AMERICAN CAR NEAR OGDEN LAST NIGHT

(United Press Leased Wire.) Denver, March 14.—A special from Rawlins, Wyoming, received tonight states that the Italian car in the New York to Paris automobile race is stuck in the mud at Dana, a few miles east of Rawlins. The roads ahead are in bad condition for fully 20 miles. A private message received from Wahsatch at 8 o'clock indicates the Thomas American machine had passed that point. Wahsatch is 76 miles east of Ogdene. Late this afternoon the Thomas car was making fairly good time over the Union Pacific tracks, permission having been given to use this line. If the Thomas car reaches Ogdene tonight and the Italian machine gets to Rawlins, automobile men familiar with the roads say they will play in big luck.

FRANKLIN AUTO GOES THROUGH WRECK

A mad ride in a freight car that jumped the track, sideswiped a string of cars and telescoped a house was the novel test to which a Franklin automobile was recently subjected. That it came through the ordeal with but a few strained springs well for the motor car and the manner of loading it. A Franklin 28 horsepower runabout left the factory last Saturday in a box car over the D. L. & W. bound for Baltimore. At Messingville, New York, not far from Binghamton, the axle of one of the freight cars broke and all of the cars behind it in the train were thrown off the track. The car in which was the Franklin bumped up against a string of freight cars on one side and then careened across the track and collided with a house on the other side. The force of impact made a large section of weatherboarding right through the end of the car, tearing a great hole. A four by four oak door on the car was splintered, three oil-boxes were smashed and a truss rod was bent out of shape. In spite of all this rough handling, however, the Franklin motor car came through without a scratch. The automobile was not even dented. It was immediately forwarded to the purchaser in Baltimore.

EIGHT CARS SOLD BY KEATS DURING WEEK

The Pope Hartford again demonstrated its well deserved name as the champion of hill climbers, when last week with Mr. Grant of Seattle in the car and Mr. Wallace driving, it climbed Queen Anne's counterbalance hill in Seattle. This is the first time this hill was ever climbed by an automobile, although it has been attempted many times by the best known cars on the American market. It is a grade seven blocks long and the last block inclines 23 per cent. When the news of this wonderful feat was noted about, people were ready to bet any reasonable sum that the Pope Hartford couldn't do it, and in order to convince the hundreds that lined the streets, Wallace again repeated the feat, and to show the absolute confidence that Seattle people have in the Pope Hartford, Mr. Keats returned to Portland with orders for no less than 15 of these cars.

POPE HARTFORD DEMONSTRATES ABILITY IN CLIMBING STEEP HILL AT SEATTLE

WOMAN FREED FROM FAKE HERO HUSBAND

He Published False Reports of His Bravery to Win Her, She Says. New York, March 14.—Sustaining the allegations of Mrs. Edith Gamble Fitzgerald, daughter of a wealthy commission merchant of this city, that her husband induced her to wed him by publishing in newspapers a false biography of himself, to the effect that he was a hero who had saved many lives and was connected with a noble family in England, Justice Hendrick yesterday granted her an interlocutory decree annulling her marriage to David C. Fitzgerald, formerly an attorney of Buffalo. It was shown that Fitzgerald had published statements that he had saved a woman from drowning, had rescued many other great things, all of which ought to make him dear to the heart of a trusting woman. Mrs. Fitzgerald said she found that almost all of the published biographies were untrue, and that, on the contrary, Fitzgerald had been accused of many crimes.

INFIDEL SUICIDE RAPS PUBLIC IN NOTE

"You'll Say I'm a Fool, but I Am a Philosopher," Is His Challenge to World. Butler, Pa., March 14.—Charles H. Snively, 55 years old, a prominent real estate man at Valencia, wrote: "I am not enjoying myself here and have therefore concluded to enter the sleep of death." Then he fired a bullet through his head. Snively, an infidel, lived alone. A blood-stained note on the table said: "1:40 a. m.—Have taken a shave and set time for taking off at 3 o'clock. Will fill in time picking the banjo. I view with tranquillity the end. Will take laudanum and use a bullet. "Postscript, 3 a. m.—Took two ounces of laudanum, fired three shots at myself. Am weak now. Will end here. The doctor was found this forenoon. In a note addressed to the "Curious public," he says: "It's none of your business, but I will say I am a victim of twentieth century idleness. I don't say I am a fool; I say I am a philosopher."

DEATH ENDS WOMAN'S VIGIL; HUSBAND GONE

Deranged Man Wanders Away From Home—Wife Waits at Window. New York, March 14.—Mrs. Margaret Dunn of 108 Berry street, Williamsburg, was found sitting dead in a chair at a front window of her home today. She had been dead at least two days. A week ago her husband, John Dunn, 60 years old, disappeared. He was formerly in good circumstances, but lost nearly all he had in speculation. He had converted his property into cash and deposited it in the Williamsburg Savings bank. He became mentally deranged, and while in that condition disappeared. Mrs. Dunn searched for her husband almost every day, but was unable to obtain any clue to his whereabouts. At night she would keep a vigil at the front window.

ON TRIAL FOR LOVE; SHE TURNS ACCUSER

Des Moines, Ia., March 14.—"My sisters, you have never loved," said Mrs. A. W. Hough, while sobbing which she vainly tried to control, punctuated her fervid words. "Had you loved truly, never could you have sought to shame me in public thus." As she spoke Mrs. Hough cast her membership card and a $2,000 life insurance policy in the Lador of Macabee on the table where sat the lodge's committee on morals. Mrs. Hough, who has a husband and children, imagined she had found her affinity in Representative G. C. Cottrell, of Kingsley, Iowa, who possesses great eloquence and $500,000 and who has a wife. "It was wrong, I know," she went on, "but it was a pure love that made me better. He was so fine his love made pain pleasure. You could not help yourself if love ever really came to you." She was dismissed from the order.

HAM CORBETT WILL CATCH FOR HARVARD

(Special Dispatch to Journal.) Cambridge, Mass., March 14.—Hamilton Corbett, a Portland, Oregon, student at Harvard university, has been retained at catcher on the Harvard baseball squad.
