Portland Men Propose to Start New Coast Line.

A steamer line between Portland and Coquille and intermediate harbors is being arranged for through the transportation committee of the Portland Those chamber of commerce. At the head of the project are two young Portland men who are practical steamship men and who are practical steamship men and navigators, and who are investing some of their own capital in the line. A suitable vessel is being negotiated for, and it is said the boat will be especially adapted to the development of the trade of the small ports along the coast. The boat will have a draft of eight and a half feet. She will call at Astoria, Bay City, Tillamook, Ban-don and Coquille, and perhaps at Coos Bay, although the latter point has not yet been included in the route.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT.

The steamer Roanoke left last night for San Pedro and way ports. The steamer Rose City leaves this after-neon for San Francisco. The steamer Alliance will be at the foot of Couch street this evening from Coos Bay.
