Inquisitorial Body Believes San Francisco Bankers Worked Bunko Game.

(Upited Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Feb. 17 .- The grand jury this afternoon again took up the investigation of the affairs of the California Safe Deposit & Trust company.

A different branch of the defunct institution was examined by the inquisitorial body in an endeavor to trace the authorization of the many pamphlets and other alluring circulars and letters sent to prospective victims. That these pamphlets were of a fraudulent character and contained false statements regarding the assets and liabilities of the insolvent bank is claimed by the prosecution.

That indictments will be returned in connection with this phase of the failure is a certainty, but whether they will fail upon those already facing criminal charges or upon others connected with the institution, the district attorney's office is not yet in a position to state.

Assistant District Attorney Hoff Cook this morning declared he would go ahead with his prosecution regardless of the point raised by Attorney Hiram Johnson, representing J. Dalzell Brown, one of the indicted officers of the bank, in regard to the validity of the grand jury, in view of the nonresidence of Juror Hammersmith fornia Safe Deposit & Trust company.

Neither vessel is wanted very badly by the consignees. The Pacific coast company has about all the coal it can handle and the warehouses along the waterfront are groaning under the burden of cement. #### COLLECTIONS INCREASE.

Custom House Collector Takes in More Money Than Ever.

Collections at the custom house are exceeding all former records and it is now certain that the end of the fiscal year will roll up a total of several hundred thousand dollars greater than the record healing figures of last year and fell over into the street. Twenty dred thousand dollars greater than the record-breaking figures of last year, when collections aggregated $1,163,000. Assistant Collector of Customs R. F. Barnes estimates that the collections for the fiscal year ending June 30 will reach the astounding sum of $1,250,000, and possibly more. He says a strange fact it is indeed that the percentage of increase in revenue has been larger since the beginning of the financial flurry than during the several preceding months. Up till Saturday, $663,000 had been taken in by the custom house cashier and there is enough goods on the way now to bring in an equal amount before the end of the year. The office is $90,000 ahead of the collections at this time last year and with better prospects. Nearly $100,000 will be collected as duty on shipment of fire-crackers to arrive here next month on the oriental liner Numantia, and in addition to this about 200,000 barrels of cement are booked to arrive here soon, cement are booked to arrive here soon on which the duty is 32 cents per barrel

Hope of the Japanese steamer Goto Hope of the Japanese steamer Goto Maru reaching port has now heen abandoned and those who gambled on her arrival will lose. They placed faith in the vessel having broken her shaft and was working her way into port under jury rig but even this theory had to go by the board when the craft failed to show up after 190 days.

The lost vessel was formerly the British steamer Sylvania, 4,556 tons gross, and was captured by the Japanese navy during the war, Mr. Hiromi purchasing her for $38,000. She was bound from Hakodate for this port via bound from Hakodate for this port via

It is believed that the vessel was caught in the heavy storm which was experienced on the Pacific about the 15th day after her departure. It seems that the coal and sulphur which comprised the steamer's cargo was loose, so that when the vessel heeled the cargo would be heaped en one side.

There is very little hope of the British bark Castle Rock ever reaching port. She left Australia about 130 days ago for Puget sound and has not been heard from since.

At the time of the noon adjournment five jurors had been accepted. When the session began there was one woman spectator, but she soon faded away, and the only woman left in the room was Mrs. Waymire, who speedily became the center to which the optics of the curious were turned. Mrs. Waymire was attired in a tailor suit of striped gray, modish but modest, wearing a high hat of the turban kind in colors of gray and brown, with just a touch of green, but devoid of flowers. A thin vell draped from the hat over her face.
