

EXHIBITS IN CASE OF ANDERSON CONFESSION

Are You Sick?

Much sickness is due to a weak nervous system. Yours may be. If it is, you cannot get well until you restore nerve strength. Your nervous system is nature's power house; the organs of your body get their power from it. If the power is not there, the action of the organs is weak, and disease (sickness) follows. Dr. Miles' Nerve Cures the sick because it soothes the irritated and tired nerves and gives the system a chance to recuperate. Try it, and see if you do not quickly feel its beneficial effect.

The Journal is enabled to publish today the accompanying facsimile reproductions of the chart and instructions in cipher prepared in prison by Joseph Anderson, the alleged murderer of Harry Logan, and given by him to a fellow prisoner whom he hoped would carry out his instructions to murder the two witnesses who are relied upon to establish the fact of Anderson's guilt. Full details of the plot, as well as the confession that implicates Anderson in the commission of the murder of Conductor Nevins and the robbery of several citizens, were published in The Journal yesterday. These disclosures are the culmination of three months' careful, clever and persistent detective work on the part of Detectives Jones and Tichenor. Detail by detail the evidence has been worked out and pieced together until today an overwhelming mass of testimony, physical and oral, is at hand and ready to be presented in court when Joseph Anderson faces the bar of justice next Tuesday to answer for the crime of murder. In their work the detectives have received invaluable assistance from time to time from Deputy Sheriff Arch Leonard, and such credit as attaches to those engaged in the difficult task of tracking down the slayer of Harry Logan is shared by him.

The Revolver Picture.
Photographic reproduction of the revolver, holster and cartridge belt found by Detectives Jones and Tichenor buried beneath four feet of mud and water in the slough behind the house at 482 East Washington street. It is believed to be the weapon with which Harry Logan was murdered. Information concerning the exact spot where the gun and accoutrements could be found was confided to Jacob Hill by Joe Anderson while the men were fellow prisoners at the county jail. This information was later given by Hill to the detectives, who found the weapon at the place indicated last Sunday. Anderson was arrested by Jones and Tichenor in the Washington-street house three months ago. Anderson told Hill that he had thrown the gun into the slough from the window of his room upon the approach of the detectives. The truth of the statement, at that point of time, is borne out by the condition of the leather and stitching of the belt and holster, and by the oxidation of the lead bullets in the cartridges.

Facsimile Out.
Facsimile reproduction of diagram made by Joe Anderson in the county jail and given by him to his fellow prisoner, Jacob Hill, for the latter's guidance and instruction. At the lower edge of the cut, where the two arrows converge, is the spot where Harry Logan was murdered. It was within a few feet of this spot that the old mackintosh, identified as the property of Anderson, was found on the night of the murder. The arrow in the upper right hand corner indicates the small bridge where Anderson asked Hill to place a mackintosh coat identical with that found near the scene of the murder in order that it might be "discovered" by Anderson's friends and thus discredit the importance of the other coat as convincing evidence against the murderer. In the upper left hand corner is indicated the location of the saloon, said to be the loafing place of Pete Hailer, one of the witnesses against him, and who is one of the men whom Anderson had marked for death.

Facsimile of memorandum prepared by Joe Anderson and given by him to Jacob Hill while both men were confined in the county jail. It contains the names of the limit placed on municipalities by the constitution of the state. The assessed valuation of the whole town is but $12,000.

BROADER FIELDS OPEN TO VALLEY

Intense Farming Will Soon Characterize Willamette, Says Federal Official.

BROADER FIELDS OPEN TO VALLEY

Intense Farming Will Soon Characterize Willamette, Says Federal Official.

That within the next 10 years practically the entire Willamette valley will be devoted to intense farming; that dairying and the cultivation of fruits will be the chief occupation of the farmers, and that all the land which is not absolutely level will be irrigated, is the opinion of A. F. Hitt, of Weiser, Idaho, special field agent of the bureau of statistics of the United States department of agriculture, who is at the Imperial hotel.

From observations gathered during his travels Mr. Hitt believes the evolution of this great tract of land has already begun. Farms of 100 acres or more are being divided, more people are coming in and fruit trees are gradually being planted. Stock raising, too, such as sheep and goats, Mr. Hitt believes, is to be another feature of the landowners of the near future in the Willamette valley.

"There are ample water facilities for the majority of the farms on the hillside rolling country," Mr. Hitt said this morning, "and the farmers have already begun to utilize this process of aiding growth and making the valley more fertile. In the course of the next 10 years I believe the Willamette will be one of the greatest fruit-raising and dairying valleys in the country.

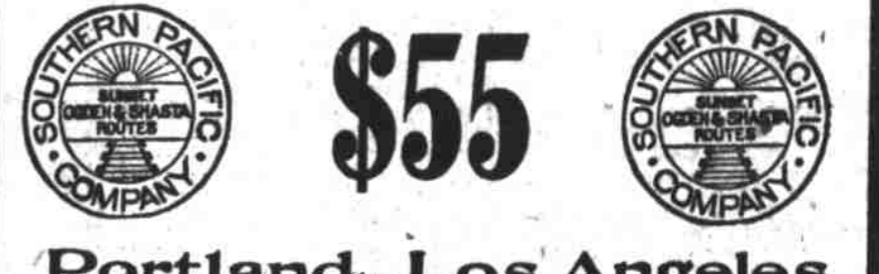

According to Mr. Hitt the farmers of Oregon in many cases, do not take the proper care of their stock, and more particularly with reference to sheep, during the winter months.

"I have observed during the last few days, when the snow storm was on, that many farmers allowed their sheep to run loose in their pastures without any protection whatever, and right at a time when the ewes were lambling," he said regarding the sheep industry. "I saw a number of these animals out in the snow and dead lambs lying about everywhere. Whenever I saw a bunch of sheep almost invariably it was the case that the bodies of many of the young could be seen in the same field, all having died." Mr. Hitt said.

Card and Holt are still in the lead when one of the great races of Copeland and Kruse. Harrison lost two and one half laps last night. Swartz took a bad fall and lost one and one quarter laps. Little of St. Paul lost one lap. Swartz skated a pretty race, but failed to recover any lost laps. Brown of Tacoma is getting a bad reputation, and he held his own last night. Tonight at 8 o'clock the race will be continued.

WANT REAL WHEAT PIT IN BOARD OF TRADE

Association Is Considering Plans for Establishment of General Trading Room.

President T. S. Townsend of the Portland board of trade, brought up at a monthly meeting of that organization last evening the proposition to establish a trading room at the quarters that the board will occupy in the new Commercial Club building at Fifth and Oak streets. It was also proposed that the board should incorporate, on a basis of 1,000 membership and a capital stock of $5 per share, each member to hold a share of stock.

Fred Muller, the newly elected secretary, made an address upon the subject of the mercantile features of a board of trade, and the principles upon which successful boards of trade in some eastern cities are conducted. A part of his address follows:

"The general objects and purposes of a board of trade are: To maintain a commercial exchange. To promote uniformity in the customs and usages of merchants; to inculcate principles of justice and equity in trade; to facilitate the speedy adjustment of business disputes; to acquire and disseminate valuable commercial and economic information; and generally to secure to its members the benefits of cooperation in the furtherance of their legitimate pursuits; to secure uniformity in commercial laws and customs and to promote equitable principles.

"The board of trade should facilitate the buying and selling of commodities by providing a large trading room; by bringing together in that room all of the dealers, the buyers and sellers of products; by equipping such trading room with various facilities, such as tables for the display of samples; by providing space for the telegraph and telephone companies, so that messages may be received and transmitted with promptness; by arrangements made with the telegraph companies for the receipt of the various markets of the world; by displaying the continuous quotations of such markets, as well as other general information upon blackboards in such trading room, thus giving to the members all the information which is needed to aid them in carrying on their business intelligently; by the framing of a harmony of rules, which members must act, and which rules reduce this business to such a system as to enable large volumes of business to be transacted with comparatively few disputes."

ESTACADA POURS OIL ON TROUBLED WATERS

W. A. Heylman Elected by Council to Fill Mayor's Vacated Chair.

W. A. Heylman took the oath of office as mayor of Estacada at a meeting of the council last night. The installation of Heylman marks a complete victory for the anti-Reed forces at Estacada. Mr. Heylman was the first to start the opposition ball rolling against J. W. Reed, who had been convicted of participating in the Sellwood election frauds and who controlled affairs in Estacada for a year or so.

Dr. W. K. Haviland resigned his position as mayor last week because he was moving from the city, and Mr. Heylman's name was placed before the council by John Lovelace. Dr. Haviland was elected over Reed last June after one of the hottest fights any small municipality ever waged. Mr. Heylman conducted Haviland's campaign.

When Mr. Heylman was elected last week Councilman Jones, the only Reed man remaining in the council, and who was also president of the council, resigned. Councilman Howe, who was elected on the Reed ticket, voted for Heylman. In accepting the office last night Mr. Heylman said:

"You have seen fit to confer upon me the highest office within the gift of the citizens of Estacada, and I assure you that it is fully appreciated by me. I believe that I am fully conscious of the importance of the position and shall try to conduct myself during my incumbency so that you will not have occasion to regret your action."

"The only policy I have to state at this time is to work in harmony with you for the betterment of the city and of its whole people. I shall not appoint new committees, but the old committees will continue as appointed by Mr. Haviland.

"My predecessor, whose resignation made it possible for you to tender me this honor, has made a very good mayor. I believe he has guarded the interests of the people with a jealous regard that benefits all good public officials. He has brought about many good and substantial improvements during his administration and I believe at the least possible cost to the taxpayers.

"I hope to be able soon to outline a systematic policy by which we may be able to procure added industries that will furnish our people with adequate employment without stimulating the factional feelings that have been accomplished with the only employment that has heretofore been offered to our people."

Mr. Heylman is president of the Estacada State bank and is regarded as a capable business man and able financier.

During the administration of Dr. Haviland the streets of Estacada were planked and many other improvements accomplished. The city refused to pay the interest on the $10,000 water bond issue on the ground that the issue was in excess of the limit placed on municipalities by the constitution of the state. The assessed valuation of the whole town is but $12,000.

POOR WOMEN AS USUAL BLAMED FOR TROUBLE

License Committee Can Find No Others to Censure for Saloon Brawls.

City Attorney Kavanaugh expects to have the new city ordinance basing women from saloons ready for presentation at the next meeting of the city council. Mr. Kavanaugh is busily engaged on the measure and finds it one of the most difficult problems which has come up since he took his office. There are no state laws upon which to base the new ordinance and to make it constitutional requires the most careful construction.

The necessity of having such an act on the city statute books was made apparent by the examination of a large number of saloonkeepers by the liquor license committee recently. In nearly every case examined the members found that women were the cause of the trouble. The members thought the best way to stop this was to prohibit women entering saloons.
