

BULL RUN CONTROVERSY WILL GO INTO COURTS

Council Stands With Mayor for Once in Its History in Fight to Protect Portland's Water Supply — City Dads Kill Both Mt. Hood Railway Ordinances.

Owing to the belligerent attitude of C. W. Miller, representing the Mount Hood Railway & Power Company, peaceful negotiations between the city and the company were broken off at yesterday's council meeting, and the differences will be fought out in the courts.

For once in the history of the present city administration the council sides with Mayor Lane on a proposition which involves the city's interests. After the council meeting yesterday a love feast was held which nearly every councilman attended, and Mayor Lane explained his position in the controversy which has existed between the city and the company. The councilmen listened attentively and when it was ended all parties were agreed that the only way to safeguard the city's rights to Bull Run river water would be to take a unanimous stand in the fight that is expected to follow.

The battle cry which Mayor Lane and the councilmen will fight under is "No quarter until the company relinquishes all of its claims to Bull Run water." Even Councilmen Willis, Annand, Colara, Driscoll, and every other member of the majority party are agreed with Mayor Lane on the water proposition, and to those who have watched the fight between the councilmen and Mayor Lane, which has been especially bitter for the past few weeks, the change which came yesterday by Miller's action and statement was a revelation as to what could be done with the executive and legislative branches of the city government working in harmony.

the council yesterday which provided for a right of way across the city's property in the Bull Run reserve and giving the city all the right which the company claims to Bull Run water. The measures were referred to the committee on judiciary and elections in order to make a few changes which were deemed necessary to properly safeguard the city's rights. Everything was going along apparently to the satisfaction of the city and the company when a dispute arose as to the provisions of the ordinance giving the city absolute power in the matter of water rights on the river.

Miller then caused the break by stating that if the city did not like the ordinance he would take the matter up in the courts. That was enough. The ordinances were recalled from the committee, placed on final passage and unanimously defeated. Miller left the council chamber, and so far as the city is concerned can take his case into court.

Many of the councilmen contend that Miller not only treated them with contempt but that he broke faith with them. Miller promised that he would give the city everything it asked for in the way of water rights on Bull Run and that the company wanted was the use of the excess water which the city could not use. This was deemed fair by the councilmen, and Mayor Lane was willing to agree to this proposal, but it was the understanding that the city should have control of the water.

Miller's ordinance provided that the city "should" have the power but the councilmen wanted the ordinance to read that the city "has" the power.

Miller objected to this on the ground that his company is seeking to condemn property for its railroad and would be no longer bound by the terms of the ownership of the water rights. City Was First Claim.

Councilman Willis started off for the majority party by saying that he wanted to see the city turn over all its claims to water in Bull Run over to the city and let the city grant the company such waters as the city could not use.

"Let the city be the first party in this matter. Papers can be drawn by the city attorney which will properly protect the company's interests and give us the control of the water."

Willis was followed by Councilman Chamberlain, who also stated that the ordinance was equally forcible and used the circle of desks in the council chamber to illustrate the point he was making. Other councilmen followed and when they finished there was no doubt left in the mind of any present that the city would grant the water to the company until the full power and control of the water rights of Bull Run river had been vested in the city.

Mayor Lane took no little part in the debate and asked Miller whether his company had not made filings above the intake of the city water supply. Miller equivocated in his reply. Mayor Lane asked the question three or four times before Miller finally admitted that the company had filed a short distance above the intake, but stated that the company would not use the water if the city needed it.

This was the end of the fireworks and when the debate was finished the positions of the city and the company were defined without any further delay. Chamberlain followed and when he finished, Had Miller kept his promise made to the council several weeks ago all negotiations would have ended and proper rights to both parties been secured. As it is the matter will go into the courts and it is probable that the city will win.

That no difficulty was expected yesterday in settling the dispute between the city and the company was shown by the arrangements which had been made for the executive and water boards and Mayor Lane to Bull Run river to determine what the conditions are. After the arrangements were killed the trip was called off.

TRONG OREGON'S GRAND OLD MAN

Judge George H. Williams Guest at the Arlington Club's Banquet.

As mentally vigorous on his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary as at any time in his remarkable career, Judge George H. Williams, "Oregon's Grand Old Man," argued a case in court yesterday afternoon and last night was the guest of honor at a brilliant banquet in the Arlington club.

Judge Williams, whose life as a public man has been prominently identified with nearly every movement of importance from the Oregon bar to the present, framed of the fourteenth amendment, friend of Lincoln and Stephen Douglas and attorney-general under President Grant, according to the position of foremost citizen of Oregon, and the dinner last night was in the nature of a testimonial from the prominent citizens of the state.

Ex-Senator John M. Gearin presided at the dinner, which was attended by members of the judiciary, United States senators and the Oregon bar. Governor Chamberlain spoke at some length in review of the interesting history of the veteran jurist. He said in part: "The city will honor in me its impossible to go into detail as to the services of our distinguished fellow-citizen in his capacity as judge, as constitutional maker, as senator and as attorney-general of the United States, or to refer to specific acts and their relation to the growth, development and welfare of our nation. It is sufficient to say that in whatever capacity he was called to serve the people, the same integrity of purpose, fidelity and zeal were called into action and the best results possible always attained."

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA

Why External Applications Will Not Give Permanent Relief and How Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure These Troubles

Lack of blood is almost always associated with neuralgia. One medical authority has defined neuralgia as "the cry of the nerves for better blood." This is true because the nerves receive their nourishment through the blood. Build up the blood, the impoverished nerves are fed and the neuralgic pains disappear.

Thus it is seen of how little permanent benefit a local or external application can be in the treatment of neuralgia or sciatica, which is a form of neuritis. It also shows how exactly suited to the cure of neuralgia and sciatica is such a remedy as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which act BOTH on the blood and the nerves. These pills have direct action on the nerves, which affords temporary relief from the sciatic pains, these pills build up the blood, enabling it to give proper nourishment to the nerves, and prevent the further development of the disease or a return of it, so long as the blood is kept rich and red.

MASTER TAILORS WITHHOLD RAISE

Over 100 Journeymen Still Out on Strike for Wage Increase.

Although a number of the boss tailors of the city have signed an agreement offered by the tailors' union of Portland, which is out on a strike, and have agreed to give the tailors the raise they ask for, the members of the Master Tailors' association have not yet come through with the increase and more than 100 men are still out.

The national union expected us to strike against a reduction at that time, but the union granted the request of the bosses.

"We consider the conditions now arising are normal, and in holding our ground, we are repaying the bosses we were first willing to meet with a committee from the union and arbitrate the matter."

FRISKY MINORS MUST WATCH A LITTLE OUT

Tell-the-Truth-About-Your-Age-Johnny Ordinance Passed.

An ordinance making it a misdemeanor for minors to secure liquor from saloon-keepers by misstating their age was passed by the council yesterday afternoon. Councilman M. J. Driscoll introduced the ordinance, which not only protects the saloon-keeper but also protects the city's interests in that any saloon-keeper accused of selling liquor to minors will be compelled to show evidence that the minor represented his age in securing liquor from such saloon-keeper.

COITEL THANKFUL FOR SMALL FAVORS

In what was one of the oratorical speeches of the present council, Councilman Coitel yesterday afternoon explained his attitude toward Schwartzschild & Sulzberger, in which he said that no time has been wasted in the packing firm doing business in the vicinity of Portland, but had opposed the location of the packing plant within the city limits, and especially in South Portland.

VAUGHN FORESHADOWS LEMON FOR HIMSELF

The ordinance licensing chimney sweeps was defeated in the council yesterday when it came up for final passage and Councilman Vaughn, who has been in the minority on every question that has arisen in the council, helped defeat the measure. When the vote was announced Councilman Vaughn asked if the measure had been defeated. Upon an affirmative response he said that he had so understood it but did not think that he could possibly have been in the majority party. A laugh arose and some one asked: "What will you do to square yourself with your constituents?" "Well, I suppose I should be impeached," replied Vaughn.

CHINKS STILL HOLLER FOR RETURN OF FINES

Another appeal to the circuit court for writ of Review.

Another appeal to the circuit court for a writ of review to overthrow the action of Judge Cameron in convicting a bunch of Chinese gamblers has been made, this time on the ground that the rights of the defendants were violated in summoning the jury from courtroom to courtroom in the courtyard.

The attorneys for the Chinese contend that the chief of police has the power of "railroading" an accused man in the municipal court by controlling the selection of a jury. The usual method is for the clerk to issue a blank subpoena, which is filled in with the names of the jury as it is picked up by an officer in the courtroom, and sometimes on the street. In the case in question the Chinese demanded that the jury be called from the jury list, and it is claimed that under such circumstances the conviction cannot be upheld.

Avoid Secret Stomach Remedies

Because Most of Them Contain Dangerous Ingredients, Which Produce the Drug Habit.

Thousands of people, having dyspepsia or stomach troubles in some form, continually "dope" themselves with all sorts of secret tonics, drug, Elixirs, cathartics, etc., which not only inflame and irritate the stomach and intestines, but in many cases, by stimulating the opium, morphine and cocaine habits.

You have a right and should demand to know what any medicine contains before you take it, if it is put up or recommended by some reputable physician. Fakes and quacks will put most anything into their secret preparations, like their usual practice, to make you the victim of some drug habit, which will ruin your health in a short time.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a secret remedy, they do not contain injurious drugs, and they are recommended by thousands of physicians in the United States and Canada to their patients for dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach, indigestion, flatulency, resulting from improper digestion of food.

These wonderful tablets actually digest food because they contain the elements that are required of a healthy stomach to properly digest food, thus they do not substitute and giving the overworked digestive organs a rest and a chance to regain their former health, strength and vigor.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain fruit and vegetable essences, the pure concentrated tincture of hydrastis, and golden seal, which tone up and strengthen the stomach, and increase the flow of gastric and other digestive juices; lactose (extracted from milk) used to strengthen the gastric secretions, and to control the action of the stomach; bismuth, to absorb gases and prevent fermentation, and pure aseptic pepsin, to constitute a complete, natural, speedy cure for any stomach trouble.
