

FOR TIMBER

Portland and Eastern Capitalists Purchase 35,000-Acre Tract of Redwood Timber in Humboldt County.

That the recent financial stringency has not retarded timber investment on the Pacific coast from consideration by eastern capitalists has just been proven by the purchase of a 35,000-acre tract of coast timber through the agency of the Wheeler Timber company of Portland. The land involved in this enormous transaction is the Big Lagoon tract, owned by C. A. Hooper, of San Francisco, who has sold it to the Wheeler syndicate.

Valuable Redwood Tract.

There were about 35,000 acres in the tract. The timber is redwood, located immediately adjacent to the ocean, in Humboldt county, northern California. It lies in a compact area back of the Big Lagoon a large body of tidewater connected by a narrow opening with the ocean.

This opening fills with sand and debris every time there is a heavy storm at sea, precluding the idea of navigating the deep lagoon with a vessel, and making it necessary to build a railroad about five miles to either the ports of Trinidad or Luffenholz, in order to carry on logging operations.

It is not the intention of the syndicate to operate the tract for some years, but there is a revival in the lumber markets of the coast and middle west.

It is said the Big Lagoon tract is one of the most valuable wood tracts on the coast, the reason of its compactness and the favorable logging topography of the lands. A cruise has shown the tract to run about 15 miles east to the sea. The purchase price was based on about $150 per acre, and it is said the stumpage price ranged about $1.25 per 1,000.

Shows Faith in Coast.

C. A. Hooper, who sold the property, is a coast pioneer lumberman, residing at San Francisco, and has been collecting and holding the timber back of the Big Lagoon for many years. The purchasers are formed into the Big Lagoon Lumber company, and have incorporated in the state of New York. They are New York and Pennsylvania capitalists.

The syndicate includes W. E. Wheeler, J. E. Wheeler, F. W. Wheeler, W. A. West, Pennsylvania; Charles Weston, Towanda, New York; W. A. Dusenbury, Portville, New York; Messrs. Page and Olean, New York; Fox of New York City and others.

The deal was handled by J. E. Wheeler of Portland, and was conducted and consummated during the period of the money stringency, a fact that illustrates forcibly to Pacific coast investors the estimate that eastern capitalists place upon the solidity of Pacific coast resources.

MCKINLEY FINED

McKinley had remained here instead of fleeing to foreign lands he would in all probability have been sentenced on the same date and by this time, like Puter, would have been in the county jail at Portland.

"You must remember," said the court, "that this is a long time after you were convicted and the government has been put to an expense of many times as much to bring you to this city as you could have taken if you had fled. However, I shall take into consideration the fact that you were in the county jail at Portland, and the suggestions made by Mr. Heney in a telegram which I will read you."

Judge Wolverton said that in all probability McKinley was just as guilty of the charge as was Puter and owing to the circumstances would impose a similar fine, $7,500, and two years in the Multnomah county jail at Portland.

Mr. Heney's telegram, addressed to Judge Wolverton, and dated at San Francisco, February 25, read: "In sentencing Horace G. McKinley, respectfully suggest that you consider the fact that the government will require his testimony in some of the remaining land fraud cases and if consistent with your sense of duty direct that he be confined in the county jail at Portland."

After the judge had read Mr. Heney's telegram and pronounced sentence upon McKinley, Mr. Bristol stated to the court that he had made no such arrangement with the defendant and that so far as he knew or in any of the cases which he is handling for the government, he was not aware of any agreement or any understanding whatever as to any testimony which was to be given by McKinley for the prosecution.

Feared Penitentiary.
McKinley left the court room immediately in charge of Deputy United States Marshal Clyde Nicholson. Upon reaching the corridors of the federal building on his way to the marshal's office he was greeted by several friends, threw his arms in the air and laughed. He seemed pleased with the outcome of his long drawn-out trial, escape and ultimate sentence to the county jail. McKinley has dreaded and feared that possibly he would be sent to McNeil's island, where many of the federal prisoners from this district are confined.

IS YOUR BLOOD BAD?

Its cure will depend upon the medicine you take. That Hood's Sarsaparilla is the right remedy is shown by its thousands of cures of pimples, boils, eczema, scrofula, psoriasis, and all other forms and conditions of blood disease. A medicine that has made such mighty cures must be the medicine for you.

Makes Weak Strong.—"I would give $5 a bottle for Hood's Sarsaparilla if I could not buy it for less. It is the best blood medicine. It makes the weak strong." Albert A. Jagnow, Douglas-town, N. Y.

Worn Out.—"My son took Hood's Sarsaparilla when he was troubled with a tired, worn out feeling, and it has cured him. I believe Hood's has no equal as a tonic and blood purifier." Mrs. John Woolly, Sparta, Wis.

He disappeared soon afterward. Two years ago he made a sensational escape to China in company with a dancing girl known as "Little Egypt," deserting his wife, Marie Ware, who had also been implicated in the Oregon deals.

For two years McKinley's life in the orient was full of vicissitudes and escapades in his efforts to escape being returned to Oregon to be sentenced upon the charge upon which he had been convicted. He was arrested in Manchuria, escaped from jail, was arrested again and eventually taken in the custody of Deputy United States Marshal Kerrigan of Portland, who had been assigned to the task of returning the fugitive from justice to this country.

7 CONVENTIONS WILL MEET IN FT. WORTH

3,000 Delegates to Gather on Same Day, Including Representatives of Farmers.

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 28.—Seven big conventions with 3,000 delegates, it is declared, will be called to order April 14, and action will be taken that will affect thousands of workmen all over the country. The conventions will be those of the Texas State Federation of Labor, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Electrical Workers' Federation of the Fifth district, embracing several states of the southwest, and the Texas Farmers' union.

The Farmers' union executive committee some time ago decided to meet on that date, and Chairman Lauder milk says the meeting will be in the nature of a convention.

All members of the union will be invited to meet in the city in conjunction with the workers of other crafts. It will be an informal meeting for the discussion of any questions that may arise. The annual election of officers and other routine business will be at the regular convention later in the summer.

C. W. Woodman estimates that 1,500 delegates will attend the convention of the State Federation of Labor. Probably that number of delegates and visitors will attend the conventions of the railway organizations, while other conventions will be attended by delegations running into the hundreds. Mr. Woodman says that each convention will be marked by a large attendance of visitors outside of the accredited delegates, being mostly farmers who believe that several hundred farmers will attend.

PRIZE BRONCHO-BUSTER PICTURE FROM OREGON

Klamath Falls, Or., Feb. 28.—G. Heitkemper Jr. of this city has just sold to a collector at St. Louis, Mo., the plate of a bucking broncho picture that he took during the county fair here last fall. The picture shows the cowboy being thrown from the horse's back and is a very good picture of horse and rider. It has attracted a large number of interested and Mr. Heitkemper states that he has sold copies of this one picture to pay all the expense connected with his experiments in amateur photography the past two years.

LID THE ISSUE IN BEAVERTON ELECTION

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Beaverton, Or., Feb. 28.—Beaverton will hold an election Tuesday for the purpose of choosing mayor, two councilmen, recorder, marshal and treasurer. There are two tickets in the field. The independent ticket, headed by the present mayor, E. E. Fisher, is favorable to a liberal policy toward gambling and the saloon. The other ticket is headed by H. J. Vincent, who proposes to stop gambling and compel the saloon in Beaverton to be conducted according to law.

LA GRANDE'S FIRST MARKET TOMORROW

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
La Grande, Or., Feb. 28.—The first market day will be held in this city tomorrow. A large amount of property of all kinds will be sold. A long list of livestock has been made up by the managers and other property will be placed on sale. It is believed this year will be as successful as in every other northwest town where it has been instituted. It is the intention of the merchants of the city to make the market days regular events. Farmers and stockmen are showing commendable interest.

New Pastor at Pendleton.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., Feb. 28.—After being vacant for the past six months the pulpit of the First Christian church of this city has been supplied. Rev. Andrew Melton, of Lexington, Kentucky, has accepted a call. He will arrive about March 15 and will enter at once upon his work. The last pastor here was Rev. Lee Ferguson, who left to become pastor of a North Yakima church.

STATEMENT NO. 1

People Sick and Tired of Disgraceful Senatorial Fights, He Says.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Lebanon, Or., Feb. 28.—State Senator M. A. Miller of this county was asked by a Journal correspondent as to his views regarding Statement No. 1. Mr. Miller was re-elected to the senate two years ago and did not sign Statement No. 1. He said today that if he were a candidate now he would subscribe to and endorse the popular election of United States senators.

"The idea was new and was particularly an issue in the campaign in Lyon county two years ago," said Senator Miller. "In 1886 there was a prolonged contest over United States senator. Governor Gibbs was the caucus nominee. The contest was between Gibbs and Mitchell. Corbett was a compromise candidate. In 1872, after an exciting contest which lasted nearly a year, the legislature, John H. Mitchell, was elected."

Business Cast Aside.
"In the session of 1885, Sol Hirsch was the Republican caucus nominee for United States senator. He received from 31 to 37 votes throughout the entire session, which finally adjourned without the election of a senator. Throughout the session all business was subordinate to the senatorial contest. An extra session was called in the fall and John H. Mitchell was chosen."

"Aside from being without representation in the senate, the people of Oregon were put to the heavy expense of an extra session of the legislature."
"In 1892 the deadlock lasted throughout the session. Bills were passed and defeated relative to their position in the senatorial contest. Finally at the last hour and minute George W. McBride was elected."

"The legislature of 1897 capped the climax. This was perhaps the greatest fraud that was ever perpetrated upon a free people. It occurred at a usual time over the senatorship. The house was never organized. For 60 days and nights Oregon was disgraced as she never was before, and it is to be hoped she never will be again. At one time it looked as if the militia would have to be called out."

Disgraceful Session of 1903.
"Finally, as is well known, the legislature came to an end without organizing and without electing a senator. Governor Lord appointed H. W. Corbett, the senatorial candidate. The United States refused to seat him by a vote of 50 to 19. Again we were without representation in the great lawmaking body of our country. Most vital business in self-government. An extra session of the legislature was called in 1898, which lasted for 20 days, appropriated $1,000,000 and elected Joseph Simon United States senator. They were a most generous body of men. They allowed full pay for a legislature that never organized."

"In the session of 1903 another prolonged and bitter contest for senator lasted throughout the session. Finally at the last moment Charles W. Fulton was elected. This briefly is a review of the senatorial history of the United States since 1856 in this state, and it is no wonder the people are clamoring for a change."

"The contrast when compared with the election at the last session, when Jonathan Bourne was elected in 1898, makes as the result of the adoption of the present constitution the majority of the members of the legislature."

OHIO PROSECUTOR ON TRIAL OF STANDARD

Excessive Drinking

Excessive or continued use of alcoholic beverages always results in a diseased condition of the nervous system. The drinking man is often heard to say, "I can stop of my own free will and when I wish," but the poor fellow is now devoid of the power to act at the proper time and in the right way—it's too late, the craving has acquired a firm hold and because of the diseased nervous system he has not the ability for sustained effort. The result we all know.

Drunkenness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such. The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Urine. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded.

Urine is in two forms. When desiring to give secretly, procure Urine No. 1, and if the patient will voluntarily take the treatment, Urine No. 2 should be given. The guarantee is the same in either case. Urine costs but $1 per box. Mail in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price. Write for free treatise on "Drunkenness" mailed in sealed envelope by The Urine Co., Washington, D. C. Sold by leading druggists everywhere and in this city by Clarke-Woodward Drug Co. and nearly all druggists.

Do You Deliberately Torture Yourself Alive by Neglecting Your Stomach?

Remedy Free for the Asking.

A great outcry has arisen during the last few years against scientists who torture dumb animals alive in the interests of science. How many people are there, however, who needlessly torture themselves by causing their stomachs to overwork? Dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sleeplessness, loss of vim and energy are the inevitable result.

Are you one of these?
Why not give your stomach a rest? Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will relieve your stomach of all its work and do it for you. They are composed of the very elements and do the work which the stomach performs when in normal health—aseptic pepsin, malt diastase and like ingredients.

Dr. Richardson in writing a thesis on treatment of dyspepsia and indigestion, closes his remarks by saying: "For those suffering from acid dyspepsia, shown by sour, watery risings, or for flatulent dyspepsia shown by gas on stomach, or heart trouble and difficult breathing, as well as for all other forms of stomach trouble, the safest treatment is to take one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. I advise them because they contain no harmful drugs, but are composed of valuable digestives, which act promptly upon the food eaten. I never knew a case of indigestion or even chronic dyspepsia which Stuart's Tablets would not reach."

Cheap cathartic medicines claiming to cure dyspepsia and indigestion can have no effect whatever in actively digesting the food, and to food any cathartic medicine a cure for indigestion is a misnomer.

Every druggist in the United States and Canada sells Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and they are not only the safest and most successful but the most scientific of any treatment for indigestion and stomach troubles.

TRANSPORT CROWDED TO POINT OF DANGER

War Department Ignored Solicitations for Relief—Not Boats Enough for All on Board.

Honolulu, Feb. 28.—The United States army transport Buford remained in this port for the greater part of three days. The delay was due to the efforts made by the quartermaster, Captain Creary, to secure permission to leave a part of her troops here, to be carried on by the Crook on her arrival. The reason for this was that the Buford was very much overcrowded.

In addition to the hardship to the troops that the overcrowding and the inconvenience to the cabin passengers, there was an element of positive danger to workmen who had been ordered to life rafts sufficient to accommodate with any regard for safety nearly all of the people aboard her. It is claimed, great cable messages were sent to the war department, but the permission asked for was not given, and the vessel sailed for Manila, via Guam, on Saturday, February 15.

Milan Suppressed the Memorial of Gratitude in 1870.

From the New York Sun.
In connection with the semi-centennial celebration of its liberation from Austrian domination Milan will erect next year a statue to Napoleon III, the deposed French emperor. The statue is already in existence. In fact, it is nearly 40 years old, but it has never seen daylight.

The idea of honoring Napoleon for his great services in the Italian war for independence and unity was first entertained in Milan in the '60s. A national subscription was opened and subscriptions were sent in from all parts of Lombardy and Piedmont. A sufficient sum was raised and a sculptor named Tabacchi was employed. He projected an equestrian statue and could not do it, but before he had finished Napoleon's attitude in guaranteeing the temporal sovereignty of the pope caused a revolution of feeling regarding him. Though the statue was cast, nothing was done toward giving it a public location in Milan.

Then came the disaster of 1870 and the creation of the French republic. Italian Republicans at once declared that it would be heinous insult on the new regime to erect a statue to a French emperor in one of Italy's principal cities. This view prevailed and for nearly 40 years Napoleon has sat on his bronze horse in grime and neglect in the backyard of the Milanese Palace of Arts and Sciences. A few years ago there were some negotiations for its sale to a smaller Italian town which desired to honor one of its favorite sons, an Italian general of minor fame. An enterprising young sculptor engaged to put the Italian's head on in place of Napoleon's at a reasonable figure, but even he could find no way to get over the differences in the uniform, so the deal was called off.

Now the city fathers of Milan have decided that Napoleon III has slipped far enough back into history to be honored for his services. Italy without trading on the toes of France, without other sort of republicans. A site for the statue will be found in one of the squares of Milan and there will be a formal dedication with a military display and speeches in which Italian orators will dwell on the fact that it is even more to the French nation than to the dead emperor that Italy's gratitude is directed.

credit of discovering that the scoria that sweeps down from volcano vents and sears the neighboring countryside may at least be tolerated if it has to come, as an economic asset.

G. H. Seldmore, American consul at Nagasaki, has reported to the department of commerce and labor at Washington that a Japanese company organized to work volcanic ash into cement had already paid a dividend of 3 per cent for the first half year on a capital of 200,000 yen and that it had more orders in sight than it could fill. The Mitsu Bishi and Wawaaki dock yards of the empire; the government naval yards at Sasebo and the Wakamatsu iron foundry company were all being supplied with the new ash cement.

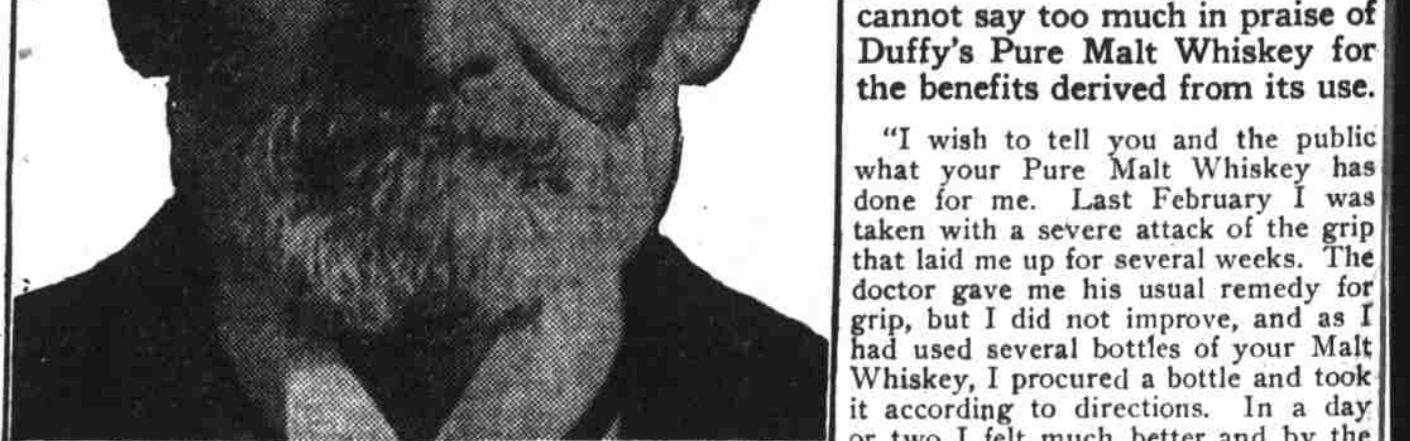

The government had recently granted a contract for 60,000 bags of the stuff to be used in the new harbor works at Koelung. Quantities have already been exported to north China, Formosa and Korea.

The ash, which is obtained from two of the great craters in the so-called Japanese Alps, running through the mountain island of Honko, near the west coast, is ground and screened at the new company's factory, and because of the nature of the composition it needs nothing but water to become very good cement. An asset the new company can count upon—the supply of crude material is inexhaustible, and the more that is carted away the more land will be uncovered for the struggling farmer.

The discovery of the new cement strikes one more American product from the list of our exports which had been necessary for Japan. The Portland cement manufactured in Oregon and Washington was the only cement in use in Japan before the Keen Japs turned the scoria into a paying proposition.

Missouri Prohibitionists intend to put an entire state ticket in the field this year.

One Bottle Cured Grip

MR. M. D. WINGATE

Mr. M. D. Wingate, of Petoskey, Mich., who was laid up with grip for several weeks, was completely cured by one bottle of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey after other medicines failed to do him any good.

Mrs. Wingate received more benefit for throat and lung trouble from taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey than from all other remedies.

Thousands of letters like the following are received from grateful men and women who cannot say too much in praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the benefits derived from its use.

"I wish to tell you and the public what your Pure Malt Whiskey has done for me. Last February I was taken with a severe attack of the grip that laid me up for several weeks. The doctor gave me his usual remedy for grip, but I did not improve, and as I had used several bottles of your Malt Whiskey, I procured a bottle and took it according to directions. In a day or two I felt much better and by the time I had used the one bottle I was much stronger. It is surely a great medicine for old people. My wife used it for throat and lung trouble and she thinks it has done her more good than anything else she ever tried."—M. D. WINGATE, Petoskey, Mich., April 12, 1907.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach. If you wish to keep young, strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions. It tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark "The Old Chemist" on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1. Illustrated medical booklet and doctor's advice free.
