

GERMS DUE TO BOTTLES

After Close Investigation, Dr. Pohl States Typhoid Microbe Found in Water From Graham Residence Enjoyed Milk Bath.

After a thorough examination of conditions governing the city water supply upon Portland heights, City Health Officer Dr. Esther C. Pohl is convinced that the colon bacillus discovered in a sample of water taken from the residence of F. M. Graham, 706 Homer avenue, was due not to an impure water supply, but through carelessness in transmitting the water from the house to the office of Dr. Ralph C. Matson, city bacteriologist. Dr. Pohl believes the water supply is pure and that typhoid fever at the Graham home was due to impure milk.

In speaking of the result of the investigation conducted by Dr. Pohl and Dr. Matson yesterday afternoon, Dr. Pohl said: "There is no doubt in my mind but that the water supply is all right and that the colon bacillus found by Dr. Matson in the sample taken from Mr. Graham's house was due entirely to local conditions."

Germs in Milk Bottles.

The Graham house is supplied with water from a private line that connects to the city mains. This line is about 700 feet long and it is possible that the bacilli may have infected the water through seepage. However, I do not believe this to be the case. Upon visiting the house I found several milk bottles of a type that prevent excellent carriers of disease germs and I feel perfectly safe in my belief that it was due to using milk from these bottles that Mrs. Graham was infected with typhoid fever.

"If colon bacilli are in the water supply in such large amounts as discovered by Dr. Matson in the sample he tested, the entire city west of the river would be afflicted with a great epidemic of typhoid fever. It is because we have had infected cases of typhoid in the past few months that leads me more strongly to the belief that the water supply is pure and that the sample tested was peculiar to local conditions only."

"We took several samples of water at the reservoir where the water is transferred from the flumes coming from Bull Run river into the mains that distribute the water to various parts of the city. These samples will be tested and the outcome of the tests will determine the purity of the water supply. Other samples will be procured Monday and a thorough investigation will be made."

Report In Wisconsin News.

Dr. Pohl's reassurance comes as welcome news to hundreds of persons living on the heights and in the western parts of the city. Out of 10 cases of typhoid fever reported in February seven are west of the river, but when it is taken into consideration that all of the city's commerce is practically transacted on the west side and that this condition affords the best means of transmitting contagious and infectious diseases, the source of the cases reported cannot be laid to the water supply. The chance for typhoid germs being found in the section of the pipe line feeding the neighborhood in which the Grahams live is greater than elsewhere because the private extension connects with practically a dead end of the water main. This condition often forms a breeding place for germs, but as a rule the city water department is careful to see that all such dead ends are regularly opened up so that stagnant water cannot result.

Great care was taken in procuring the samples of water yesterday afternoon and they will be carefully analyzed early this week.

Fort Worth defeated Galveston and Mineral Wells in a contest for the Republican state convention of Texas to name delegates to the national convention in Chicago. The state convention will be held in May.

GETS BUCKETFUL OF PENNIES IN PAYMENT

Bank Won't Take Coins Unless They Are Securely Wrapped in Packages.

Chester, Pa., March 7.—Concluding that he had been overcharged for an improvement which he had made to his residence, Van Buek, a merchant, tendered 5,500 pennies to Thomas D. Hannum, the contractor in charge of the work.

Hannum procured a bucket, in which he placed the coppers, and started for the bank, where the cashier refused to accept the pennies, saying that they had to be wrapped in packages of 25 each. Hannum carried the heavily laden bucket back to his home, several squares distant, and has arranged to have a penny wrapping party, to which he will invite his friends.

MAID'S KISSES ARE TOO MUCH FOR HER

Henrietta Says "Missus" Hit Her—"Missus" Says She Never Did.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
New York, March 7.—Henrietta Furor, a maid in the family of David Rosenberg of No. 1105 Amsterdam avenue, loved her mistress with such a deep and demonstrative affection that the Rosenbergs have discharged her. Her love ran to kisses and hugs. That's the reason.

Henrietta had Mrs. Rosenberg before Magistrate House yesterday on a charge of assault. She said the matron had struck her in the face for coming home late.

"The truth of this matter is," said Mrs. Rosenberg, "that Henrietta has always been a very good servant until lately, when she seemed unable to show her deep regard for me except in kisses. She would clutch me around the waist most any time of the day and hug and kiss me until I was black and blue in the face. I told her that we'd get along nicely if she'd just tell me of her affection. But Henrietta is very demonstrative."

"Last night I was reading in the drawing room when she came into the house, clutched me in a bear's grip and planted a great big splash of a kiss on my left cheek. I was getting pretty tired. So I jumped up from the chair with an indignant exclamation and approximately 14 feet square, with a large bay window facing the boulevard. In the opposite corner is a large fireplace, with a mantel of polished marble. Stained glass windows, similar to those in the Jamieson residence, furnish a delicate light.

Some of the first Mrs. Jamieson's personal effects and the furniture and bric-a-brac of her bedroom will be transferred to the tomb some day next week. The furniture will be placed just as she left it when she died.

The tomb stands where the second Mrs. Jamieson can see it as she moves about her home. This suggested the question:

"Was there any objection on the part of the present Mrs. Jamieson to the plan?"

"Not in the slightest," said Mr. Jamieson. Mrs. Jamieson, a comely woman, fondled her 3-month-old daughter and smiled assent to her husband's statement.

final resting place for the ashes of his wife, who died about four years ago. The interior of the tomb is to be an absolute reproduction of the bedroom of the former Mrs. Jamieson.

This remarkable memorial is said to be the result of an agreement between Mr. Jamieson and his three daughters. A year and a half ago Mr. Jamieson announced his intention of forming a second marriage, and introduced as his prospective bride Miss Harriet Barber, then a teacher in a Rockaway public school.

The daughters thought their mother should be remembered in some marked way, and Mr. Jamieson and the woman who was to become his second wife agreed with them. The plan for the mausoleum, which is now approaching completion, was worked out between them.

The entrance to the tomb is through two heavy doors, which are to be double locked except when Mr. Jamieson or his daughters are within. The interior consists of one large room, approximately 14 feet square, with a large bay window facing the boulevard. In the opposite corner is a large fireplace, with a mantel of polished marble. Stained glass windows, similar to those in the Jamieson residence, furnish a delicate light.

Some of the first Mrs. Jamieson's personal effects and the furniture and bric-a-brac of her bedroom will be transferred to the tomb some day next week. The furniture will be placed just as she left it when she died.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO LIVE IN A PARK?

It would be ideal, would it not? Think of the refreshing air, the abundant healthfulness, the rustling trees and the songs of the birds! A man-made park is a delightful place, but the park that Nature prepares is the most restful, most enticing spot on earth. It is wonderful to live where the great city is in sight all the time—where one can look down from the high places and see all the activities of progress. And it is equally as wonderful to be in such close touch with it all and yet live so far from it that its disagreeable features are lost in the intervening space. Truly, on the approach of spring Rose City Park is a magically charming place. Coupled with all of its scenic adornment, there are all the improvements that make one satisfied with the place where he has chosen to abide. There are graded streets, cement walks, curbs, city water, telephones, electric lights, building restrictions and the best streetcar service in Portland. If such a place suits,

THEN YOU SHOULD BUILD IN ROSE CITY PARK

The prices are the same as last year, and the terms very satisfactory. A call at the office will answer all your questions. There are several splendid building sites remaining on the Alameda.
