The funeral services of the late John Cran, the pioneer merchant of Portland, were held in accordance with his wishes, quietly from his home, 793 Johnson street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. A. A. Morrison conducted the services, after the stately and simple form of the Episcopal church. The pall bearers were W. S. Sibson, Ellis G. Hughes, Fred Holman, A. H. Birrell, Wm. A. McCrea and J. A. Taylor. Mr. Cran had been a familiar figure in Portland for many years and his passing is deeply regretted by many. He was a most unostentatious and kindly man, who made and kept a host of friends. Mr. Cran's death, which occurred Thursday night, was unexpected, the result of pneumonia following an attack of grip. He leaves a wife, a brother who lives in British Columbia and two brothers and two sisters in Scotland. Mrs. H. W. Mitchell and Mrs. W. N. Bellinger are nieces of his wife.

Certain residents of Portland are looking for one J. W. Hughs, whom they allege has been taking their good money without making adequate returns for it. The man has been representing himself as the agent of a Chicago artist and collects pictures which he agrees to reproduce upon pillow coverings for a nominal sum. One woman who gave the man several photographs of members of her family, together with $1.30, failed to get the pillow covers or the photographs. Finally, after waiting a considerable period, she wrote to Chicago and received the reply that Hughs is not connected with the fir mand she had been robbed. It is said Hughs has been taking orders for the pictures from many persons and has reaped a little harvest as the result of his operations.

The executive committee of the Republican county central committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon, but nothing of importance was done. The members of the committee discussed the proposed mass meeting, but no action was taken additional to that of a week ago, when it was decided to put off the date of the precinct meetings until between the first and the tenth of March. The mass convention will be held within a few days after the election of the precinct delegates. The time for calling the precinct meetings has been left in the hands of the chairman of the central committee.

Claude Eggleston, the young cigar dealer who pleaded guilty in the United States district court to complicity in robbing the Sellwood postoffice a year ago, was sentenced to serve five years in the federal prison at McNeil's island by Judge Charles E. Wolverton yesterday, and sentence was suspended during good behavior. Eggleston is a confirmed drinker, and Judge Wolverton, in suspending sentence, imposed the condition that Eggleston take a cure at some institution and report to the court every 30 days. Louis Gilbride, the last one of the postoffice gang, was also sentenced yesterday. He was fined $150.

Lincoln's birthday was celebrated last night by the east side members of the G. A. R. in the G. A. R. assembly hall, East Pine street and Grand avenue. The program consisted of instrumental and vocal music and addresses by members of the G. A. R. J. A. Newell read a paper on the early life of Lincoln. Rev. W. T. Kerr described Lincoln's funeral at Springfield, Illinois. Department Commander F. A. Blythe of Hood River was present and made an informal talk. M. L. Pratt, Cicero Newell and others made short talks on various phases of the "martyred president's" character.

The advertising columns of today's Journal contain an announcement of special prices on dental work, made for a few days by the Union Dental Parlors. Since this institution opened at the corner of First and Morrison streets the operators have increased at the rate of one a week. Now every available space is occupied with a dental chair. Good equipment and good skill are the two requisites demanded by the management of the Union Dental Parlors.

Mrs. Mary E. Hiatt, missionary and Christian worker, mother of Mrs. Eleanor H. Boyd, of 594 Fifth street, died yesterday at Pocahontas, Iowa, where she recently went from Portland. Mrs. Hiatt left many friends in Portland, where she was well known for many years. She was born in Mahaska county, Iowa, in 1841, being engaged in missionary work for over 40 years in the United States and Canada.

At the First Christian Bible school at Park and Columbia streets this morning at 10 o'clock a special program will be rendered in charge of the young ladies' class, in honor of Phelatheans' day. The following is the program: Organ prelude, Mrs. G. Evert Baker; anthem, choir; violin solo, Miss Frances Meacham; reading, "Potatoes," Miss Inez Buckner; solo, "Resignation," Miss Ellen Flook; chorus, by the Phelatheans.

Detectives Price and Coleman last night arrested Gee Lee, Joe Negrone and James Kilroy for participating in the conduct of a lottery game at 348 Couch street. The Chinese was charged with conducting the game, and the two white men with visiting a lottery game. All gave bail for their appearance in the police court Monday morning to answer to the charges.

Young people of the First Congregational church enjoyed a Valentine party at the church Friday night. Games formed the chief features of the night's entertainment, and ice cream and cake were served. Those in charge of the affair were W. B. Scott, Miss E. Duke, Mr. House Jr. and Dr. Dyott.

Bald-headed men live with the hope that by some miracle or by the discovery of a new hair tonic the luxuriant growth which they enjoyed in their youth will some day return to the ever-shiny pate.

The Hairless Man's Epitaph: "Gone but Not Forgotten."

You have all heard of the dream of the rarebit fiend, of the nightmare of the person who eats candy and cake late at night, and of the one who dreams that he is falling down, down, down—until he awakens. But did you ever hear of the dream of the one with the head which is without a hair?

"Every time I take off my hat I imagine someone is looking at my bald spot," a Portland man said yesterday. "And every time I go into a barber shop I have hopes that possibly I shall at last run across a barber who can restore to me my hair. My hair! I love to say the word.

"I am not a young man, but the question of being minus a scalp protector is always on my mind. I dream about hair. My dreams are always to the effect that my head is covered again with as fine a growth as ever was cut by a barber.

"The other night I had one of these dreams. It seemed that I was rich, also. All day long I sat around admiring my hair. I didn't care much about the riches and thought of nothing but the new head of hair. Then I would get a mirror and look at it. And then I would comb and brush it. At last, I thought, the hair miracle has worked all the wonders which away down in my heart I felt sure would come. And then—and then I awoke.

"I ran my hand over my sleepy head. The same two or three measley hairs greeted my hand. I sighed. I groaned. I took a long breath. Then I went back to sleep."

The Strayer North End mission, having moved from their cramped quarters to the two-story brick building at Couch and Fourth streets, will publicly reopen the same tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The mission is open all night ready to give a helping hand to the penniless, hungry, cold and shelterless, no matter what their religion. The public is cordially invited to attend and take note of the character of the work being done here.

KIND HUSBAND GAVE WIFE $50 IN 7 YEARS

Then Forgot Her Altogether and Moved Out Taking About $3,000.

Lilia R. Elliott, who was married on January 1, 1901, to Edward J. Elliott, alleges that she has had only $50 with which to buy clothing for herself in more than seven years of married life. Her husband is a postal clerk and makes $110 per month, she says, but he has been scant in his allowance, and she has had to wash and scrub for her living.

In her suit for divorce containing these allegations Mrs. Elliott says that on September 1, 1907, her husband left her and took with him $3,000 they had accumulated. She says he went to California, in which state they were married. She also alleges that he was cruel in his treatment.

Mrs. Elliott asks to be given certain property in Portland and $30 per month alimony, in addition to her freedom.

INCREASED TRAFFIC.

East Burnside and Union Avenue Becoming a Notable Shopping District.

The notable improvement in the neighborhood of the junction of Union avenue and East Burnside street has been the subject of much favorable comment.

"Since we opened the big east side store," said Louis Gevurtz yesterday, "we have noted that the travel around this corner has greatly increased. People from all portions of the east side come in here and express surprise at the improvement of shopping resources in this neighborhood. We think our four-story new brick will compare mighty favorably with the best mercantile concerns on the west side. We have every modern convenience—electric lights, the latest type of passenger elevators and splendid salesrooms. The fitting rooms in our ladies ready-to-wear garment section are the best in town. We solicit comparison with even our west side brethren, feeling secure in the long reiterated claim that we are second to none for completeness of stock. In fact we carry many exclusive lines of furniture, carpets, etc., that will be appreciated by every critical shopper. We most heartily ask people to inspect our mammoth stock of absolutely new goods. We'll be glad to show you through as a visitor if you chose to give us a call, feeling certain that we will not be without your patronage very long."

HASSALO LODGE ENTERTAINS I. O. O. F.

Four hundred Odd Fellows attended the third of a series of entertainments given by Hassalo lodge No. 15, I. O. O. F., in the I. O. O. F. west side temple, Friday evening. Quite an elaborate program was rendered. P. W. Stewart, master of ceremonies, delivered an address of welcome, after which the following program was rendered: Solo, Mr. Ross; address, 'Odd Fellowship," Judge M. C. George, P. G.; duet, Ross and Meyer; recitation, "Oregon," Mr. Foote; solo, Fred P. Holm.

At the banquet following toasts were proposed by Toastmaster Stewart, and were responded to as follows: "The Old Guard," Henry S. Westbrook; "Fraternity," Frederick Cosens; "Our Sister Lodges," Mr. Raker; "Hassalo Lodge," W. F. Gloss.

OPENING AUSPICIOUS.

Crowds Throng the New Annex From Morning Until Night.

A firm that has broken all records for the time it has been in business, is the Annex, the new establishment on the corner of Alder and Fifth streets.

The opening day will long be remembered by the shopping public, as the doors had to be closed many times during the day to relieve the congestion, and there has been but little cessation in the interest manifested in this emporium since. In speaking of the success of the Annex yesterday the manager said: "Our phenomenal success is due to the fact that we give the people what we advertise and we do not exaggerate the values. When we say an article is so-and-so and is on sale at such and such a price, we mean it. The coming week we will place on sale thousands of dollars' worth of new merchandise in women's and men's ready-to-wear apparel at prices that cannot be equaled anywhere. Watch our ads in The Journal for some startling announcements of price reductions on new spring apparel."

CONIFF SAYS HE HAS LOTS OF COAL

Coast Range Coal Co., He Declares, Is Here to Stay, With $7 Product.

"They are trying to drive me out of the city, but I will not go," said Harry Coniff, manager of the Coast Range Coal company, who recently came to the city and opened an office to put the product of the company he represents on the market. "I will remain in this city and do business regardless of what the other fuel dealers say. The coal I sell speaks for itself and every person who has used it will testify to its quality."

Mr. Coniff several days ago made the statement that he was fighting the fuel combination in this city and was able to furnish pure lignite coal from the mine of the corporation of which he is a member at Littell, Washington, at $7 a ton, and that the coal was of the same quality as all other coal from Centralia country which was being sold in this city for $10 to $11 a ton. This statement aroused the ire of several coal dealers in this city, who immediately replied to Coniff's statements and attacked his integrity in the matter.

"The Evening Telegram inadvertently gave the name of my company as the West Coast Coal company, when in reality it is the Coast Range Coal company, incorporated under the laws of the state of Washington. I am a member of the corporation, and we own a mine at Littell, five miles from Centralia. Our mine is also within a stone's throw of the mines owned by the Northern Pacific and also only a short distance from mines of the men who are attacking me, from which they sell coal for $10 a ton in this city.

"We have been in business in Portland only about a month and all our coal is handled direct from the cars, but we intend to put in bunkers in the near future. Our customers are satisfied, as shown by the fact that such firms as Gadsby & Sons, Bushong & Co., Rosenthals, Dunn-Lawrence company, Eilers Piano House and many others are using it, and they have renewed their orders."

The accompanying article, which appeared in last night's paper, speaks for itself.

Saturday evening, Brigadier Jenkins and Adjutant Storey of Seattle will do a special service.

CONCERT WELL ATTENDED.

Fine Eilers Recital Attracts Enthusiastic Musical Audience.

The exceptionally fine program arranged for the weekly Pianola recital at Eilers Piano House attracted an enthusiastic audience of music lovers to the "House of Highest Quality" last Friday evening.

The program was well chosen, including a number of exceedingly difficult piano numbers which were rendered in an artistic manner with the aid of the Metrostyle Pianola. All the variegated tone colorings, shadings and thunderous climaxes were executed with absolute fidelity.

Miss Ethel Lytle pleased all with a cycle of East Indian songs. This group was well received, she being admirably accompanied by the Metrostyle Pianola.

SENATE STOREKEEPER.

How He Looks After the Furnishing of the Committee Rooms.

From the Washington Herald.

John McGrain, the storekeeper on the senate side of the capitol, knows what it means to cater to the whims and desires of members of the upper branch of congress and his force is probably the most industrious in the big building on the hill. His position as storekeeper means that he is responsible for the furnishing of all the committee rooms in the senate, and that is a big enough job for any one man, especially at this time, when senators are moving from one place to another as the result of committee changes.

Some senators prefer green effects in their rooms, and if they have just moved into a new one that means to begin at the beginning with the furnishings. Others like red, and still others yellow and it is up to McGrain to find the proper rugs and the accompanying fixtures to make the room furnishings harmonize. Then there are some who prefer blue, and McGrain must have all the accoutrements that go to make up a blue room handy and ready to slip in at a minute's notice.

Senatorial "fickleness" extends even to the manner of heating, too, and that means more work. There are three brands of heat on tap in the capitol—hot air, steam and open fireplace. Perhaps a senator has moved from a room where he enjoyed the crackling blaze of hickory logs to a room where the fireplace has been hidden back of a desk and the furniture dried out by steam. Then it is up to the force from the storeroom to change everything and arrange so a cheerful blaze will not only give heat but not be out of harmony with the color scheme of the room. Some prefer liquid soap, others insist upon the old style kind that can be grasped in the fist, and the work of the storekeeper extends even to the personal requirements of secretaries and clerks in the matter of typewriters.

Tiger's Refuge in Tree.

From the Bombay Gazette.

News of a tiger being brought in from a village about three miles from the capital, the chief of state went out with a party. The guns were placed in trees and the tiger being driven out, the Maharaja wounded him in the jaw.

The tiger thereupon sprang into a chila tree and, grasping the trunk with his fore paws and resting his hind legs on a branch, remained hidden in the foliage for five minutes. Then the dogs were let loose after the tiger. But he stuck to his seat and would not come down till the dogs, getting a scent of him, jumped up to catch his tail, which was just dangling over their heads.

Down sprang the tiger on one of the faithful dogs, breaking his spinal cord and wounding another at the glands. But his onslaught brought on his own ruin through a deadly bullet of his highness' new rifle.
