FOUGHT FOR OREGON IN INDIAN WARS One of the oldest pioneers in the northwest, a leader in the Yakima Indian war of 1855-56, Colonel Brigadier F. Shaw, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 1003 Rodney avenue.

Colonel Shaw was descended from revolutionary stock, was born in Missouri in 1829, and emigrated to Oregon in 1844, settling in Marion county. In the next year he served as a volunteer in the war with the Indians. He was a pioneer settler, and in 1855 he was partly owned by him.

MEXICO UNDER THE PANG

Portlander Returns From Southland With Gloomy Story of Conditions.

Mexico is feeling the effects of the financial flurry that swept over the states and business is dull and money scarce. The copper mines of the west coast, reputed to be the largest in the world, are closed down waiting for a healthier tone in the metal market.

Such in effect are the findings of E. T. Williams of E. T. Williams & Co., lumber buyers who just returned from an extended tour of Mexico, Nevada, Utah and Arizona. He also found very little weather, particularly in Arizona, where the mercury was busy either crowding into the bulb of the thermometer or trying to push through the top of the tube.

Mr. Williams found the weather study so interesting that he secured a copy of a summary of last year's weather report compiled by L. Wetmore, a rancher on the Rillito, near Tucson. During the year the minimum temperature was 20 degrees on December 20, while the maximum on July 3, in February the temperature was particularly unsettled.

In reference to the mines of Mexico, Mr. Williams says everything is practically at a standstill, which means that they are not buying any lumber at present. Portland has been shipping large quantities of mining timbers and material for railroad construction during the past several years, but under existing conditions Mr. Williams says the outlook is anything but encouraging.

"Mexico depends upon American prosperity," said Mr. Williams, "and hence the flurry here put a stop to industry in that country. Railroad construction has ceased except under old contracts, and the copper mines lie dormant. I spent most of my visit in Guaymas, on the west coast. It is a tropical place, and at this time of year, the mine-owners are waiting for a healthier tone in the copper market and in the meantime they are resting on their oars."

Mr. Williams' trip was one principally for recreation, although of late he has shipped several million feet of lumber into Guaymas for the railroads and mines.

Y. M. C. A. WILL HOLD ANNUAL MEETING Program and Election Will Be Held Tonight at the White Temple.

This evening at 6:30 in the White Temple, the Y. M. C. A. members will hold their annual dinner and business meeting to be followed by an address, illustrated by charts and slides, on general educational work, by George B. Hodges of New York city. At the business meeting the annual report, which has already been published, will be presented and passed on by the directors.

The Y. M. C. A. building speaks in high praise of the work which has been accomplished in Portland. He said: "The Y. M. C. A. leaders of the country look upon Portland as a mecca for educational work because it is here that results are brought about. Portland is one of the leaders in advertising over the world because of this fact."

Experts Say Quality Better Than Output of Argentine or Australia.

Leslie M. Scott, son of H. W. Scott, has purchased through Food and Dairy Commissioner J. W. Bailey, 100 head of Lincoln ewes of J. B. Stump, Monmouth. He has also bought two regimouth imported rams. The sheep are one two and three-year-olds and are practically all from the Dudding flock in England. The sheep are placed on the Scott farm southeast of the city.

"For the production of long wool stock," says J. W. Bailey, "the authorities are of one accord in saying that the Willamette valley is surpassed neither by Argentine nor England. The wool of the Willamette valley is produced by experts to contain more life than the best Argentine, Australian or English flocks can produce."

"This is due to the mild winters during which the sheep can live in the open pasture practically all the time. Where they have to live for weeks at a time in close sheds, the wool will show it. Another factor is the variety of green feed always at hand that puts life in the product."

"If we can get stockmen with money to give the Willamette valley the proper trial I thoroughly believe we will astonish the world in the quality of wool we can produce. Not only are the wool growers certain that the Willamette valley is most favorable to producing wool, but also are the wool manufacturers who have looked into the matter. They say with half the care given sheep in the east the Willamette valley will produce a better quality of wool by far."

EUGENE BOASTS THAT THE BEAUTIFUL IS SHY (Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Eugene, Or., Feb. 4.—Lane county people are rejoicing over the agreeable change in the weather in the past 36 hours. The change from clear cold weather, with the thermometer several degrees below the freezing point, to a warm rain was most welcome. No snow fell in Eugene or the surrounding country yesterday while at Albany, only 10 miles north, nearly an inch is reported and at Salem more than that fell. There has not been a flake of snow in Eugene this winter, although in the mountainous districts of Lane county there was quite a snow storm yesterday and the night before.
