

CLEAR BUT BUTTER

King Midas Buttermaker Says Skid Grease Can Be Made for 12 Cents per Pound, but Refuses to Glut the Market.

James E. Welch of Welch's Employment agency, 256 Burnside street, says he knows the secret of turning a quart of milk into two pounds of butter, as told in The Journal Saturday evening. Welch's process is very similar to that of Vincent's, and he is willing to demonstrate it to anyone who is interested. Welch also uses a mysterious powder which he says is harmless and used in the kitchen of all homes.

The best results are obtained by taking the milk fresh from the cow," said Welch this morning. "The milk should be churned in a warm bath and worked a little in order to take out some of the water. Otherwise, the milk formula is the same as Vincent's."

Vincent merely took a cup of warmed milk, put in a little of the powder, stirred it gently and presto—It was butter of a beautiful yellow and an excellent table article.

Gilberts Like Gold.
"The butter that I make," continued Mr. Welch, "will stand for seven weeks. It is splendid to cook with and is a satisfactory butter all round. I can make two pounds of butter from a quart of milk at a cost of but 12 cents. I am willing to take up the matter with anybody who has money, as I think it is a paying proposition. The manufacture of the butter would be nearly clear profit."

Mr. Welch says he knows people that are getting rich making butter this way. One woman in the east is cited who, he says, is making a profit of $300 a month from 10 cows. Mr. Welch says also that while in San Francisco in 1906 he manufactured the butter for the restaurants in that city, and it was pronounced first class.

Mayor Carl Takes Steps Regarding Town Cows, Garbage and Boys With Guns.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Oregon City, Or., March 2.—On account of stock running at large, boys discharging firearms and garbage being dumped into Falls View canyon, in violation of ordinances, Mayor Carl has appointed J. Myers a special officer to enforce the law. Violations will be prosecuted.

ELKINS EVIL GENIUS OF FULTON RATE BILL

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)
Washington, March 2.—Many of the supporters of the Fulton bill to amend the railway rate bill with respect to proposed higher rates are indignant at the position in which the measure has been placed by the giving out of a letter from the interstate commerce commission condemning the bill severely as putting too much additional work on the commission and as likely to unsettle railroad business by permitting a single shipper to force suspension of a proposed rate.

RAILROADS OBJECT TO REDUCED RATES

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Salem, Or., March 2.—An injunction to stop the reduced rates fixed by the railroad commission on the Portland Railway, Light & Power company's suburban trains from going into effect, Franklin T. Griffith for the corporation and Attorney-General Crawford, Clyde E. Aitchison and R. R. Gilmer for the state, appeared in argument before Judge Galloway this afternoon.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR DEATH OF CHILD

A jury in Judge Gastenbeler's department of circuit court this morning began hearing testimony in the case of Barbara Greene against Joseph Paquet and the Pacific Bridge company to recover $5,000 for the death of her child, Harry Greene. The little fellow sustained injuries by stumbling over a plank of bridge being built by the defendants on the east side.

THE MARRIAGE OF THE YEAR

That very unpleasant play "Zaza" was so well given by Miss Letitia Jewell and the members of the Baker stock company yesterday afternoon that the audience sat spellbound until nearly 9:30. "Zaza" is the seventh heaven of delight for theatrical actors and more emotional audiences. But even heaven, when drawn out for four hours, one would think might become a question of endurance. "Zaza" is Miss Jewell's acting not only charmed but actually carried away her audience.

LETTITA JEWELL AT THE BAKER.

French light o'love. Miss Jewell really shines in making the young woman look in the mirror. She is throughout the extremely disquieting play was of a character best calculated to play upon the emotions of those who saw it. As Cascaert, Mr. Bowles did the best work he has done for some months. It was a really fine piece of characterization. Mr. Olin has scored another victory in his stage settings and in rehearsing his company—there has been no noticeable slipping-up on lines for weeks, and this is certainly a commendable growth on the part of the members of the company.

"Walls of Jericho."

"Thou shalt not be dull" is Alfred Sutro's principal commandment, according to his own writings. To this he might have added, "Thou shalt not be purposeless," for surely "The Walls of Jericho" does not proclaim him a footless wanderer in the fields of art. It is a high moral purpose and inspired by the words of Joshua he has leveled his trumpet blasts at the walls of modern social shortcomings. And the joy of it is that he changes things about and creates a man who is abused instead of abuser.

He takes as his leading character, Jack Frobisher, a cave-man with a veneer of modernity. Frobisher marries the daughter of a marquis, in a conventional marriage of the silly, brainless, generally-accepted type. The daughter, however, is a naturally moral and good girl, the environment has been against her and attracted to Frobisher largely by his money but somewhat by his personality. She marries him. He proves to be as serious as Mr. Sutro himself and endeavors to build model tenements, spend considerable time with his children and do other out of date things.

When the eternal triangle is resolved and presents the excuse for the catastrophe, the big third act takes place. Mrs. Frobisher amuses herself innocently enough with a man whom her husband has detected. She takes pleasure in bringing her back to her proper position toward him to be as primal as he knows how and in the ensuing scene, the first time she has been with the would-be lover. Dallas, the conventional dressing-down of the marquis and finally with his wife he makes a complete and complete destruction of his home and happiness.

In the fourth act this highly moral play is brought to a highly moral conclusion. As Frobisher is about to leave for Australia his wife decides she'll rather hang on and take her place. There is a very happy and highly commendable reunion.

"Way Out West."

There is an interesting lot of characters in "Way Out West" which is playing at the Star this week. Here they are: Twin brothers, a post chaplain, a blind Indian girl, a colonel, a blackguardly lieutenant, a new gun seller, a bad Indian, the colonel's wife, the twins' mother and the chaplain's daughter. Given this polyglot and cosmopolitan cast, the play is, all together, mix them thoroughly, and then exhibit for five acts.

"No Mother to Guide."

"No Mother to Guide Her," which is a typical melodrama of the regulation quantity and quality. Three acts that theatre yesterday afternoon. This time the shattered heroine is called Bess Sinclair, a pathetic creature. There is no more unique than her character. Three out of five of the shattered are called Sinclair. There seems to be an unlucky streak connected with the name.

FELL OFF STREET CAR; SUES COMPANY

Lena Plant this morning began suit in the county court to recover $500 damages for injuries suffered in alighting from a streetcar at Eighteenth and Washington streets last December 15. She says that as the conductor was at the other end of the car when she wanted to alight, she touched the bell and the car came to a stop. She was standing and she fell to the ground. She claims $450 for medical expenses and damages of $450.

DRINKING MEN NOT WANTED

The above sign is now seen in many shops and offices in this city, because drinking men are unreliable. Competition is too keen and life is too strenuous for an employer to keep men on his payroll whose nerves are unsteady and whose brains are not clear. Every line of business is beginning to close its doors to drinking men.

CONRAD STILL OWNS PULLMAN?

Attorneys File Attachment on Cafe for Fees—Conrad Comes Through.

On the theory that John Conrad is still owner or part owner of the Pullman cafe, which he is supposed to have sold out to his bartender after revelations of lawbreaking had been made to the city council by his former attorneys late Saturday evening secured an attachment against the place to secure for them the payment of $260 in fees. The result was that Conrad "came through" with the coin and no effort was made to resist the attachment, nor did it become necessary for the sheriff to take charge of the place.

Leaflets give much information of Oregon. A plan of cooperation with local commercial organizations in publicity work has been adopted by the passenger department of the Harriman lines in Oregon. Leaflets printed especially for each town and containing the colonist rates and special information concerning the region are being furnished free by the railroad company in lots of 10,000 copies.

SOLDIERS STRIKE TOWN ON THE DRYEST DAY

A special train containing the Fourth United States Infantry, from Fort Sheridan, Wyoming, arrived yesterday in Portland over the O. R. & N. line and later in the day for San Francisco. The train consisted of 10 officers and 242 men, and with their equipment, occupied six tourist sleepers and two hours spent in Portland with two baggage cars. They were a fine appearing body of men, and were made all the more presentable by their uniforms.

FAT STEERS HEADED TOWARD CITY MARKETS

J. B. Good, superintendent of agencies for the Union Meat company, has returned from an extended trip through the cattle and sheep districts of eastern Oregon, visiting Pendleton, La Grande, Baker City and other cattle shipping points. Mr. Good's trip was made for the purpose of looking into the condition of the spring beef cattle that will be shipped from the eastern Oregon feeding ranches to the Portland market during the next two months.
