"The German government has ordered ambassador Sternberg to make it clear to Fresident Roosevelt that the kaiset never objected to the appointment of Mr. Hill and to point out how grossly his majesty's name has been misused. The entire regrettable affair is due to Ambassador Tower's misleading statement to the state department."

In view of the fact that the official statement of the German state department yesterdey admitted that "doubt had arisen as to whether Mr. Hill would be comfortable at Berlin," but declared that "this doubt has now been removed." It looks as though Mr. Hill has been the victim of a bungled job of diplomatic knifing.

PAYS FOR SOMETHING BESIDES PROPERTY

Two charges of assault and battery, preferred two months ago against H. Rand. a local real estate man, by John Leiand Henderson of Hood River and H. H. Riddell, a Portland lawyer, were disposed of today in the police court. Rand was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 on each charge.

The assault complained of occurred in Rand's office in the Abington building on the afternoon of January 23. Henderson had received an abusive letter said to have been written by Rand in connection with the sale of some real estate. Henderson, accompanied by his attorney, Riddell, visited Rand's office for the purpose of demanding an explanation. A row resulted, out of which both Henderson and Riddell emerged much the worse for wear and tear.

Rand has given notice of appeal from the judgment and sentence. Two charges of assault and battery

Bodies of Cleveland Music
Teacher and Young Pupil
Found by Police.

(United Press Lessed Wire.)
Cleveland, Ohlo, March 30.—Lying alde by side on a roadside, with bullets through their hearts, the bodies of Carl Bernthaler, a music teacher, and Lena Ziechmann, one of his pupils, were found today. The position of the bodies indicates that Bernthaler shot the girl and then killed himself.

The tragedy is thought to be the end of a romance that dates back to the time when the couple attended high school together. They were seen a great deal in each other's company, but their friends know of no quarrel between them.

No evidence of a struggle could be found. The police are today questioning the relatives and friends of Bernthaler and Miss Ziechmann in an off-fort to learn the cause of the murder and suicide.

The police learned that Bernthaler was married and had been secretly meeting Miss Ziechmann for six months. When Mrs. Bernthaler was asked to view the remains of her husband she collapsed and was unable for the time being to comply with the request. Disowns His Daughter. fuls. When he complained about his treatment at home she advised him to go and live with his daughter and he exclaimed, "That's another hel!" he exclaimed, "That's another hell! Don't call her my daughter, for she is not my daughter, and never was."

Dr. Stratton said that on the night of the first proposal, early in 1902, Myers told her that the night before he came near to ending it all. She asked him what he meant, and he said he had been on the point of jumping out of his wirdow when members of the family came in. The witness said she told him it was a pity he did not make a good job of it. She explained that she did not think Myers was in earnest, balleving he was only talking for sympathy.

HUNGARY REPELS ABSENT DEAD

Laws Against the Admission Bodies for Interment Within Its Boundaries.

Cincinnati, March 30 .- Hoping to find and make a wife of his sweetheart, Anna Urborn, Frederick Fidel Kramer. aged 20, the only son of wealthy aged parents, residing in Orczyfalva. Temes, Hungary, came to this country in April, 1905, and, dying in Cincinnati, was buried in St. Mary's cemetery. After several months had enapsed his parents learned of his fate and they moved heaven and earth to overcome the laws of Hungary against admitting within its boundaries bodies for reinterment. Influence and money were necessary to obtain such permission. They used both, but only after endless formalities had been complied with was the reluctant consent given. The stipulation was that Kramer's body must be exhumed in the presence of the Hungarian consul, who came especially from Cleveland to comply with this order and to certify his action back to his government. aged 20, the only son of wealthy aged land to comply with this order and certify his action back to his government.

The remains were then turned over to Undertaker Osseforth, who was compelled to place them first in a copper casket. This was put into a zinc-lined receptacle, and the two into a tin casket, hermetically sealed, and then into a wooden box.

The Hungarian government's demand stipulates further that the bddy be accompanied by a guard and George Giel of 415 York street, a fellow townsman of Kramer, will undertake this office. Through the Brighton German bank, passage for the body and Giel has been secured on the North German line, and, as soon as the Hungarian border is reached, a special train will be in waiting to carry it to its destination. The entire cost of the transportation for the body until it is once more laid to rest will be $750.

The woman for whose sake Kramer left his native heath and found death in a strange land was Anna Urborn, and is now Mrs. Nicholas Scabbon. She mourned for the adventurous lover who gave up the affection of his parents and their vast wealth until Scabbon wooed and won her.

To assist her husband she is now working in the grocery of Johann Joseph, also a Hungarian, at Bank and Central avenue. She was not present when the body of her dead lover was exhumed.

Jose Maria Moreno, owner of the Sala Pedro ranch, committed suicide by allowing a buil to gore him to death in full view of 300 persons.

Spectators were friends and neighbors whom he had invited to the scene, promising an exhibition superior to the regulation buil fight.

For several moments they watched him as he tormented a buil in the cattle pen, which he had entered, armed only with a stick, at the end of which was fastened an iron prong, and applauded his cleverness in sidestepping the charges of the enraged animal.

Suddenly it became apparent that he was taking risks greater than the professional buil fighter usually exposes himself to, and a cry of horror went up, from the crowd when he stood directly in the path of the buil and adjusted his body so that one of the horns must penetrate near his heart.

The animal struck him, and as he fell it became maddened by the sight of blood and gored him repeatedly.
