

10 DAYS' MARKETS

REGULAR OPERATIONS BEGIN THIS MORNING—TRADE IS MUCH TOO BEARISH.

Front street features: Tomatoes down with a smash. Asparagus settling lower. Oregon onions holding firm. Potato market good and steady. Smelt run disappears again. Flour market looking for a rise. Wheat is still being purchased. Cauliflower higher in the south. Heavy demand for apples. Small deals in hop market. California cheese sells lower. Butter market good and steady. Strawberry season has started. Egg storage has started. Poultry market about unchanged.

Will Store Anyway.
The fact that almost the entire egg-storing fraternity is bearish on the egg outlook is in itself one of the chief reasons why the market is not likely to go to bottom values. The bearishness is not intense to be successful, the situation being that the egg market is a year ago in butter. At that time the trade was bearish on butter and withheld its storage operations with the expectation of raising prices for too long a period. The result was that the butter market never went to the low point the trade believed it would reach, starting at a level by a few being sufficient to send the product to a stiff position and eventually cause advanced values to rule. This is what is likely to happen in the egg market despite all the present bearishness of the trade. With the low prices in vogue in the consumption and this will take care of practically all the eggs coming. It is quite possible that the egg market will start another year, but the trade will probably get that as a limit. It is a month yet to elapse before the expected consumption of eggs, due to the low prices, the market is not expected to sway much in the near future. Just as prices are at 10c.

Small Tomato Market.
Prices are smashed in the tomato market. Mexicans are in very heavy arrival here at the present time and stocks are accumulating rather fast. At present the demand has not been considerable and prices have recently eased off considerably from the high level. Today most of the selling was around $2 per four-basket crate. California tomatoes are due to arrive here within a few days. Cauliflower is higher in the south and fractionally advanced values are shown here.

California Cheese is Selling Lower.
With the receipt of cheese from California, the local market has been further complicated and prices are more liberal supply and are being quoted out by the front street houses at 14 1/2 to 15 cents. Most of the business being at the lower figure. For California product, the present arrivals of cheese from the front street are not as heavy as they cannot be compared with the product of Tillamook and other Oregon districts. Latter are selling about 10 to 12 cents in the southern territory.

Brief Notes of the Trade.
Asparagus is down 5c a pound today with heavier arrivals here. Still lower prices expected. Onions are still reported in the local hop market, but prices are not in any way encouraging. Potatoes are fair with a steady volume of shipments to southern California and Arizona points. Oregon onions are quoted a trifle firmer but growers report plentiful supplies to last while. Quotations for best at $3. Thirds selling around $1.75. Smelt run that has ruled in the Lewis and Clark river—a coincidence, inasmuch as the season for salmon catching stopped at noon yesterday. Latter is a very well supplied with salmon. Few smelts offered. Poultry market is about unchanged, although prices are bearish in their views. Front street sells at the following prices: Prices paid shippers are less regular commotions.
