

FACES KENTUCKY MURDER CHARGE

Hi Bevans, Alias Jack Collins, Held at Vancouver —Justifies Deed.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Vancouver, Wash., March 18.—Hi Bevans, known for the past three years in this county as Jack Collins, was placed under arrest last evening by Police Officer McFarland on the charge of murdering his brother-in-law in Pike county, Kentucky, five years ago. The arrest was made just as Bevans was about to leave for Portland with his wife, Attorney Whitt of Pikeville, who has been in this section looking for Bevans, will leave for Kentucky tomorrow morning with his prisoner, having secured extradition papers from Governor Mead.

Sheriff Sappington was at Portland looking for Bevans when he was arrested. For the past three years, Collins, as he has always been known here, worked in logging camp near Yacolt. His conduct during that time has been above reproach. Messrs. McFarland, Gassaway and Croop, who are now on the police force here, have worked with Collins and say he always appeared to them as a model citizen. It was because of having known him so well that McFarland made the arrest.

Bevans declares he is innocent of any wrong. While admitting that he killed his brother-in-law, he declares it was done in self-defense.

When arrested Bevans had $500 on his person. Apparently he had learned that the officers were on his trail and had come to Vancouver from Portland to get his wife and was making a speedy return when picked up.

BRITISH PREMIER ON DEATH BED

If Campbell-Bannerman Dies a Complete Overthrow of Cabinet Is Expected.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
London, March 18.—Reports from the bedside of Premier Campbell-Bannerman today indicate that his condition is unchanged, and that his death may be expected at any hour. Should he die there will probably be a complete reorganization of the British cabinet.

Congress of Students.

FIREMEN AT WORK IN FRONT OF PACIFIC COMPANY'S BUILDING.

over other buildings and water turned on the fire through the rear windows and exits.

Ladders were used together by the firemen on the front end of the building and after the fire had spread practically to all parts of the building above the second floor.

At first the firemen were able to enter the building and get nearer the fire but this was soon impossible and they were compelled to retreat on account of the great amount of smoke and the deadly fumes from the rubber goods, which seemed to be igniting every where.

Chief Campbell arrived soon after the alarm and took charge of the fire fighting forces. While the several lines of hose were used to good effect after they had been arranged in the rear, five other lines between that of the fire boat were used effectively from the First street side. Here the men, after being driven from the interior, stood in the windows or near them as possible and guided the waters to the various places as the flames broke out anew.

Lodging-House Damaged.

So soon did the flames in the rear of the Rubber company's building break through the iron shutters and leap across the 12-foot court to the building adjoining in the rear that occupants of the Bay City rooming-house at 230 1/2 Burnside street were scarcely able to move their personal effects out of their rooms before they were smoking.

The building is a three-story brick structure owned by Mrs. Sarah Clumis. On the lower floor, facing on Burnside street, are stores and restaurants owned for the most part by Japanese. The two upper floors are occupied by the Bay City rooming-house owned by Mrs. Christina Roberts.

The flames were so hot in the little court between the rooming-house and the burning building that the wooden frames soon ignited and the east side of the building was soon smoking ominously. Mrs. Roberts called in her roomers or as many and those as she could find, and had them move out furniture and personal belongings from the rooms on the side nearest the fire.

Lines of Hoses.

When the department arrived six lines of hose were carried up through the rooming-house and the firemen fought the flames that were pouring out of the rear of the rubber company's building. Lines of hose were also carried up to the roof of the rooming-house and a detail of men fought the fire from the roof as well. They were able to keep the Clumis building from burning only by continually drenching the side wall with water. The heat in the little court was intense and the firemen were unable to stand in it until the fire had been extinguished.

Adjoining the rubber company's building on the north is another rooming-house—the Weber. This was not damaged by the flames.

Mrs. Roberts was unable to say how much damage had been done to her property, but it will probably amount to $1,500. It is covered by insurance.

POLICE STRETCH ROPES.

No Chance Given to Loot Burning Building.

Captain Moore, of the police force, was soon at the fire with a detail of men. Ropes were stretched across the different streets and traffic was practically at a standstill. Streetcars were unable to run along Burnside street for several hours. Policemen were stationed at the entrances and doors of the different buildings in the block occupied by the Hotaling building and except those who had business runs were allowed to come and go. Captain Moore took these precautions to prevent looting in case the fire continued to spread.

Electricians and telephone linemen were also soon at the fire and went about the business of saving as much of the property of their respective companies as was possible. Linemen climbed telephone poles, cut and twisted live electric wires as though they were harmless threads.

MEAT IS DRENCHED.

Boston Market Receives Slight Damages From Water.

The loss to the Boston meat market, adjoining the Hotaling building on the north, is nominal and was caused by water which soaked through the roof. Over the meat market is a rooming house which runs Hitchcock. While the furniture here was water-soaked to some extent, the damage does not amount to a great deal. Councilman Driscoll is a part owner in the meat market.

The Leonard block, adjoining the Hotaling building on the south, is occupied by the Charles F. Beebe company, ship chandlers. In the same building at 7 and 7 1/2 First street is the warehouse of the American type foundry. This concern escaped, however, with practically no loss.

TOO CLOSE IN

engers were calmed and several boats lowered, into which they piled. The boats made several trips between shore and ship, saving all of the personal effects of passengers and crew. Night was spent on the beach, where fires were built and temporary shelters erected. The few farmers at Fort Ross did all that was in their power to help the survivors, but there were too many from the Pomona to be cared for comfortably.

The Pomona was following the usually dangerous method of "close in shore" to save time and coal. Had she been a reasonable distance off shore the accident would never have happened, as no insect current exists off the point that would have sent her off her course and toward the reef.

ATLANTIC LINER HIT BY TRAMP

Kronprinz Wilhelm Collides With Crown of Castile in Dense Fog.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
New York, March 18.—The big transatlantic liner Kronprinz Wilhelm of Hamburg narrowly escaped being sunk in the upper bay today just north of quarantine when she collided with the British tramp steamer Crown of Castile in a dense fog.

Terror-stricken passengers rushed frantically to the decks and the greatest difficulty was experienced by the officers and crew in preventing steerage passengers from leaping overboard. Both vessels were going slowly at the time, however, and neither was seriously damaged. Each continued on her way.

HAYTI DECIDES TO END RIOTS

Blacks in Better Temper and Little Danger of Anti-Foreign Demonstration.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Port Au Prince, March 18.—The cruiser Des Moines arrived here today and the situation appears less grave than yesterday. There have been no street demonstrations today and the temper of the blacks which at first seemed likely to flare up over the prospect of foreign interference, has cooled perceptibly.

With American, German and English cruisers in the harbor, and a French vessel, the cruiser Des Moines, due at any hour it is now believed that the danger of another anti-foreign demonstration has passed.

General Firmin and other revolutionary refugees are still housed at the French consulate, and President Alexis has not repeated his demand for their surrender. Instead a plan has been presented by M. Borno, the conservative member of President Alexis' cabinet, which if accepted by the government will solve the present problem. The decision will probably be reached to-night.

Minister Borno proposes that the refugees at present taking refuge under the French flag be sent aboard the cruiser d'Estrees upon her arrival and deported. The French consul to give his word that should any of the conspirators be caught plotting against the present government in the meantime, they will be turned over to Hayti for punishment.

BLOCKADE IN BLUE MOUNTAINS BROKEN

Train Service Resumed; Imprisoned Passengers and Mails Released.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pendleton, Or., March 18.—The flood waters have entirely receded and traffic is now open east and west from Pendleton. Hundreds of passengers arrived here on trains this morning who had been delayed at La Grande three days. Heavy crews both east and west were put at work by the O. R. & N. to clear tracks and repair damage.

The company will suffer a loss of many thousands of dollars. There are heavy mails in from east and west today. The through traffic from the east will reach Portland this afternoon.

MULAI HAFID WANTS TO END REBELLION

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Casa Blanca, Morocco, March 18.—General d'Amade, commanding the French forces in Morocco, has replied to the peace overtures from Mulai Hafid, pretender to the throne, that he is able to promise the latter good treatment as a prisoner, but that all bargaining for terms must be preceded by unconditional surrender.

Mulai was practically driven into a corner a fortnight ago, and General d'Amade has been buying his followers to pieces ever since. His plea for peace is considered as marking the beginning of the end of hostilities in Morocco. If Mulai surrenders he will probably be sent to France to guard against fresh outbreaks under his leadership.

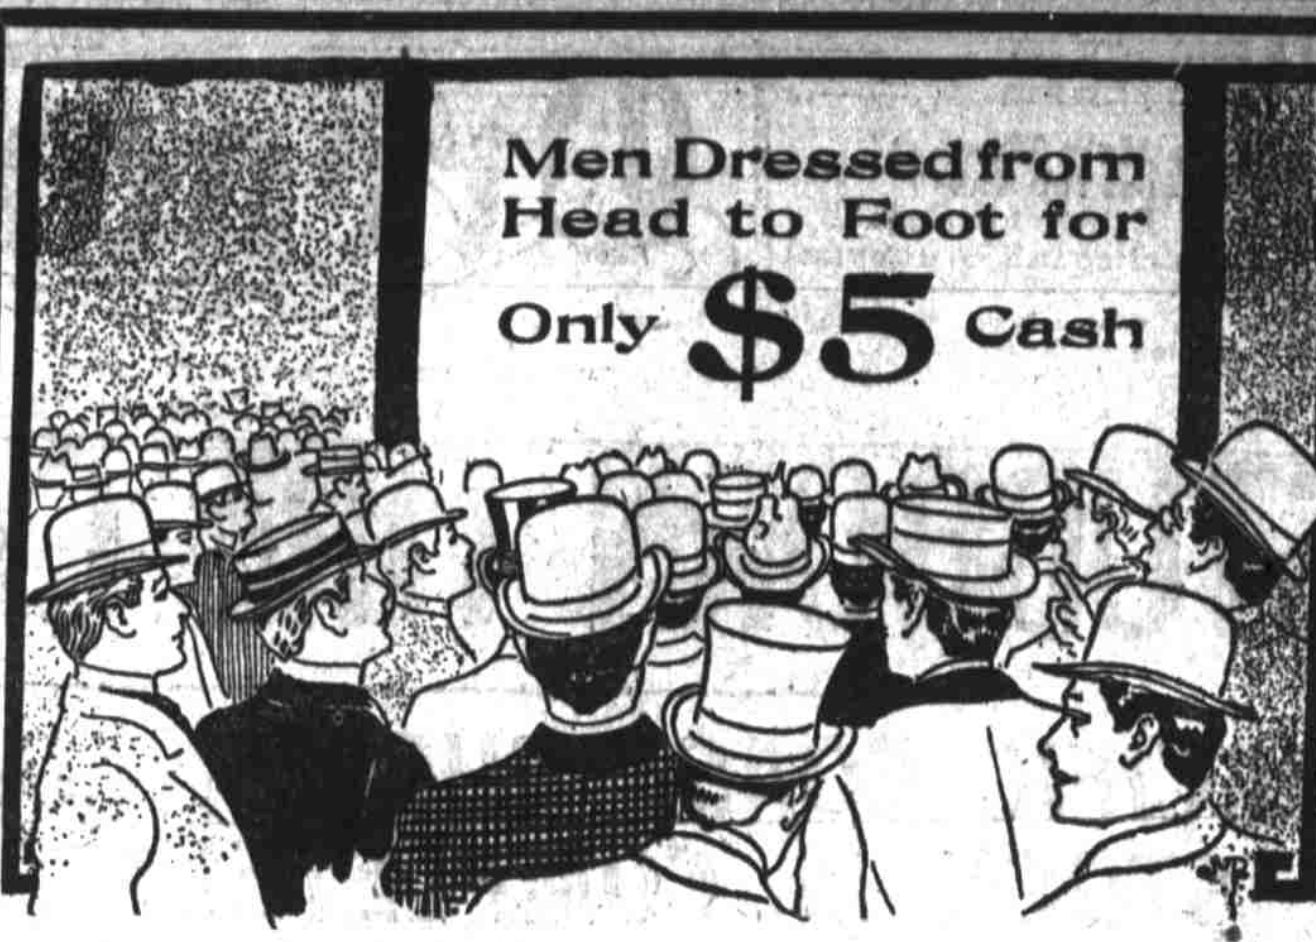

BOY IS KILLED BY GLANCING BULLET

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Diego, Cal., March 18.—Ellsworth Whalen, 17 years old, died today following a masterful shooting last night. The boy was throwing rubber balls at a negro's head for cigars when he was struck by a bullet which the police think glanced off the target in a shooting gallery next door.

David Roderick, proprietor of the gallery, and G. E. Severat, one of the men shooting at the target, have been arrested.

the bank holidays proclaimed last fall was presented to the supreme court of this state in a Whitman county case just decided.

The broad questions as to the right of the governor to proclaim a series of holidays in one proclamation, and as to whether the holidays applied to only certain lines of business, were raised, but the court found it unnecessary to decide them in this particular case. It is held that, as in the case before it, where the presiding judge was not aware that the holidays had been proclaimed and neither party objected to the proceeding, and the judgment was subsequently entered on a judicial day, such judgment is valid, even though the holidays were to be considered as legal holidays in the full meaning of the term.
