SINNOTT OUT FOR MANNING'S JOB

Portland Man Announces Candidacy for District Attorney's Office.

Roger B. Sinnott, a well known attorney of the city, has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for district attorney. He puts forward the oath of office required by the constitution of Oregon as the platform upon which he will make the race and promises to faithfully, honestly and impartially discharge the duties of the office should he be elected.

Mr. Sinnott's announcement of candidacy is as follows:

"To the Republican Voters of Multnomah County—I herewith submit for your consideration my candidacy for nomination for district attorney."

My platform is the oath of office, as follows: Roger B. Sinnott, do solemnly swear that I will support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of Oregon, and the laws thereof, and I will faithfully, honestly and impartially discharge the duties of district attorney for the Fourth judicial district in and for the county of Multnomah, state of Oregon, during my continuance therein, to the best of my ability. So help me God.

Was Read Extended Practice. Mr. Sinnott has been a practitioner at the Portland bar since 1895, having moved here from The Dalles, where he was admitted to the bar in 1892. He

THIS MAN WAS STRUNG, AND WITH A STRING, TOO

Fidgety people are always peculiar. He was a little fidgety sort of a fellow. He was particularly nervous. He was a great talker. When in conversation with a friend he had a habit of invariably picking a hair from the other fellow's coat collar. Or he would flip an imaginary speck from the shoulder of the one he was talking with. It was all a habit. It annoyed all his friends, but none of them had the nerve to tell him of the fact. They would brush their clothes thoroughly when they knew they were going to meet the man with the fidgety habits. But it was of no use. The fidgety one continued to pick and flip the imaginary specks or bits of thread from the other person's coat.

The man with the habit showed up at the Hotel Portland the other day. One of his friends—perhaps it was one of his enemies—knew that the fidgety guy was to be there. So they met.

The fellow who didn't like the fidgety guy had a little innocent piece of thread protruding from his buttonhole. He pulled it out and held it out prominently. The two began to talk.

The conversation had hardly commenced when the fidgety one reached for the little piece of thread. He picked it. More came through the buttonhole and he pulled it. Thread came from the coat lapel by the yard. The fidgets was determined and he pulled hand over hand. And then he saw the joke. There was a whole spool of thread at the other end of the innocent piece which stuck out of the buttonhole. Fidgets, it is said, has been cured.

is a graduate of the Notre Dame university, Notre Dame, Indiana, where he took a degree in both the academic and law departments. While practicing in The Dalles he was associated with Judge A. S. Bennett and is still associated with him in Judge Bennett's civil practice in Multnomah county.

The candidate has always taken a prominent part in the political and commercial life of Oregon. Colonel N. E. Sinnott, father of Roger Sinnott, was owner and manager of the Umattilla house at The Dalles for 47 years and was prominent and influential in eastern Oregon Republican politics. Roger Sinnott disposed of his interests in The Dalles several years ago, and upon coming to Portland proved his faith in this city by investing his all in real estate here. He is a member of the firm of Sinnott and Adams with offices in the Chamber of Commerce.

Four Candidates in Field. The entrance of Mr. Sinnott into the field makes four candidates for the Republican nomination who have announced their candidacy, with two potential candidates. Gus Moser, Waldemar Seton, Sinnott and Westbrook have come out for the office openly, while it is believed that George J. Cameron and J. J. Fitzgerald are looking at the battlefield with some desire to get into the midst of it.

To the present time the Republican candidates for county offices who have come forward are about as follows: For sheriff, R. L. Stevens and N. A. Bird; for county clerk, Frank S. Fields; for county commissioner, W. L. Lotan; for county auditor, Carl Branson; for circuit judge, Earl C. Bronaugh, Robert W. Morrow, Senator, B. D. Sigler; for assessor, B. D. Sigler; for justice of the peace, William

BLOOD SHINES IN KELLAHER'S EYE

Will Invoke Referendum, If Necessary, to Kill the Vehicle Ordinance.

Councilman Kellaher announced yesterday that he would use the referendum on the vehicle tax ordinance which passed the council Thursday if Mayor Lane did not veto it. He said that if Mayor Lane vetoed the ordinance he did not believe that the measure would be passed over the veto because six members of the council voted against the measure and nine for it. In order to pass the ordinance over Mayor Lane's veto 10 votes would be required, and Mr. Kellaher does not believe the defenders of the act can get the extra vote.

Councilman Kellaher takes his stand in the belief that he is backed up by nearly all the large business interests of the city who fought the measure for nearly a year in the council. He says that the measure stands at present directly in opposition to the wish of a large majority of citizens and that it will go down in defeat before the referendum.

Ask Reduction in Rate. About a year ago the Draymen's association came to the council and asked that the vehicle tax ordinance be changed so as to reduce the tax against their vehicles from $10 a year to $5, which amount they claimed was the maximum for any city on the Pacific coast. This was the start of the fight to change the ordinance which has been steadily opposed by Councilman Kellaher.

Many new ordinances were drafted and submitted to the license committee of the council, which finally introduced one taxing all vehicles used for hire. Upon the introduction of the ordinance, Councilman Menefee introduced a substitute ordinance which classified the various vehicles and provided for a general taxation of every carriage or wagon in the city save those for pleasure only.

Representative business men oppose the present ordinance, claiming that it is illegal and cannot be sustained in the courts. They say that they are opposed to the measure upon them that is not warranted by the reason of their large expense in conducting their business.

Feeling Still Remains. The new ordinance provides that all the money received from taxing vehicles shall go into the street repair fund and can be used for no other purpose. Councilman Menefee based his ordinance on the belief that any person who uses the streets of the city would be glad to pay a small sum each year to aid in keeping them in good condition. He said he did not believe it would work a hardship on any person or firm whom it would affect and would result in general good to the city.

Great interest was manifested in the ordinance and its fate was watched closely by friend and foe alike. Hot debates preceded its passage and the feeling has not diminished yet. The interest in the battle has been turned from the council chamber to Mayor

Lane to see whether he will veto the ordinance or not. If he does there will be a lively scramble among the councilmen to secure the extra vote necessary to pass it over the veto.

SHINING COLLEGE SHOES

Bootblack's Low Rate Not by Any Means a Loss to Him.

(New York Sun.) At one of the colleges there is a bootblack who advertises a monthly rate of 50 cents and a yearly rate of $3.50 for an unlimited number of shins. Some one figuring on the basis of forty weeks to a college year made it out that a student could get about $14 worth of shins for $3.50.

"I don't see how that pays you," he said to the bootblack.

"Well, it means that if I can get enough men to start with I can begin each year with a surety of an income of more than $1,000," the bootblack said. "You see, at the start of the college year, when the students have money, they don't mind paying $3.50, and then they are fixed for the year."

"They figure out that the flat rate is better for them than having to pay each time. Then, again if they took a shine only when they needed it they'd get less of them, I think.

"Anyway, I can sell them shoe laces and other things like that on the side to make my income big enough. Each side thinks the other is getting the worst of it and both are pleased."

Although Secretary Taft is a Yale man and has been spoken of as the Yale candidate for the presidency, the university authorities have refused to allow the Yale club of Connecticut to hold a banquet in his honor in the Yale dining hall. The reason assigned is the management is unwilling that any of the university buildings should be used for political purposes.
