PORTLAND WINS FROM CHICAGO

Young Marshall Shows Class in First Big Baseball Game for Beavers.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Santa Barbara, Cal., March 12.—Young Marshall, McCredie's newest recruit, showed that he was one of the kind of pitchers worthy of a championship struggle when he won an uphill victory over the Chicago White Sox, No. 2, yesterday by the score of 6 to 5. Marshall was as cool as a cucumber all through the game and during the second inning, when Chicago was hitting him hard, worked all the steadier. After that they could do nothing with him until in the eighth inning they managed to get one run.

Aside from Marshall's splendid work, brilliant fielding by Portland's outfielders was the best work of the game. Malley, McCredie and Bassey were there when it came to pulling down the long flies.

Casey was, as usual, the man with the nifty stick. His timely wallop in the eighth inning shoved two runs across the pan, which tied things up in a knot until Kennedy broke it up with one of the same kind in the ninth.

Chicago scored first in the second, when two singles, a double and a triple, together with a booted chance on the infield, sent four white-stockinged players over the pan. These four, with a single run secured in the eighth, were all they got.

Portland got two in a row in the third and fourth cantos. In the third a two-bagger by Catcher Walsh, followed by a single by Marshall, gave them one, while in the fourth came the second.

"Marquis" Bassey started things in the eighth, when he opened the slaughter with a three-cushion smash to the fence, and scored when Ed Kennedy tried the new "sacrifice hit on a long fly to the outfield" rule. McCredie walked on four wide ones, and an error in Chicago's inner workings gave Walsh a life. Casey pulled one down the first base line and both men scored. Johnson, Bassey and Kennedy contrived to furnish the deciding tally in the ninth.

The lineup was as follows:

Portland.	Position.	Chicago No. 2.
Marshall	p	Feine, Most
Walsh	c	Armbruster
Kennedy	1b	Anderson
Casey	2b	Purtell
Mooney	ss	Osteen
Johnson	3b	LeJune

Actor-Pugilist Coming to Portland

James J. Corbett, heavyweight champion of the world from September 7, 1892, when he knocked John L. Sullivan cold in 21 rounds in New Orleans, until March 17, 1898, when he himself was knocked out in Carson City, Nevada, in 14 rounds by Robert Fitzsimmons, who will be at the Heilig March 26 and 27 in "The Burglar and the Lady." Corbett was probably the most finished boxer that ever lived, and in addition had the punch of a trip hammer.

Corbett is not a stranger in Portland, and hundreds of fight fans will recall his ten round battle here on July 29, 1889, with Dave Campbell, now chief of the Portland fire department.

Campbell at that time was the best heavyweight in the northwest, and "Gentleman Jim," who had trimmed everything in California, came north to decide who was champion of the Pacific coast. Some 8,000 enthusiasts gathered in the old Mechanics pavilion, which stood on the Market block. The fight was a hot one, and went the full 10 rounds.

Corbett at that time possessed all the science that he displayed later in his career, but had not the strength to put Dave away. Dave hung on tenaciously and made such a good showing that Referee Alex Donaldson—the same Alex Donaldson that is now superintendent of the Portland street cleaning department—called the scrap a draw. The house receipts were divided, and after expenses were paid each fighter pocketed about $1,000.

The following year the man with the pompadour locks headed toward the Atlantic seaboard, and on February 8 polished Jake Kilrain in six rounds at New Orleans. This was his big encounter, and he attracted world wide attention, inasmuch as Kilrain stood off John L. Sullivan, then champion, for 75 rounds in a bare knuckle fight at Richburg, Mississippi, on July 8 of the preceding year, before Sullivan was given the decision.

Corbett's memorable battle with Peter Jackson, the great negro fighter, occurred May 21, 1891, and the two heavyweights went 61 rounds to a draw in San Francisco. After his defeat at the hands of Ruby Robert Jim fought several battles with the best men of the day. He lost on a foul in nine rounds to Tom Sharkey in New York, November 22, 1900. May 11 of the next year he was knocked out by Jim Jeffries in 23 rounds of a 25 round fight.

Corbett had an equal chance in this battle, and might have earned a draw had he not tried to rush matters. He was outpointing the champion, but his overzealousness got the better of him and he left an opening in trying to land a decisive blow. It proved his Waterloo. He fought Jeff again August 14, 1903, but three years out of the game had left him in poor condition, and he went out by the knockout route in 10 rounds. Between the two mixups with Jeff Corbett gained some unpleasant notoriety in a scrap with Kid McCoy, whom he knocked out in five rounds in New York August 30 as per frame up.

Corbett's biggest fight and largest purse came when he defeated Sullivan. The purse was worth $25,000 and the stakes $20,000, bringing the total up to $45,000. This was the largest amount ever fought for in the prize ring.

Corbett is said to be an unusually clever actor. He was by far the best educated of the pugilists, and early displayed marked histrionic ability. The theatrical engagements of the present days pugs consist of a monologue stunt in some cheap theatre. Corbett has surrounded himself with a company of recognized merit.

VANCOUVER SHOW WILL BE SUCCESS

Entry List Continues to Grow—Portlanders Offer Good Prizes.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Vancouver, B. C., March 12.—Entries for the horse show are arriving and have so far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the managers. Already 700 entries have been made and the championship classes, not entered until the time of show, are expected to bring the total far above 700. F. M. Logan, secretary and manager, is much encouraged by the outlook and feels that Vancouver's first horse show will be one of the best ever held on the north Pacific coast.

Two valuable cups have just been received, one was donated by the Portland Hunt club and the other by T. S. McGrath, president of the Portland club. Entries are made by the following Oregon horse fanciers: W. G. Brown, William Breyman and A. C. Froom of Portland; I. D. Chappell of Hillsboro; and J. A. Jones of Newberg. Every convenience is being arranged for those who wish to visit the show by the transportation lines. Both steamboat lines and railroads offer special rates so that visitors can remain in Vancouver during the entire three days of the show, March 19, 20 and 21.

BILL HAYWARD WILL GIVE NOVICE CHANCE

Oregon Students Without "Reps" Can Show Class on Track.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

University of Oregon, Eugene, March 12.—Trainer Hayward is planning another departure in track athletics in the shape of a "novice track meet," in which only those who have not made reputations on the track will be allowed to compete.

In this way he hopes to get all the students interested in track work. More students than usual have started track work this season, many simply for the exercise, and with this incentive these will begin regular training. Besides the enthusiasm which this meet is expected to arouse, there is the chance that some man might turn out who would make good on the 'varsity.

Those who turn out will be trained carefully by Trainer Hayward himself. The meet will take place some time early in April.

LEFT PAIR TO DROWN ON DRIFTING VESSEL

Shamokin, Pennsylvania, Man and Daughter Bound for Yucatan, Deserted by Crew.

Shamokin, Pa., March 11.—Investigation is being made of the deaths of W. B. Wood and his daughter, Bertha, who were drowned off the coast of Yucatan on February 29. E. A. Wood, a jeweler of this place, was a brother of the dead man, and Miss Wood was engaged to be married to Conrad Graber, son of a banker here.

Mr. Wood was about to begin a tour of Mexico as "The Real Devil." He had been associated years ago with Kellar, the magician, in his various tours, and had obtained the rights to the use of many of Kellar's tricks, to which he added others. In these specialties, and accompanied by vaudeville performers, he had been seen in all the principal cities of South America and Europe, and at times had made large profits.

In the last winter he had been through Colombia, Venezuela, the Guianas and in the West Indian islands. A fever, however, kept him idle for many weeks, and he had been compelled to disband his company.

On his recovery, Mr. Wood and his daughter started out from Frontera to meet his partner in Progreso, Yucatan. No steamer could be had, so they took a tugboat, which was towing a schooner along the coast. On the night of February 20 the tugboat began to leak badly, and was cut loose from the schooner. It foundered about midnight, and the captain and some men came ashore in the boats and reported that the two passengers and three members of the crew had been drowned. Afterward it was learned that none of the crew perished.

E. A. Williams, the American consul at Progreso, made an investigation of the matter. It was deemed peculiar that the passengers should have been left to perish. Nothing satisfactory about them, however, was obtained from the survivors.

Carried $14,000 in Cash.

When he started on his voyage Mr. Wood had with him about $14,000 in cash, none of which has been found. Reports had reached him of the financial flurry in the United States, and he had drawn out all the money he had in the banks in New York and elsewhere and taken it with him.

Search for the bodies has been unavailing, and the captain and crew of the tugboat say they believe that they were eaten by sharks, which are numerous in that vicinity.

Miss Wood had intended to end her stage career after the close of the Mexican tour, when she was to have been married. Mrs. Wood, who had formerly accompanied her husband on his long journeys, had been ill, and was spending the winter with her father at New Castle. She has not yet been informed of the death of her husband.

AT 91, HE WEDS THIRD TIME; BRIDE ONLY 40

Widower of Two Years' Standing Marries His Housekeeper, a Widow.

Hagerstown, Md., March 11.—Now in his 91st year, Samuel McCreery, the oldest native citizen in Hagerstown, this evening announced his marriage to Mrs. Bernice A. Lambert, who since the death of the second Mrs. McCreery two years ago has been his trained nurse and housekeeper.

The bride, according to the marriage license, is 40 years of age. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock last evening at the McCreery home by the Rev. Edwin T. Mowbray, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church.

Mr. McCreery enjoys good health and is exceptionally active for one of his years. He is a native of Hagerstown. He made his start digging gold in California, and on his return to Hagerstown engaged in the stock and loan business. He is estimated to be worth several hundred thousand dollars and has no children. This is his third marriage.

MANILA BAY BEING STRONGLY FORTIFIED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Hongkong, March 12.—It is declared by recent arrivals from Manila that the Americans are working night and day fortifying the island of Corregidor at the entrance of Manila bay, and that they have put in position 60 powerful pieces of artillery. It is added that the bay is mined in a great extension.

CARICATURES OF GIRL LAND HIM IN COURT

He Labeled 'Em, Too, Her Friends Declare, and When She Argued Struck Her on Her Real Nose.

Pottstown, Pa., March 11.—Because he yielded to his weakness for caricature, Abram Mosteller Jr. of West Vincent, a town near here, has been held under $500 bail for court, and Miss Margaret Mullin, his neighbor, declares she will push the case against him to the limit.

Other neighbors say that Miss Mullin has cause for grievance. They aver that for three months, every time Miss Mullin has had occasion to pass the Mosteller barn, she has been compelled to gaze upon pictures dedicated to her and so labeled that she could not doubt they were intended for likenesses.

It seems that some months ago a coldness came between the young woman and Mosteller, and this was the method which the latter took to express his dislike. The pictures were endowed with wonderful features ascribed to the object of his enmity. Beneath some of them, according to Miss Mullin, were written sentiments which even more strongly expressed Mosteller's dislike.

The artistic efforts of Mosteller were declared by the woman to constitute a plain case of nature faking. The written sentences beneath, she said, were of such a nature that they deeply wounded her feelings. To show his determined aversion to her, whenever the snows or rain obliterated the crayon the young man would go to the barn and make a new picture, more hideous, if possible, than its predecessor. On St. Valentine's day he drew a particularly odious cartoon and dedicated it to her.

While smarting with wounded pride Miss Mullin only sniffed and paid no noticeable attention to the caricatures for some time. Then, the other day, when Mosteller was in front of her house talking to a man, she went out and asked him why he so persecuted her. In reply the young man, she charges, struck her on the nose.

That settled things. While the burlesque had caused her keen mental anguish, the blow brought physical suffering. The combination was too much for Miss Mosteller, and she took her grievance to the judge.

"CAT CAME BACK" ON TWENTY-MILE TRIP

Feline Tied in a Bag When Carried Away, but Returned the Very Next Day.

Lititz, Pa., March 11.—This is just another story of the cat that "came back," simply further evidence of the fact that cats really do that sort of thing.

Puss was the pet of the family of J. H. Buch, who recently moved from Brownstown, a few miles east of this place to Womelsdorf, twenty-odd miles away, in Berks county. When the Buch family moved the cat was given into the temporary care of a neighbor, and a few days ago Mr. Buch arrived in Brownstown for the purpose of acting as the cat's transportation agent.

After placing the cat in a bag to prevent puss from acquiring an intimate knowledge of the geography of the country, as well as of train schedules, the man started for his new home. The cat seemed satisfied with its new environments, but after purring about for an hour or two disappeared.

And "the cat came back" to Brownstown next day.
