

ENDEAVOR UNION MEETS AT EUGENE

Over 250 Delegates Assemble—Sessions Till Sunday Night.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Eugene, Or., Feb. 21.—The eighteenth state convention of the Oregon Christian Endeavor union met in Eugene at 7:30 o'clock last evening and will continue in session till Sunday night. The delegates began to arrive yesterday afternoon, when over 70 came in on the train from the north. When the 7 o'clock train came in from the south the delegation was augmented by 20 or more from the southern Oregon towns, but the bulk of the crowd came in on the night trains from Portland and other cities and towns in the northern part of the state. There are over 250 delegates in attendance at today's sessions.

The day sessions of the convention are being held at the United Brethren church and the night sessions, which the public is expected to attend in large numbers, in the Christian church, which has the largest auditorium in the city.

The local reception committee has met all incoming trains since yesterday afternoon and welcomed the delegates to Eugene. The members of the committee escorted the visitors to their respective places of entertainment and all who have arrived have found very desirable places to stay during the convention. The delegates upon their arrival here are being housed in the Christian church, where the secretary of the convention, Miss Viola Charlson of Portland registers them.

The committee on arrangements for the convention consists of C. A. Steele, Miss Livia Bond, M. F. McClain, H. A. Scudler, Miss Mac Bradley, Miss Myrtle Bell and W. A. Dill. The committee was divided into subcommittees and each has done valiant work.

The convention was opened last evening with an address of welcome by President P. L. Campbell of the University of Oregon. This was followed by the announcement of committees. The convention sermon was delivered by Rev. L. R. Dyott, pastor of the First Congregational church of Portland. The subject of the sermon was the convention theme, "Always Abounding."

BARTLETT DENIED CHANGE OF VENUE

Judge Decides Union County Can Be Relied on to Give Alleged Boodler Square Deal.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
La Grande, Or., Feb. 21.—Judge William Smith of Baker county, who was called here to hear the arguments for a change of venue in the case of the state of Oregon against ex-Councilman E. W. Bartlett, rendered a decision denying the change to Umatilla county, as requested by Bartlett's attorneys. The grounds on which Judge Smith denied the motion for a change were that an insufficient showing had been made by Bartlett and that dozens of affidavits from prominent citizens all over Union county declaring the belief that a fair trial could be had in Union county had been filed with the court.

Bartlett was convicted in the circuit court of having accepted bribes from gamblers while a member of the city council. Steve Gardiner, another county claimant, served six months in the county jail here for the same offense, having been convicted with Bartlett.

OUR DAILY BREAD

The war between the beet sugar manufacturers and those that make the sweet product from the sugar cane, has many interesting features for the housewife, chief among which, of course, is the fact that sugar is cheaper. It's a long call from 1864 to 1906 but the great difference in time also calls attention to the great difference in the cost of sugar during that period. In the early sixties sugar was selling at retail at 20 cents a pound while today it hovers close to 6 cents a pound, despite the fact too that the sugar trust has been in control of the market for some time.

In the sixties practically all the sugar which was sold on the Pacific coast came from the Hawaiian islands. It was brought to San Francisco and Portland by sailing vessels. The sugar was not as good as the product of today because it had not been refined like the product of 1906. In the early days the sugar was mostly of the brown variety. This is one of the first products from the sugar cane—the whiter grade going through many processes before reaching its silvery state.

Even at this time almost all the sugar used on the coast is brought from the Hawaiian islands, although some of it is refined in California to which large ships bring the raw product from the islands. There are various methods of refining sugar, each of which have their champion. The sugar you see upon the market today, while not so white as that used previously to the passage of the pure food law, is just as well refined, only the government will not allow the makers to bleach it as formerly.

There has been much controversy of late between sugar men as to which product, the beet or cane, is the best. The beet sugar is manufactured from sugar beets grown mostly in the territory west of the Rocky mountains, while the cane sugar is manufactured from the sugar cane. One is just as sweet as the other according to experts—in fact it takes an expert even upon close examination to tell which is best sugar and which is manufactured from the cane.

To the consumer, however, there is a difference and that is in the price. Beet sugar sells at a reduction of 20 cents a hundred pounds from the price of the cane product. In years gone by it was believed that beet sugar was inferior in every way to the cane product but this has been disproven time and time again. It has been stated that beet sugar cannot be used in preserves and in making the jelly, etc., but this has likely been proven false by the fact that some of the largest canners of fruit in the United States recently began the use of beet sugar altogether.

Spring vegetables are rapidly coming to market and prices are going lower. Asparagus is coming somewhat earlier and while the price is still too high for general consumption, values are expected to slide downward very fast in the near future. Potatoes from Mexico are fast driving the Cuban and Mississippi article out of the market because the Mexican article is fresher and therefore in a better condition.

Potatoes are so cheap that they hardly count in making an estimate of household expenses. On account of the very heavy crop all over the coast the past season, the lowest prices in years are now ruling and even this is unable to bring about any great increase in consumption. It is stated that in Oregon alone some 2,000 cars will go to waste upon the farms this season because of the lack of profitable markets.

Onions are still high but the new crop is due to arrive from Texas and Arizona in about a month. The supplies from the water is attracting much attention among fish men.

According to fish handlers there never was a time when the quality of the Columbia river Royal Chinook salmon was so good as this money. On account of the generally of very large size and the flesh is firmer and besides being better colored is showing finer flavor than usual. This is the Royal Chinook is hard to beat at any time.

Smelt are still low in price, although the run in the Columbia and Willamette rivers is showing a great decrease. The rapid disappearance of this fish from the water is attracting much attention among fish men.

Eggs are setting down and bedrock again because the hens are beginning to feel the spring weather and are laying many more eggs than usual for this time of the year. Those that complain about the high price of eggs should go to the stores should not be heard now for the stocks were never better than now. Butter is still very high but February is always the month in which prices hold up to the top of the ladder. In the early part of March it is usually the rule for butter prices to drop and in April values generally get down to the low point of the year. That is the time that storage men put away the supplies for winter and for which you are charged some awful values when fresh butter is scarce.

Marketing with thrift is an art. Penicillin, and many of them, are wasted every day by thoughtless housekeepers who order over the phone and who never look into their pantries and refrigerators.

SAN FRANCISCO BANK CLOSES DOORS TODAY

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Feb. 21.—Inability to accumulate a cash fund sufficient to meet all immediate demands without causing injury to its borrowers, the Market street bank, a savings and commercial institution, temporarily suspended payment this morning.

Published reports of the bank's embarrassment, the immediate cause of which was its cash shortage, bringing about an announcement by the Union Trust company, through which the bank cleared that it could no longer act, brought 250 depositors to the bank long before the usual hour of opening. When the time for opening arrived and the doors remained closed and the shades down, the depositors' anxiety increased and it was considerably less by the dozen, and reductions are found on soaps and various articles.

The first Republican candidate to declare for this principle in eastern Oregon this spring was C. A. Barrett of Athena, who is a candidate for reelection from Umatilla county.
