

OREGON INTERSTATE DEBATORS READY FOR CONTEST

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) University of Oregon, Eugene, March 20.—Preparations for the big debate with Idaho which is to occur here Thursday night are nearing completion and more than usual interest is being taken in the affair. On the whole Oregon's chances of winning seem very good, although three out of the six members of the two teams are new this year. However, they have shown excellent form in local debates and have been working very hard.

The three state universities of Idaho, Washington and Oregon will each have two teams in these debates, an affirmative, which remains at home, and a negative, which visits one of the other institutions. Thus, Oregon's affirmative team will debate with the Idaho negative team at Eugene, while on the same evening her negative team is debating with Washington's affirmative team at Seattle and Washington's negative and Idaho's affirmative teams are debating at Moscow. All will debate on the same subject and the winner will be the university whose two teams receive the greatest number of favorable decisions from the judges. The vote of each judge counts as one point.

ton Nicholas, '10. Eaton was at first a member of the negative team and Townsend was on the affirmative team, but their places were exchanged, as in the preliminaries they had been on the other sides and the change would necessitate working over entirely new material. The Idaho team which will debate here will be: Robert O. Jones, leader, Bruce R. Mudgett and Jewett Matthews. The judges of the debate which is to take place here are: President Crooks of Albany college, Professor Pridoux of Willamette university and probably Attorney Earl C. Bronough of Portland. A reception has been arranged in honor of the two teams and of Bert Prescott, winner of the intercollegiate oratorical contest at Monmouth, which will be held at the dormitory under the auspices of the Laurean and Philological literary societies Monday night. The next morning the negative team will leave for Seattle.

DOUGLAS MAY BE CANDIDATE

Former Governor of Massachusetts Talked of for Bryan's Running Mate.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Washington, March 21.—As it is generally admitted that Mr. Bryan will be the Democratic candidate, more and more there is talk heard among leading Democrats at the capital of ex-Governor William L. Douglas of Massachusetts being his running mate. If Mr. Douglas should be nominated it is the opinion of some Democrats that he would make Massachusetts fighting ground.

In this connection there is an interesting story current to the effect that should the Democrats nominate Mr. Douglas the labor vote will be cast for that party. Mr. Douglas is the proprietor of large shoe factories in the bay state and has the reputation of being a friend of the workman. According to the statement of one of the state officials of the American Federation of Labor, former Governor Douglas "rings true, and during his gubernatorial incumbency he showed his friendship for organized labor by his deeds rather than by words."

Was Poverty-Stricken. The life story of Mr. Douglas is a story possible nowhere but in America. Yesterday he was poverty-stricken; today he is a multi-millionaire. Yesterday he worked from daylight until dark for $5 a month at the shoemaker's bench, toiled in cotton for 23 cents a day, tramped sturdily behind a four-ox team and prairie schooner across the plains of the great west, toiled as a common laborer about a lime kiln; today he manages a business employing 3,000 men and women, with several large factories and upwards of 100 retail stores; is a bank president and a director in other large enterprises.

Used His Picture. A Washington friend tells an interesting story concerning Mr. Douglas and his advertising methods. They didn't publish pictures in the daily papers when Mr. Douglas first entered business for himself, in 1876. No advertiser had ever made a practice of printing his portrait in the daily papers. Mr. Douglas was small, he had begun it on a borrowed capital of $175, and he believed that the way to increase it was education. He was a clever ad writer in the days when there were few men following that as a business. He thought out some good ideas—and others copied them.

One night he was walking home from his factory with his head bowed in thought. He concluded that there was no use to put originality in his advertising so long as it was of a sort that other and larger manufacturers could copy. And as he pondered his eyes chanced to light upon a long billboard, blazing from one end to the other with lurid and glowing descriptions of the glories of Barnum's circus. In the center of the board, occupying the space from the top to the bottom, was a picture of P. T. Barnum. "They can't copy Barnum's advertising so long as he has his picture in it," was his thought, and the idea has since contributed so largely to his business success followed like a flash. The next morning he set out to the effect of the combination of picture and attractive wording in advertising. He then and since, however, stuck to his belief that newspaper advertising was better in its results than the billboards. Today the face and the wares of Mr. Douglas could not be more advertised than they are. The Kaiser could shave his moustache, but no one would believe the ensuing pictures were of him. Mr. Douglas could cease to join his features and his shoes in his advertising, but the public would not believe they were the same kind of shoes.

the reception and gave the minister and his family welcome. Rev. Alexander Maclean is a Scotchman by birth and received his education in the old country, passing first through the public schools of Scotland, then taking an academic course in England and returning to Scotland for a three-year course at Andersonian university of Glasgow. He came to America while a young man and began preaching in 1854. He was six years in the South Kansas conference. During his 16 years' ministry there he occupied pulpits in all the principal churches of the conference. He was six years presiding elder and was also pastor of the First Methodist church of Ottawa. He was then transferred to the California conference and was given the church at Phoenix, whence he was transferred here.

Both the minister and his wife are highly pleased with Oregon and hope to make this state their permanent abiding place. The pulpit of Newman church was recently vacated by Rev. C. O. Miss Katherine Elkins did not accompany him as his bride, but from his smile and general bearing it was evident that the young nobleman was anything but downhearted. While no announcement of the engagement has been made by the family of Senator Elkins, it is understood that the entire matter has been arranged on this side of the water, and that the due is sailing today for a conference with his royal cousin, the king of Italy, which is expected to remove the last straw in the young couple's path.

WOLVES ATTACK ITALIAN AUTO

Hungry Beasts Snap at Tires and the Driver Kills Several. (United Press Leased Wire.) Cheyenne, Wyo., March 21.—A pack of hungry timber wolves, leaping from the woods, attacked the drivers of the Italian car Zust, running in the New York to Paris race, and were only driven off after a number of them had been killed. The car was running along a muddy road near Spring valley, when the cry of the wolves was heard. A moment later the machine was surrounded by them. At first the Italians tried to drive the animals away by tooting their horns, but this did not frighten the beasts. It was when they began to snap at the tires that the Italians brought their rifles and pistols into play and killed many of them.

GARLAND GAS RANGES

We have just received a carload of GARLAND GAS RANGES, which includes many different styles and patterns, ranging in price from $11.00 for the single oven, three-burner stove, to $125 for our combination three-oven range. More gas ranges are now being sold and used than ever, but people realize that in the "GARLANDS" they have reached as near perfection as possible. Gas stove buyers are fast learning that the "GARLAND" trade-mark stands for superiority. Tests made between coal ranges and gas ranges have showed surprising results. In a test of both, the loss with a coal range was 2 pounds and 15 ounces and with our gas range the loss was only 1 pound and 9 ounces. On an average meal the loss of nutritive properties in foods when cooked over a coal range was 30 per cent against 16 per cent loss by OUR gas range. There can be but one BEST, and we claim that GARLAND GAS RANGES are the real best. We wish especially to call your attention to our new elevated oven and boiler as per cut shown. This construction is sure to prove the most convenient for the operator. Saves stooping and back-breaking and is the highest grade and best specialty before the public, more economical in the consumption of fuel than ANY OTHER GAS STOVE MADE, a feature which must appeal to any buyer. Our price on this stove with 16-inch oven is $27.00.
