WITNESS CHAIR

Spurrell's Attorney Tries Hard to Save Her From Sharp' Point.

Miss Bessie Spurrell spent an unwillng and uncomfortable half hour on the witness stand in the county court yesterday afternoon. She had been cited to answer questions concerning what to answer questions concerning what she had done with $1,250 which she re-ceived from her father, William H. Spurrell, her mother having made affi-daylt that she was left destitute by the act of the daughter in persuading the husband and father, before his death, to sell his farm and give the proceeds to her.

Miss Spurrell's attorney endeavored to save his client from the witness stand ordeal by filing an affidavit to the effect that she received the money and has possession of all that she has not spent. Finally she was required to take the stand, but she frequently flared out in resentment over questions that were asked concerning how she had spent the money.

It developed that her mother lived apart from her father during the latter months of his life. He sent for Bessie, and she went to live with him on the farm, in Clarke county. Washington. She cared for him until his death.

It is a matter of mystery who will make up the personnel of the business men's ticket should it be put into the field. Those who are back of the plan say that no one has been picked out to make the races and that no one will be brought out until after the primaries iff April.

At that time, however, if the machine element secures the upper hand the element secures the upper hand the business men will come into the fray with a list of well known and prominent business men who will, if elected, make the Multnomah delegation the strongest delegation in the legislature in ability as well as in numbers.

TO BE SENT BACK HOME

The immigration service will be on the immigration service will be on the lookout for anarchists, and it is believed a few of them might be cap-tured here and deported. Chief Immi-gration inspector J. H. Barbour of this city says he has information causing him to believe there is a small colony of red fiag wavers in this city. Inspectors connected with the local department will be instructed to report anything bearing anarchistic earmarks department will be instructed to report anything bearing anarchistic earmarks with the intention of having the suspicions traced to the bottom. Similar steps are to be taken along the Atlantic coast, where immigrants of anarchistic tendencies drift in with the hordes of breadseekers from southern Europe and the interior of Russia.

Inspector Barbour has received authority to engage four additional watchmen and one more stepographer for the thority to engage four additional watchmen and one more stenographer for the local force. The work is continually increasing and the present staff has been found inadequate properly to carry out the provisions of the service.

Larger quarters have also been needed for a long time, and Inspector Barbour was made happy yesterday when he received permission to use another room adjoining his old offices in the custom house building. The service now occupies three rooms.
