FIVE GENERATIONS OF ONE FAMILY.

Reading from left to right the five generations are: Mrs. E. Havestrah, Mrs. M. Daugherty, Mrs. M. Sterling, Mrs. Edna Churchman and her son, Harold Churchman.

Five generations, the youngest member being but two months old and the oldest 81 years of age, are shown in the accompanying photograph.

Mrs. M. Sterling, formerly Mrs. James McClean, who crossed the plains in the fifties, now living at Columbus, Washington, is the great-great-grandmother of the little tot shown in the picture. Her daughter is Mrs. E. Havestrah, of Cornelius. Mrs. M. Daugherty, of Albina, the daughter of Mrs. Havestrah, makes the third generation, and Mrs. Edna Churchman, of Lent, the fourth. Harold Churchman is the fifth member of the family.

HURLED BY TRAIN; WALKS TO HOSPITAL

Lehigh Valley Brakeman Struck by Express Running 60 Miles an Hour.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 8.—Jesse B. Stege, a Lehigh Valley brakeman, residing at Sayre, was struck by an express train running at 60 miles an hour last night, and, while he fell unconscious on the embankment, he soon recovered, and, to the astonishment of his fellow-trainmen who thought he had been killed, he walked to the hospital. A sprained arm and badly bruised back appear to be the extent of his injuries.

DAM BACKS WATER THAT FLOATS HOUSES

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Spokane, Wash., Feb. 8.—Three houses are floating in the river and bumping against the five-mile dam. The owners abandoned them three days ago when the snow began to melt and the water to rise. Articles of furniture can be seen in the buildings from the bank. The Washington Water Power company, which built the dam, claims to have notified the residents that when the flumes were closed the water would be backed up so high that they would have to move their houses. The buildings are all large ones, averaging about eight rooms.

INNOCENT WOMAN DOGGED BY FATE

Regarded as an "Ogress" She Is Accused of Murder of Several Children.

Paris, Feb. 8.—The court at Bourges this afternoon acquitted Jeanne Weber, who had become known throughout France as "the Ogress" and ordered her to be set free immediately.

This is the last act of one of the most extraordinary judicial tragedies in the history of the country. Nearly two years ago Jeanne Weber was denounced by her sister-in-law and her neighbors as a murderer. The crime of which she was accused was the horrible one of having strangled two of her own children and two of her little nephews. In each case the child had died after it had been alone with Jeanne Weber.

The newspapers gave the woman the title of "the Ogress," and as French newspapers often do, prejudiced the case and found the woman guilty. During her trial all sorts of terrible stories about her past were published, but not one of these stories could be proved, and eventually, after a long trial, Jeanne Weber was acquitted and set free. She was obliged to change her name, as no landlord would take her in, for nobody with children would live in the same house with her. For a few months she lived unmolested in a wretched lodging in Paris. But one day a former

"TIN" SOLDIER DOES NOT LIKE ARMY LIFE

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 8.—Following the assertion made to his superior officers and to his associates that "the language the boys use is shocking and the food is vile," Paul D. Morrison, a clerk in the Indiana National bank and a member of the Indiana National Guard, has applied for his discharge. It was while doing strike duty at Muncie that young Morrison is said to have taken exception to the language of his fellow soldiers, and subsequently asked for permission to come to Indianapolis on sick leave.

THE CONTRACT FOR SALEM-ALBANY LINE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Albany, Or., Feb. 8.—The Albany Lumber company has been awarded the contract for the ties to be used in building the electric line between Salem and Albany. As soon as cut the ties are to be placed on the line. In this city franchises have been granted the company to traverse Sixth and Second streets.

Big Crowds.

The old Wells Fargo building at the corner of Fourth and Yamhill streets, was thronged all day Saturday by large crowds of bargain hunters. A large stock of ladies' and men's tailor-made suits, furnishing goods, dry goods, cravattes, shoes, hats, caps, top and bottom skirts, etc. from the best eastern and Parisian manufacturers, bought by a local concern, were offered for sale at a small fraction of the actual cost. Notwithstanding the heavy selling there are still great quantities of goods left and the sale will be continued all this week and until sold.

The Democratic state central committee of the state of Washington has declared unanimously in favor of William J. Bryan for president. The state convention will be held at Spokane in May.

SEEKS AMENDMENT TO PROTECT GROWERS

Would Make It Criminal Offense for Federal Employee to Issue False Statistics.

Washington, Feb. 8.—In the house the final bill was again up for consideration today, and the debate was opened on a substitute by Ollie James, Kentucky, for the amendment offered yesterday making it a criminal offense for any officer or employee of the government to issue any false statistics or information relative to products of the soil.

Mr. James explained his amendment, saying he specially desired to reach persons in the agricultural department who are to be manipulated by a lot of unscrupulous and thieves that prey upon the farmers of the country.

DISLIKES AMERICAN WOMEN'S HAIR DRESS

French Dresser Says They Use Only 20 Out of 300 Separate Styles.

New York, Feb. 8.—Concluding a study of hair dressing in the theatres, restaurants and on the street, in which he spent four weeks, George Gourdeau, president of the Association of Hair Dressers of Paris, declared that the styles used by women of New York are too monotonous. "There are 300 separate and distinct fashions of dressing the hair," said Mr. Gourdeau, "but in New York the women seem to confine themselves to 20 at the most. They have the advantage in stature and in physical beauty over their European cousins, and if they would only show more individuality in their hair-dressing they would be the most beautiful body of women the world has ever seen." While in New York, Mr. Gourdeau says, he has consulted with American hair-dressers and had advised them to encourage more diversity in the styles of arranging the hair.
