DON'T MISUNDERSTAND US

The Hub secured many thousands of dollars' worth of fine goods, both out of the Chicago's Portland stock and finest goods ordered for spring trade. The Chicago changed hands and while the stock was being invoiced, in March, eastern manufacturers kept on shipping goods. Neither the new nor old proprietor of the Chicago would accept the goods. Sooner than enter litigation the eastern manufacturers allowed big discounts. The Hub gobbled up the whole lot. That's the story, plain and true. You get the benefit—that's the point that will interest you.
