MALARKEY REVIEWS SENSATIONAL DETAILS

Waymire-Radding Conspiracy Against Mayor Harry Lane Outlined in Full Before Testimony Is Introduced. Court Filled With Crowd of Curiosity-Loving Spectators

Unlike as day and night, the testimony of the state and of the defense in the case of Mrs. Belle Waymire and E. E. Radding, charged with outraging public decency by an attempt to blacken the reputation of Mayor Lane, was outlined before the jury in Judge Gantenbein's department of the circuit court this morning. Opening statements by Dan J. Malarkey for the prosecution and W. R. McGarry for the defense occupied the whole of the morning session, and the taking of testimony did not begin until this afternoon.

Seats in the courtroom were at a premium long before 9:30 o'clock, the hour for the opening of court, and nearly all of those who came early remained until the noon recess was declared, compelling late comers to stand. All available standing room in the room being occupied, Deputy Sheriff Jones, as a sort of special bailiff, ranged the eager spectators in two long lines, and outside the courtroom, as far back as the speakers' voices could be heard, men stood for hours to catch what they could of the proceedings inside.

Only Woman in Court.

Mrs. Waymire was again the only woman in the courtroom. Sitting back of her counsel, wearing the same modest suit of gray material that she wore yesterday and watching the speakers as they addressed the jury, she scarcely stirred throughout the morning session. If she has mannerisms, she does not display them in court. Her demeanor is serious, but her face broke into a broad smile when Attorney Malarkey, in describing the beginning of the attack she is said to have made on the mayor, said that she began to pant and gurgle, and the mayor from his medical experience, believed she was about to have a fit.

The opening statement of Malarkey occupied an hour and fifteen minutes, and that of McGarry took practically the same length of time, the latter closing soon after the clock struck the noon hour. Both speakers narrated the features of the case substantially as they were detailed in the preliminary hearing, with a few added details and spicy remarks for the benefit of the jury. Both attorneys were inclined to drift into argument, so that Judge Gantenbein was compelled to admonish them to state only the facts, and leave out the argument.

Tells of Plot.

According to Malarkey, the affair in the mayor's office on the evening of September 26 last was the result of a plot entered into by four conspirators to blacken the mayor's reputation. Besides the two defendants on trial, he named Mandelay and Bell as conspirators, the latter being the admirer of Mrs. Waymire, who accompanied her to Vancouver on the night of September 26.

Mr. Marlarkey first exhibited and explained a diagram of Mayor Lane's office in the Hamilton building, where the now historic episode took place. He described the furniture and the floor plan, and then took up Mrs. Waymire's calls on the mayor, she seeking advice as to how to regain control of her child, whom she had left with her husband in the east.

On October 16, he said, the giving of a letter of recommendation to the woman was first mentioned. The mayor forgot about the letter, and when Mrs. Waymire again called for it he told her to telephone his stenographer. Finally the letter was written, but when, on the occasion of the next call, he started to give the letter, he found the name was wrongly spelled and he was compelled to ask her to call some other time. He said the mayor, during the course of these calls, had nexer fixed any particular date for Mrs. Waymire to call.

Tore His Clothing.

"On September 26," said the speaker, "after he found that the letter was not in shape to give her because of the misspelling, he sought to bow her out of his office. Then she began to pant and gurgle and he feared she was about to have a fit. Suddenly she threw herself upon him, tore his clothing, and screamed at the top of her voice, so that the disturbance was heard down on the second floor of the building. Then it was that Janitor Drew started to unlock the door, but Radding came up and smashed in the glass. Mayor Lane and the woman were seen struggling, in such position as if he were trying to get her to go out and she were resisting. The mayor was heard, 'Woman, damn it, let go of me, are you crazy?'"

Malarkey called attention to the fact that as Mrs. Waymire left to take the elevator, referring to the mayor as "an old brute," she did not speak to Radding, whom she knew so well, and did not appeal to him to help her or escort her home. Instead, Radding ran down the stairway.

Traces Movements.

The speaker then traced Mrs. Radding from her home in Missouri, where she separated from her husband, arriving in Portland last March. She met Radding about one month after she came, he said. Radding was rooming with a jeweler named Bell at Thurman and Twenty-third streets, and Mrs. Waymire went there to see him several times, where Radding introduced her as his sweetheart. At the same time, said Malarkey, or soon after, she was being introduced in another part of town as Bell's sweetheart. Finally she, Radding and Bell rented a seven-room house at Fourteenth and Montgomery streets and lived there together, Mrs. Waymire passing as the wife of Bell. They remained in this house only a short time, moving thence to the house on Morrison street between Morrison and Yamhill, where the trio had two furnished rooms and Mrs. Waymire did the cooking.

All About Radding.

The speaker then narrated the well-known incidents about Radding having told his friend Mandelay to come to the Hamilton building about 5:30 o'clock on the evening of the scene in the mayor's office, as he wanted Mandelay as a witness, and of Dr. Anderson's having observed the men there, as though lying in wait for something to happen, Dr. Anderson warning the elevator man to look out for them as he left the building.

Against the objection of the defense Malarkey also said he proposed to prove that Radding approached T. C. Devlin and Councilman Wills during the last campaign for mayor with an offer to trap the mayor with a woman and thus ruin Dr. Lane's political prospects. Devlin and Wills refused to consider the matter or try to beat the mayor in that way. The defense will object to testimony on this line when it is offered, and hopes to shut it out.

Left Husband In East.

Mr. McGarry for the defense declared that the whole affair is a case of love-making on the part of the mayor. He said Mrs. Waymire left her husband in the east because he treated her brutally and is a criminal, and she went to Mayor Lane because of her solicitation for the welfare of her child. The first meetings with the mayor were somewhat formal, he said, but Dr. Lane kept telling her to come again and he would see what could be done. His attitude gradually changed, said the speaker, and he began calling her "girlie," asked her where she was working, how much she was earning and suggested that she might be able to better her condition. He proposed that she go into the rooming house business, and told her he would try and arrange the matter so she could do so.

When she went back again, said McGarry, the mayor called her "dearie," and nine days before the climax in the mayor's office the idea of the letter of recommendation was suggested. The mayor is a splendid letter writer, said the speaker, but it took him nine days to prepare that three-line letter that was finally evolved.

Grocery Accounts Charged.

Finally, at the mayor's suggestion, and against the protest of Hadding and Bell, who disliked the rooming house idea, she rented the rooming house at Fourteenth and Morrison. She did not pass as the wife of Bell, said the speaker, but Bell roomed there, and instead of paying for his board in cash he told the grocer to charge the groceries bought by Mrs. Waymire to his account.

Several days before the final meeting in the mayor's office, continued McGarry, Mrs. Waymire visited the mayor and he tried to hug and kiss her. She repulsed him, and he then apologized, saying he was an old fool, that he was sorry, and that if she would come back again on the afternoon of September 26 he would have the letter ready for her without further trouble. She did return as requested, and the mayor renewed his lovemaking in such violent manner that she was compelled to scream for help.

Ready for Testimony.

M'Garry said he would show that there was no prearranged plan on the part of Mrs. Waymire, but that Mandelay had on a former occasion seen her coming from the mayor's office and had told Raddin gwhat he saw.

Bell wanted to marry Mrs. Radding, and he grew jealous because of the woman's frequent visits to the mayor's office. To allay the suspicions of Bell, which he regarded as unfounded, Radding arranged to have Mandelay come to the building on the afternoon in question as a witness. The speaker denied that Radding had been lurking around the halls before the screams were heard in the mayor's office. He said that Radding had gone to see another man in the building and was on the floor below when he heard the screams. He then ran up the stairs and broke in the glass door.

McGarry declared the testimony will show that the mayor is the one at fault, and he expected the jury to so find when the evidence is heard, notwithstanding the halo with which the mayor has been surrounded.

The jury was completed yesterday afternoon, and is made up as follows: R. M. Cannon, R. Burthenshaw, E. Schmedler, W. C. Haseltine, Thomas H. Smith, W. W. Church, J. D. Hennessy, John Cronquist, N. Harris, William Sales, C. W. Bowie and S. F. Starr.

LEBANON METHODISTS WANT NEW CHURCH

Proposed Either to Remodel the Old Building or Put $10,000 Into a New Edifice.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Lebanon, Or., Feb. 18.—Some of the members of the Methodist Episcopal church of Lebanon are agitating the question of building a new $10,000 church here. A mass meeting was held at the church to discuss the matter.

As the result of the last revival held in the church, the first of the year, there have been about 150 additions to this church and the present building has become too small to accommodate the membership. At the mass meeting some favored building an edition to the present building, remodeling it and putting on a new roof. Others are in favor of moving the present building back and making of it a reading-room and Epworth league rooms and building a new up-to-date building. By a vote the trustees were requested to have plans drawn up for a new church building and also plans for an addition, with estimates of the cost of each. The trustees were also instructed to see what amount of money could be raised for building and to report at a meeting to be held soon.

BOOZE FIGHTERS SEE FINISH AT STANFORD

Prohi Professor Put in Charge of Anti-Thirst Campaign.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Stanford University, Feb. 18.—Arthur B. Clark, former prohibition mayor of the little town of Mayfield, at present head of the department of drawing at Stanford university, is the man selected by President Jordan and approved by the advisory board to head the committee which will attempt to put an end to student drinking on the campus.

The men will act under Clark. They are as follows: Professors Arthur M. Cathcart of the law department, George C. Price of the zoology department, Robert Swayne of the chemistry department, and Albert C. Whitaker of the economics department.

The selection of this committee, which, owing to the recent ruling of the trustees against student drinking, stands pledged to rigidly enforce regulations against drinking among the under-graduates at Stanford, will be awaited with great interest by the students. The appointment of Professor Clark as chairman is interpreted as the strongest kind of an indication that the authorities are determined to go after the liquor evil hard and earnestly, for it would be difficult to find a man with stronger views on the subject than this new appointee. Professor Clark was the man largely responsible for the "going dry" of the little town of Mayfield, where before 1906 the students were in the habit of visiting Meyers', the college resort, for a glass of beer.

RUN-DOWN CONDITION DUE TO OVERWORK

A Battle Creek Woman Describes Her Symptoms and Tells How Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured Her.

The symptoms described in the following case are so common today wherever overwork and worry have resulted in a decline in health that the means by which a cure was effected deserve the careful attention of every thoughtful man and woman. It is such conditions as are here described that are commonly neglected until the injury to the health is past repair. It is therefore the part of wisdom to take the remedy that cured Mrs. James Struwin of 489 West Main street, Battle Creek, Mich., as soon as the first warning symptoms are noted. She says:

"For several months I was sick with anaemia and part of the time had to remain in bed. It was brought on by overwork which produced a run-down condition. My kidneys were weak and the secretions contained a sediment. My cheeks and lips were white, I had bad headaches, dizzy and fainting spells and would see black specks floating before my eyes. I would often have palpitation of the heart, could get no rest from sleep, was nervous, low-spirited and weak. My blood was watery and I didn't have strength enough to work.

"We employed a doctor for six months, but without avail. Then I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a paper and soon after began to take them. A few boxes cured me, giving me strength and plenty of blood, and I have been well and strong ever since."

So general is the success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing anaemia that it may be safely stated that they are the most certain remedy for all conditions of thin, weak and watery blood. They are also a tonic for the nerves and have cured indigestion and general debility, where the stomach and other organs of the body are weakened and disordered simply through lack of proper nourishment. They have also been especially successful in curing rheumatism and after-effects of the grip and of fevers.

A pamphlet on "Diseases of the Blood" and a copy of our diet book will be sent free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

RAH! FOR UNCLE JOE!

Boutell Launches Cannon Boom in House on Thirty-Fourth Anniversary of the First Address Made by Veteran Speaker.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, Feb. 18.—One of the most dramatic scenes ever witnessed in the house of representatives occurred today, when Congressman Boutell of Illinois precipitated a remarkable demonstration by delivering a touching oration urging the nomination of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, speaker of the house, for the presidency.

This being the thirty-fourth anniversary of Speaker Cannon's first speech in the house, Congressman Boutell chose this occasion on which to laud the Illinois statesman. In the course of his remarks Boutell recalled the fact that when Cannon made his first speech in congress some one suggested that oats might be found in his pocket. Then he quoted from Cannon's speech, which asked for the free distribution of seeds through the mails.

In reply to the suggestion about oats in his pocket thirty-four years ago Cannon on that occasion replied: "Yes; I have oats in my pocket and hayseed in my hair. Western people generally are affected that way, but we expect that the seed being good will yield good crops."

After Boutell had quoted this part of the old speech the scene that touched the heart of the rugged old legislator from Illinois followed. Cheers rang from every part of the hall and the applause lasted several minutes.

When the cheering subsided Congressman Boutell, still standing, shouted: "And the oats he sowed 34 years ago weren't wild oats. They have yielded generous returns. Three times has 'Uncle Joe' been elected speaker of the house of representatives, and now gladly within the next few months will the farmers and other workers of the country join with his district in conferring upon him the nation's greatest honor!"

They are to do this in order to comply with a law passed by the last congress, which becomes operative on March 4, and which is intrusted to the interstate commerce commission for enforcement.

On the Pacific coast, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe employes to the number of 8,000 will be favorably affected by the change in hours. On the Harriman roads alone in the west 12,000 men will have their working hours reduced.
