

SULLIVAN ON EXECUTIVE BOARD

Editor of Catholic Sentinel Appointed by Mayor Lane to Vacancy.

Mayor Lane has at last completed the membership of the executive board, which has had from one to two vacancies for the past few months. Yesterday he appointed P. E. Sullivan to succeed W. G. McPherson, who resigned in January. Mr. McPherson left the executive board after serving with the present members throughout the various campaigns which have beset the present administration in the handling of the city's affairs. Mr. Sullivan will also succeed Mr. McPherson on the various committees on which Mr. McPherson served.

P. E. Sullivan.

Mr. Sullivan has for the past five years been managing editor of the Catholic Sentinel. He has been deeply interested in municipal affairs and in college and since leaving college has made a special study of municipal problems.

Mr. Sullivan was born in Winooski, Vermont, in 1874. He was educated in the public schools there, and later was graduated from St. Joseph's college in Burlington, Vermont. He took the degree of LL. M. from the University of Minnesota.

After completing his education he taught in St. Thomas' college in St. Paul, and was called from there in 1900 to teach mathematics and economics at Columbia university. In his editorship of the Sentinel that paper has expanded noticeably from the editorial as well as the business standpoint.

Mr. Sullivan is a Republican. He married a Portland woman and is the father of three children.

Eloped in Bobsleigh.

From the London Daily Mail.

An elopement by bobsleigh has occurred at Bienne, where a young Swiss, forbidden to visit his sweetheart's house, carried off the girl by an ingenious ruse.

The girl persuaded her parents to accompany her up the mountain route to Eylvard to watch the tobogganing. Half way up shots of warbling were heard, a sleigh came tearing down and every one ran to the side of the course.

The girl alone stood still. The lover and his friends, who were on the sleigh, blackened speed, caught the girl in their arms and flashed down to the bottom of the run.

There the lovers caught a train to Base, where their marriage will take place immediately.

J. C. BRYANT

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR REPRESENTATIVE IN LEGISLATURE OF STATEMENT NO. 1.

I promise to support the Roosevelt brand of Republicanism, to perform the duties of my office in the interest of all the people all the time, defend the primary law and the principles of the initiative and referendum law, and I unqualifiedly pledge myself to vote for people's choice for United States senator.

ALL STATEMENT OWNERS ON TICKET

Business Men, Tired of Bossism, Will Put Out Non-machine Candidates.

Pressed by the persuasions of prominent citizens of Multnomah county a number of well known business men and residents of Portland and Multnomah county will make their appearance as candidates for the legislature during the early days of the week, taking their stand upon a Statement No. 1 platform.

This is the latest story of a political tendency to float into the circle of political gossip. Who the men will be is not yet publicly known, but it is stated by those who know of the movement that the names will be such as will command the respect and support of a great mass of the voters, once they come out as candidates.

Since the opening of the campaign and the appearance of the candidates so far in the field in search of legislative honors much dissatisfaction has been expressed by a large class of voters in favor of maintaining the integrity of the primary law, and upholding the principles of the direct election of United States senators as provided for by Statement No. 1. This class of citizens has continually sought to induce leading men to come out as candidates on a Statement No. 1 platform, and a movement with that object in view has been progressing for some little time.

The capture of the late convention by the Hodson-Beach-Balley-Reed machine combination created much dissension in the ranks of the Republican party. The loud noise made by the machine workers drowned out for a time the voice of the rank and file, and led to the belief in some quarters that there were but few adherents to the Statement No. 1 doctrine in Multnomah county.

Canvasses made by men interested in the question have shown, however, that outside of the machine element in Portland there is a strong and growing sentiment in favor of a Statement No. 1 ticket for the legislature. To meet this demand a number of prominent men have decided to enter the race. It is understood that there will be five candidates for the senate and 13 for the house, or in other words that there will be a candidate for every vacancy on the legislative list.

Once this movement is launched it is understood that the campaign will be taken up in earnest and carried on with a rush until closed by the primaries on April 17. The Statement No. 1 men will make a straight, clean fight, on the ground that the preservation of the integrity of the primary law and the observance of the popular principle of direct election of United States senators demands the observance of the Statement No. 1 pledge on the part of all candidates for the legislature. It is believed that the movement will meet with hearty support throughout the county.

GIRL, 13, WITH GUN FIRES UPON BURGLAR

Pottstown, Pa., March 20.—A shotgun in the hands of 13-year-old Alma Mowday put to flight a burglar who had broken into the Mowday residence at Pine, near here, last night.

The girl's father, Morris Mowday, a farmer, was not at home, and the thief evidently knew it. The only other persons in the house are the little girl's mother and her old aunt.

When the burglar broke a shutter and forced his way into the house, the older folks screamed and the aunt fainted. Not so Alma. She grabbed a shotgun with which she had bagged nine rabbits during one hunt last autumn and fired twice at the burglar.

He turned quickly toward the open window and disappeared. Marks of blood were afterward found on the window sill.

The girl pursued the fellow for some distance in the darkness, firing as she ran.

The International Association of Fur Workers of the United States and Canada is to hold its annual convention in Toronto early next month.

He Corners Two in the Yard, and Marches Them into the House.

Scranton, Pa., March 20.—Two men who were prowling about the home of the Rev. L. R. Foster, pastor of the Suburban Presbyterian church, late last night were arrested by the minister, who was armed with a revolver. As he heard today they were held for court.

The preacher cornered the men while they were sneaking about the yard of his house in a suspicious manner. He quietly opened a door and before the prowlers were aware of his presence, he was ready for business with them. They threw up their hands at his command and meekly marched into the house when he ordered them.

Mr. Foster telephoned to North Scranton police station and Lieutenant Ridgeway and Patrolman Lutz made a quick response, and within a short time the two men were locked up.

LARGEST WOMAN.

Negress Who Weighed 725 Pounds Died Recently in Texas.

From the Fort Worth Record.

Tipping the beam at 725 pounds, Emma Dillard, the negress who died at her home in the rear of 913 West Second street late Friday night, was probably the largest woman of her day and time. At least, the local undertakers have no record of the burial of any giant that could halfway compete in the matter of avoirdupois with her.

It required the united strength of eight men to lift the heavy body from the wash tub. Several trials were made, but it was not until the undertaker, R. C. Houston, the negro undertaker, who conducted the unique funeral. From the house it was hauled to the woodyard of the Adams Coal & Wood company and there weighed on the big wood scales. The beam rested at the 725th notch.

Justice Mabey, who viewed the remains yesterday morning, came to the conclusion that the negress came to her death from natural causes. She had been ill for several days. Her 16-year-old daughter left her seated in a chair Friday night, and returned some 30 minutes later to find her dead.

The undertaker was notified, but concluded that the body was of such abnormal size that it would be impossible to remove it yesterday morning. Accompanied by his assistant, Undertaker Houston went to the house again yesterday, but was compelled to call in six other men to aid him.

The negress at the time of her death was 36 years of age. Her physique is said to have been of more than ordinary robustness during her entire lifetime. She did a great deal of servant's work, however, up to the time of her death. For many years she earned her livelihood by washing, but was compelled to sit instead of stand at the wash tub. Several times she received an offer to place herself on exhibition with a transient show, but declined because of the exertion necessary to such a task. It is declared, however, that no "fat lady" now on the road could rise above the dwarf stages when compared with Fort Worth's big negress.

The coffin in which the body was buried was almost square. The grave was about three times the size of the ordinary grave. Interment was made yesterday afternoon in the negro paupers' lot in the City cemetery. But very few are known of the dead negress' history.

ARCHDUKE CAUSE OF ACTRESS' INSANITY

Woman for Whom Austrian Gave Up Title Raves and Tries Suicide.

Vienna, March 20.—Wilhelmina Adamovics, the actress for whom Archduke Leopold gave up his title, was driven insane by brooding over her desertion by her husband. She laid the divorce to the influence of Leopold's sister, formerly the crown princess of Saxony.

Her former husband says he divorced her because she was "scolding—incessantly scolding." The truth seems to be that she lost much of her attractiveness.

The archduke gave up his title and estates, took the name of Wolfing and married her, a fascinating but uneducated woman, in 1903. Two years later he divorced her.

Miss Adamovics considered herself very ill treated, especially because a larger allowance was not given her. She got possession of a revolver three days ago and swore she would kill Wolfing, Attorney Luchans, who got his divorce; her sister, who has been nursing her and herself. Her sister disarmed her.

Miss Adamovics was so violent yesterday morning that her sister called the police. At sight of them the unhappy woman raved, and they would not take her alive and tried to kill herself by setting fire to her clothes at a gas stove. When the police seized her she attempted to thrust a hatpin in her heart.

Physicians strapped her to a portable bed. She begged her husband to release that they set her free. Instantly she tried to throw herself out of a window.

The former archduke and his wife seemed happy until they went from their little villa at Zuy, Switzerland, to the colony of persons who lead the simple life at Ascona. The Wolfing adopted this life, wore long white robes and ate only the plainest food. The once archduke let his hair and beard grow long.

KEPT SINGING WHEN FIRE SCARE WAS ON

Wilmington, Del., March 20.—Coolness on the part of the employees and the company playing at the Lyceum theatre last night prevented serious consequences as the result of a fire scare. A fire extinguisher in the top gallery fell from its hook to the floor and caused a cry of fire to be raised.

In a minute the immense audience was rushing toward the doors and people began climbing over seats. Before the crowd reached the entrance Manager Daniel Humphries was at the main door and every employee was in his place and urging the crowd back. Then the lights were thrown on the house, flooding it with light and showing that there was no fire.

Rose Lee Tyler, a member of the Smart Set company, a negro organization, which was playing at the house, was singing at the time the scare occurred and despite the noise and confusion she continued singing and when the crowd had been pacified and returned to the seats she was still singing.

A considerable number of the people in the top gallery were on the street and did not go back to the remainder of the performance.

PLAGUE AMONG BIRDS.

From the London Pall Mall Gazette.

An outbreak of diphtheria among wood pigeons, which has been picked up in all parts of the country, and is feared that the epidemic, which is known to be highly contagious, may spread to tame pigeons, poultry and pheasants, all of which are liable to contract this ailment, which is described as a "Parasite of Poultry" as diphtheritic roup.

Wood pigeons are employed so largely for purposes of food during the shooting season, that there is need of a special warning to everybody to examine carefully every one of these birds that is brought into the house. The signs of disease are not always readily apparent, but an examination of the mouth, throat, and crop will speedily reveal a series of diseased patches of diphtheria is present. It is hardly necessary to state that birds so affected are quite unwholesome as food, and

MASTER GOES TO JAIL; DOG IN COURT HOWLS

Greyhound Had Spent Night in Jail Cell With Its Owner.

Philadelphia, March 20.—A greyhound belonging to Daniel O'Rourke created much excitement in the Central police station yesterday because he was not allowed to accompany his master to prison.

O'Rourke, accompanied by the dog, was arrested accused of disorderly conduct. O'Rourke had the dog fastened to a chain and insisted upon taking it to the police station. They occupied the one cell last night, and when O'Rourke was taken before Magistrate Scott yesterday the dog was by his side.

That his master was in trouble the dog appeared to realize. He stood up, put his front paws upon a railing in front of the magistrate's desk while the case was being heard and looked pleadingly at the magistrate.

The magistrate committed O'Rourke to prison for 10 days. A friend of the prisoner took charge of the dog, but when the animal saw his master walk into a cell again he barked and howled and created so much excitement that the hearing of other cases had to be temporarily stopped.

The animal finally succumbed to persistent coaxing on the part of O'Rourke's friend and several policemen and walked from the station. Before he got out he stopped several times and looked back in the direction of the cell.

The Master Painters' association and about 40 independent firms have signed a two-year agreement with the Cincinnati local Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper-hangers of America. The firms agree to employ none but union men.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which added more than 50,000 to its membership rolls last year, is planning the erection of a fine building in Indianapolis to serve as the general headquarters of the organization.
