High Canned Salmon Prices.

While it is as yet rather early for predictions of opening prices of the 1908 pack of Columbia river and Alaska salmon, The Journal is informed by well known authorities that the range in values this season will be higher than during 1907. It is practically a certainty that Columbia river salmon will sell at $1.70 for pound talls at the opening as compared with $1.65 a year ago. Some interests are endeavoring to put the price 5c higher than that and may succeed on account of the great strength of the world's salmon market. Under the present understanding half pound talls of Columbia river fish will be quoted at $1.10 compared with $1.05 a year ago. However, it is not likely that much of the product will be sold at this figure, as packers expect an advance, canners already having more orders than they can fill, and will probably ask $1.15 for halves. Flats will be advanced 10c in any event, says The Journal's informant; the prospective price for 1908 being $1.85 compared with $1.75 at the opening of the 1907 season.

Alaska Packers Getting Ready.

Alaska salmon packers are getting everything in readiness for the opening of the season in the far north. At this time the indications are that the run in southwestern Alaska—around Juneau and Wrangel—will be rather light as compared with the previous season. Much the larger per cent of the fish caught in southwestern Alaska is of the pink variety and therefore the cheapest product. Indications likewise point to a good pack in the northern waters of Alaska, in the vicinity of Bristol bay. The catch in that vicinity has been rather good in recent years and packers expect a continuation during the coming season.

Alaska Reds to Open High.

Because of the very limited supplies of all grades of canned salmon throughout the world at this time, it is fully believed by packing interests that opening prices on Alaska reds will reach 20c over the initial values of a year ago, which would put red talls at $1.25 per dozen. While the reds opened a year ago around $1.05, the bulk of the pack was sold 10c higher than that, so the trade expects practically no difficulty in obtaining $1.25 this season. Pinks are not in so much favor but the price on the trade will in all probability advance 5c over a year ago, or 85c a dozen, as compared with 80c at the opening of the 1907 season.

Fishers Receive Good Pay.

Although no price has yet been set by which Columbia river canners will buy their fish this season, it is generally agreed among the trade that last year's values, or a fraction better, will rule. A year ago cannery fish, weighing under 25 pounds each were purchased at 5c a pound, while 1c advance over this was paid by storage operators for larger sizes. Inasmuch as there will be a very heavy demand this season for the fresh fish as well as for canning, it is quite likely that last year's figures will be increased by ½c a pound as a premium to fishers to bring in larger supplies. The new season on the Columbia opens April 15 at noon.

Put Onions Up to $5 Today.

While the effort may not prove successful, several handlers along Front street will endeavor to advance the price of onions to $5 per 100 pounds today.

Crabs are very scarce—likewise all small fish. Razor clams again plentiful, however.

Supplies of halibut are better and a drop in values is expected next week when a number of boats arrive.

Talk in the wool market continues bearish. Same in mohair. According to reports from Yakima, wool hauling there is in full blast.

Dressed meat market is not quite so firm although for something select 9c is sometimes obtained along the street.

Potato demand is steady with fancy quality still being sought at the higher range quoted yesterday.

Eggs are holding well at unchanged values.

Poultry market is firm, but unchanged in price.

At the drop quoted exclusively by The Journal yesterday the flour market is steady. Wheat holding though quoted nominal.

Front street sells at these prices. Those paid shippers are less regular commissions:

BUCKET OF MILK IS ALMOST FULL NOW

Creamery interests believe that butter values will drop early in the coming week. As a prominent maker said this morning, "the cows are giving a full bucket of milk." This is reason enough for the prospective drop. At this time supplies are increasing gradually but no glutted stocks are shown here.

BELIEVE EGGS WILL HOLD THEIR PRICE

"Eggs are in good supply but prices are well maintained and we look for no great change one way or the other in the near future.

"Butter is coming in more freely and prices are weaker. We look for lower prices in the near future.

"The poultry market this week has been in good shape from a seller's standpoint, and receipts have been inadequate. Hens and young roosters are very good sellers, and broilers and fryers are very scarce. Ducks are firm, and geese will now sell. Squabs are firm and in demand. I believe that there will be a very good demand for poultry the coming week, and advise liberal shipments.

"Veal has been in very large supply and is weaker, but fancy calves will still sell, and at very good prices. Pork receipts have been quite liberal, but prices for fancy have been well maintained."—Tom Farrell of Everding & Farrell.

WEATHER REPORT

A disturbance, evidently of great magnitude, is central over British Columbia and another disturbance is passing to sea off the New England coast. The barometer is relatively low over Arizona. The western high pressure areas have united, contracted in area, and moved to the lower Mississippi valley. Rain was falling this morning along the Washington coast, but elsewhere on the Pacific slope none had fallen prior to 5 a. m. Light snow has occurred at scattered places in the lake region, middle Atlantic and New England states. It is much warmer in the Missouri valley and also in eastern Oregon, southeastern Washington, Idaho and Wyoming. The temperatures have fallen decidedly in the Atlantic and gulf states.

The indications are for showers in this district tonight and Saturday. It will be warmer tonight in northeastern Washington, eastern Oregon and southern Idaho.
