PLOT TO SEIZE SERBIAN THRONE

Tramp King Backs Prince Theodore Strew in Scheme to Rule Kingdom.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Chicago, Feb. 18.—A plot to seat Prince Theodore Strew of Iowa, who is grandson of Obolitch, the hero king of Serbia, on the Serbian throne after it has been seized, has been discovered in Chicago. Ben Reitman, who recently dashed with the police because he marched through the streets with hundreds of unemployed men behind him, and a dozen other men are said to be planning the seizure. It is said that arrangements have been made to finance an expedition to Belgrade, where thousands of natives are said to be ready to join a revolution. It is said that an effort has been made to interest wine merchants in the plot, because in seizing the throne the revolutionists would come in possession of rich growing lands. European agents have been watching the movements of the men supposed to be arranging an expedition.

COUNTY PLAZA TO BEAUTIFY ST. HELENS

Court Orders Ground Cleared in Preparation for New Public Park.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) St. Helena, Or., Feb. 18.—The county court has given F. A. Erikson the contract for moving the office of Dillard & Day to the lot adjoining the one where it now stands and tearing down and clearing away the old courthouse and other buildings and debris and opening a plaza 132 feet wide from River street to Columbia street directly in front of the new courthouse. The county will maintain a lawn and fountain in the center of the plaza, which will greatly beautify the town. Work was commenced this morning and will be finished by the middle of May.

WOMAN OF THE ORIENT.

Madame Cama Talks of India—Wants to Oust the British.

Mme. Cama, who gives in the Independent an account of herself and the customs of her country, is described by the editor as "a Parsee lady visiting this country to study our institutions and to create sentiment against British rule in India."

"I was born a high class Parsee," writes Mme. Cama, "into a home of opulence and love. The Parsees are a mere handful in India, being but one among a population of 300,000,000, but we are the most advanced according to modern standards. Our women are educated and some even have collegiate degrees and practice medicine and other professions only recently adopted to any extent in European countries. We mingle with men socially, we go about unveiled, and in fact we have adopted a part of the dress of the Europeans. I would not give up the beautiful flowing draperies of the Indian costume, the nearest approach to the Greek robes famed in art, but it is necessary in practical living that we wear a shirt waist of white silk or cashmere to protect the throat and arms whereas the Hindu women secluded in the house, go with arms and neck bare. The Parsees were Persians who fled from religious persecutions 1300 years ago, much as did the Puritans from England many centuries later. During the last century we have retained from intermarrying with the Hindus and Mohammedans and so have retained our lighter color and maintained certain standards. "In my grandfather's day marriages in India were made by the parents; in the next generation the boy and girl were brought together and influenced; today they are allowed nearly as much freedom of choice in intelligent families as in Europe.

"Throughout India, as in China, the patriarchal system has prevailed. In a sense it should be called the matriarchate, for the mother-in-law is supreme. This is most natural, considering the extreme youthfulness of the bride.

"When child marriages are contracted it is natural that the little girl, who is taken from her own home and placed in that of her husband's parents, should be brought up to obey her mother-in-law. Even when she has children the belle mere, in her superior wisdom, governs these—but if the bride lives long enough her turn at queening it will come. This system is only now in vogue among Hindus.

"The patriarch's will is law in money matters under his roof tree is an enormous household. Usually the sons live with him until they are 50, so that their own children are nearly grown.

"He deals out even the family jewels to the various daughters-in-law when they attend social functions (for women only), and the jewels wearing is indiscriminate. Everything belongs to the patriarch.

"In the strict Hindu households men and women seldom see one another. All society is confined to ladies dining with one another. They never see their husbands in the daytime or at any meals. The gentlemen take pride in providing elegant costumes for their wives, but never have the pleasure of seeing them worn in public.

"However, most of us inherit our dresses. As styles never change we wear the same identical garments that our grandmothers wore. Our robe is merely six yards of silk, or satin, or crepe, or cashmere, bordered with a gold or embroidered passementerie. We literally have scores, hundreds of these, in beautiful colors. They are easy to pack in traveling. We drap these ourselves, each time we wear them.

"Americans imagine that we are religious fanatics. The first thing asked me is about religion. I like most of you, inherit my religion. "I am a Parsee follower of Zoroaster because my parents were, and I suspect you were a Christian—a Catholic, or Methodist, or Presbyterian—for the same reason. I am not at all interested in occultism or mysticism, or anything but humanitarianism and free India. I suppose we are regarded as religious cranks because some of the Hindu priests have lectured in this country. "A few years ago there was established the Indian national congress. This meets yearly and is doing an enormous work in educating public opinion. My husband and I both are members of this; he agrees with the moderates, I with the extremists.

"The congress professes loyalty to the government, but the extreme party is gaining rapidly, and these openly advocate swaraj—self-government. Gradually my eyes have been opened and I now believe with my whole soul that Great Britain is glutted by power, and that Kipling sounded a note of warning in his 'Recessional.' I know whereof I speak, for I have seen the high and the low."

MUNICIPAL JUDGE ANSWERS TO WRIT

Cameron Says Circuit Court Cannot Compel Him to Sentence Burkhardt.

Insisting that Judge Cleland should sentence him, the attorneys for Herman Burkhardt were before Judge Cleland in the circuit court yesterday afternoon to argue their application for a writ of mandamus to compel the municipal judge to pass judgment on their client. Burkhardt was convicted of resisting Officer N. H. Suttler, but was not sentenced. It is claimed in Judge Cameron's behalf that he has a right to a reversal of the lower court's decision. Burkhardt is not satisfied with this arrangement. He has a damage suit pending in the United States court because he was shot in the back by Suttler, and he desires to appeal to the state circuit court from the decision of Judge Cameron. A reversal of the lower court would doubtless give him much better standing before the federal tribunal in his damage case. The question was presented yesterday on a demurrer by Judge Cameron's attorneys, who asserted that the circuit court is without jurisdiction to compel him to act. Judge Cleland took the matter under advisement.

GRANGE INDORSES STATEMENT NO. 1

Western Star No. 309 Insists on Primary Law in Its Fullness.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Tangent, Or., Feb. 18.—Western Star grange No. 309 at its regular meeting Saturday adopted the following resolution with relation to Statement No. 1: "Whereas, it seems there is a disposition on the part of the public press which is controlled or dominated by political bosses, to ignore our direct primary law, especially Statement No. 1; therefore, be it Resolved, by Western Star Grange No. 309, that in the interest of good and clean government we believe it is the duty of all loyal citizens to demand that by and uphold said law in all its fullness. "Almost the full membership was in attendance and the meeting was one of the most interesting and enthusiastic ever held by Western Star. At the morning session the third and fourth degrees were conferred on a class of eight. After the noon session a class of nine received the first and second degrees. Full time was given the lecture hour. Among the most interesting exercises was a talk on grange life and fire insurance, opened by Frank Hubert. He was followed by A. Blawie, of Tangent grange. A paper on banks and banking was read by L. Ed. Dyer and an amusing paper on February and leap year by Miss Bertha Beck.

MR. AND MRS. ASHMAN SAVED FROM RIVER

(United Press Leased Wire.) Bellingham, Wash., Feb. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Ashman, who were reported drowned last week in an open boat in the Euclatawa rapids off Vancouver Island, were safely returned to the shore on Monday. They were subsequently found on a small island in the rapids. Their Columbia river fishboat ran ashore on the island and they were rescued by a party of men from the steamship Cassair.

NEW SCHOOLHOUSE NEAR BELFOUNTAIN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Monroe, Or., Feb. 18.—The new $3,500 public school building which is being erected in Belfountain, five miles northwest of here, is nearing completion and the patrons are planning a genuine old-fashioned all-day house warming for the first of March or about that time. The structure is to be one of the handsomest country schoolhouses in the county. It is built in the bungalow style, three rooms and basement, the latter to be cement. A furnace of the latest pattern will supply heat for all the rooms.

Why Women Admire Strong Men

All women worship physical strength. They like to look on men as strong, capable beings, afraid of nothing.—Beatrice Fairfax in Boston "American."

A woman has no use for a weak man. She admires that "afraid of nothing" spirit which a weak man lacks; that spirit of ambition which makes a man get up and hustle. She likes the strong man because he is a protection; he has strength, ambition, vim and is not afraid of work. His eyes are bright, his gait is full of energy, his speech is positive. The strong man is the real man. Would you like to have your friends point to you and say: "There goes a strong man." Do you not wish your eye to be so bright, your step so firm and your form so erect that men and women will admire you and remark at your many bearing? These are the thoughts uppermost in the minds of modern men. Physical and mental perfection, strength and power. Who does not like to be strong, to feel that he is equal in strength to any man of his age? You can be if you will obey the appeal here made to you. Drugs have been tried and have failed. You know that; but Electro-Vigor cannot fail; it is electricity, and "electricity is life." It gives you the oil with which to set the machinery of your body in motion, and the annual reports of other officers and committees were presented. The convention will remain in session four days, during which time the affairs of the association will be discussed and papers relating to painting and decorating.
