

The trial of William R. Macon and Joseph Vanderweide, charged with being the slayers of Secret Service Agent Joseph Walker, is scheduled to begin at Durango, Colorado, next Friday. At the time of his death Walker was engaged in gathering evidence against the perpetrators of alleged land frauds in Colorado, and his murder attracted widespread attention.

An important educational conference will be held at the university of Illinois Tuesday and Wednesday to discuss the relations of graduate schools of American universities to the preparation of teachers for high schools, colleges and universities and the preparation for practical professors.

At Tampa, Florida, a conference of delegates representing the states of the south will assemble Wednesday to discuss the immigration problem and the best means for inducing the movement of desirable European settlers to the south.

From present indications, it will not be a week of very great activity among the presidential possibilities, so far as their appearance in public goes. With the exception of William J. Bryan, none of them has so far accepted invitations for public addresses during the week. Mr. Bryan will remain in the east and will be heard during the week at several points in New Jersey and New York.

Albert Hotel to Be Improved.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

The Dalles, Or., Feb. 1.—Adam Mueller, president of the Star Brewing company of Vancouver, Washington, which is the firm owning the property upon which the Hotel Albert is situated, was in the city yesterday with a view of making improvements at that hostelry. The edifice is to be raised one story and an addition is to be made at the rear. The improvement contemplated will cost about $10,000, and will make the Albert hotel one of the finest in eastern Oregon.

NOON HEIRS MAKE COMMON CAUSE

Form Solid Front Against Armstrong and the Bay Company Management.

The long pending contest in the trust estate of W. C. Noon against T. J. Armstrong and others was taken up before Judge O'Day in the circuit court yesterday. On one side are ranged Mrs. Emily J. Noon, the widow, and other heirs of W. C. Noon, while on the other stands Armstrong and the management of the W. C. Noon Bag company. The widow and the banded heirs are seeking to require Armstrong to render a complete accounting of his management, to prevent the acceptance of the resignation of W. C. Noon Jr. as a trustee, pending final settlement, and to secure the appointment of Mrs. Noon as a trustee in place of H. M. Cake, resigned. The appointment of R. W. Wilbur as a trustee with Mrs. Noon is also suggested, and objection is made to the increasing of Armstrong's salary from $175 to $350 per month.

H. H. Northrup, W. C. Noon Jr., Mrs. Emily J. Noon and H. M. Cake were chief witnesses called in the effort to loosen Armstrong's power over the trust estate. The testimony covered many of the details of the trust, which have been complicated by the long litigation and diversity of claims. Incidentally the place of Stuart Freeman as an heir in place of his mother, Mrs. Lulu A. Werner, who recently died in Los Angeles, was established.

H. M. Cake in the witness chair denied that there was any understanding that as a trustee of the trust estate he was to be a mere figurehead, or that Armstrong was to have a free hand, without regard to the other trustees.

Mrs. Noon said on the stand that she has not been in any way consulted regarding the management of the trusteeship, and denied that she has ever assented to an increase of salary for Armstrong, as has been alleged. She also said that Armstrong once told her that she should be appointed an executor or trustee, although he now opposes the appointment of any other person to assist him in the trusteeship. She said that the beneficiaries of the will desire herself and R. W. Wilbur as trustees to act with Armstrong.

Mrs. Noon denied that she has ever hampered the officers of the trust estate, and said that she has offered no suggestions as to how the business should be conducted. She denied that she has been a "disturbing element" in the business, or that she knew anything about it. She also stated that the property of the estate yields no profit except the portion invested in the W. C. Noon Bag company.

The trust estate carries 1,149 shares of the W. C. Noon Bag company, said to be worth at least $114,900, besides the $26,427 in dividends recently ordered distributed by Judge Cleland. The value of the property not specifically devised is estimated at $140,000, with an offset for debt of $70,000.

There was a large attendance and keen enthusiasm.

Schroeder is editor of the Barometer, the college paper. He has marked ability and is very popular. The decision of the judges was very satisfactory to the audience.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Cost Nothing To Try.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions or other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but 25 cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

GENERAL WOOD LEAVES ISLANDS

Commander of Philippines Will Spend Several Months in Europe.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, Feb. 1.—Army circles are much interested in the future of Major-General Leonard Wood, who has fixed upon this date for the expiration of his service in command of the Philippine division. He is not expected to return to the United States for some time, however, as he intends to spend several months in Europe on leave of absence for purposes of rest and recreation before resuming active duty.

He will probably not reach this country until fall and by that time the military situation may be considerably changed. It is understood that he can succeed General Frederick D. Grant in command of the department of the east if he wants it. On the other hand he may be ordered to Washington to assume the office and duties of chief of staff as the relief of General J. Franklin Bell.

Until General Bell was appointed the office of chief of staff, which is regarded as the most important office in the army, was invariably filled by the officer of highest rank. Lieutenant-Generals Young, Chaffee and Bates held that office in succession, and the appointment of General Bell followed the request of Lieutenant-General Henry C. Corbin to be assigned to the command of the southwestern division at St. Louis, instead of to the office of chief of staff, to which his rank naturally entitled him. General Arthur MacArthur succeeded General Corbin as lieutenant-general, but as he was not on the best of terms with Secretary Taft, it was deemed best to make no change in the office of chief of staff for his benefit. No such reasons would apply, however, in the case of General Wood, who, in addition to becoming the senior officer of the army in active service, is a warm personal friend of both the president and the secretary of war.

It is pointed out by several army officers that the appointment of General Wood as chief of staff would effectually remedy the present anomalous condition of affairs at the war department, due to the fact that Major-General Fred C. Ainsworth, the present adjutant general of the army is senior to the present chief of staff, and consequently is not called upon to perform the ordinary routine duties of his office, except in special cases, where he takes his orders direct from the president, the secretary of war or the assistant secretary of war.

U. OF O. OPPONENTS HAVE NEXT MOVE

Disappointed With Decision, They Must Now File Argument for Public Information.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Albany, Or., Feb. 1.—The advocates of the University of Oregon appropriation referendum allege they have been handed a lemon by Judge Galloway in his decision at Salem wherein he fixed the title to appear on the ballot at the June election, for that measure. George J. Pearce of Salem says the decision hands Eugene Palmer a "gold brick," and turns down Attorney-General Crawford's ruling and gives to the friends of the university more than they asked for. The title as decided upon by Judge Galloway is as follows: "An act to amend section 3529 of Bellinger and Cotton's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Oregon, by increasing the annual appropriation for the support and maintenance of the University of Oregon."

The friends of the measure, who are by the same token opponents of the appropriation, say the decision is rank, and that they are utterly disgusted with the outcome. In reply to Judge Galloway's explanation, they say it is ridiculous, and that not one voter in 500 has access to the act of 1901 or could think offhand of any plan to inform himself as to the amount appropriated at that time for the support of the university during that year or at the last session of the legislature.

Cyrus H. Walker, secretary of the Linn county council and one of the most active opponents of the appropriation, says the grange by this decision will be obliged to file an argument setting forth its side of the matter, and that it had hoped to avoid this expense. Now this seems to be absolutely necessary, so that the amounts of the appropriations of 1901 and 1907 may be set plainly before the people. The argument that they will file will be printed by the secretary of state and forwarded to all the county clerks of the state for distribution.

FORECLOSURE ACTION AGAINST KIVETTS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

La Grande, Or., Feb. 1.—The Bank of Commerce of Boise, Idaho, has begun foreclosure proceedings against W. R. Kivett, D. F. Kivett and D. M. Kelly to recover on a mortgage the sum of $27,035.72. A further sum as attorneys' fees is also asked. The property involved is what was formerly a part of the North Powder Lumber company, which has its base of operations at North Powder, Union county.

PETITIONS AGAINST PAROLE OF BROWN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Garfield, Wash., Feb. 1.—There is considerable opposition to the recommendation for releasing J. E. Brown from the penitentiary on parole. Brown shot down Thomas Turnbow on the streets of Garfield several years ago, and is serving a five years' term in the penitentiary. Turnbow lingered for a year and finally died from the effects of the wound. He was entirely helpless from the time he was shot until he died. When he was shot down he weighed over 200 pounds, and when he died he weighed less than 80.

Friends of Brown tried to get him released about a year ago, but petitions circulated by A. Ebersole, who married Turnbow's widow, and by brothers of Turnbow at Palouse were presented to Governor Mead and the parole was not granted. Several petitions are being circulated now with the same object in view. Brown still has about a year to serve.

BAKER CITY FORMS REPUBLICAN CLUB

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Baker City, Feb. 1.—Evincing a desire to organize into a Republican club for the purpose of working for party principles and candidates a number of Baker county's young Republicans met at the court house last night and organized by electing Henry McConnell president, D. A. Miles, secretary and Roy Corey, treasurer. Mr. Corey was also appointed as secretary of the committee that has in charge the Lincoln day banquet.

Senator J. N. Hart and W. G. Drowley were present and delivered short talks to the young men setting forth the necessity of harmony and unity on the part of all party workers. The speakers were well received and those present gave indication of enthusiasm.

It is probable that the Lincoln day banquet will be held at the Geiser Grand hotel, although that feature has not been permanently settled.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM AT KLAMATH FALLS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Klamath Falls, Or., Feb. 1.—The city council has decided to install one of the best electric fire alarm systems on the coast at a cost of $1,956, payable in city warrants. An Oakland, California, company has the contract. The system will include a bell striker, fire alarm boxes and all materials to complete the system. Only Main street will be covered at this time. Installation is to be made within 120 days.

This will give Klamath Falls, with her excellent waterworks, the very best of fire protection.

INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS

In home talk
"Kidney trouble" is inflammation of the kidneys without albumen.
"Bright's Disease" " " " " " with albumen.

In each the real trouble is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, hence a cure for one must be a cure for the other. There has been no cure for either.

But many kidney troubled people get well!!

True—because inflammation of the kidneys unless severe commonly gets well at first. But if it does not yield early and the inflammation persists, the real trouble begins.

You can see why kidney disease has been incurable and why the deaths have risen to over 170 per day—up to the discovery of Fulton's Renal Compound there was nothing known that would reduce inflammation in the kidney tissues.

The old kidney medicines were a misconception, irritating the inflamed kidneys to renewed efforts instead of allaying the inflammation, some of them being actually harmful. Result—physicians have abandoned them.

No matter whether you call it "kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," if it has been hanging on a few months recovery can be only hoped for through this specific. It has a proven efficiency in nearly 87 per cent of all cases. It is the only thing known that controls inflammation in the kidneys, which is the real difficulty with kidney troubled people.
