

GRATED REUSE OF EACH PROBLE

Rev. E. S. Muckley Talks on Covetousness at First Christian Church.

LESSON GIVEN YOUNG MAN BY CHRIST'S PARAB

No Need of Arbitration When Employer and Employee Are Dominated by Spirit of Christ.

One Line short...

In his evening sermon at the First Christian church, Rev. E. S. Muckley took for his sermon, "When Greed Sits Enthroned." He spoke in part as follows:

"Take heed, and keep yourselves from all covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth. These words from our master have sounded a rod so deep in our nature that the plummet has not yet reached the bottom in many who claim to be Christians. Note the occasion of their utterance."

"A young man impressed with the teaching of Christ asks him to command his older brother to divide the inheritance with him. The older was delaying the division, the younger one was in a hurry to get his share. Trouble arose. Not the first for the time, as our seniors will attest that trouble arose over an inheritance. Inheritances have damned a good many thousands since Jesus words were written."

"Two men, of closest possible kin, who should have lived in mutual love, whose interests should have been common, fail to agree over the division of an estate from which they had been common sharers before the father died. Filial love quenched, their father's wish ignored, they dishonor their dead sire by quarreling over what his solicitude care had provided for their future needs. The younger boy comes to Jesus insisting upon having his rights. Jesus refuses to arbitrate. Arbitration would not have changed them. They would have been as mean as before."

"They would have gone on practicing their covetousness, hating and hating, and missing the deeper riches all their lives. They both needed transforming. Both thought they were right, but both were radically wrong. Greed sat enthroned in the life of each and made them unnatural sons of their earthly father and heavenly father alike. Jesus knew the greed for this world's goods was at the bottom of the trouble. Both wanted something that neither had earned. Jesus gets at the root of the matter and gives a parable on covetousness. He came to eradicate evil, not to palliate it. As long as man's hearts are wrong, their lives will be wrong, and their clamor for their rights will be but the outcry of unsatisfied greed."

"Right Versus Rights." "Jesus came, not to get men their rights, but to get them right. This is fundamental. Two men whose hearts are right never need an arbitrator. If a misunderstanding arises they can settle it alone. Why is there ever trouble between an employer and employee? Because greed sits enthroned upon the heart of one or the other or both. And what is the ultimate solution? Not arbitration, though arbitration is infinitely better than war."

"Who shall dictate the terms of settlement? The employer? But he may have, through an unlawful desire for goods, a distorted view of his rights. What is the employer's whose heart is selfish, but will consent to arbitration, that may keep the mill running and money flowing into the coffers of the employer and bread in the mouths of wives and children. That is infinitely better than lockouts and boycotts. But there is something better still. Let both employer and employee be dominated by the spirit of Christ, who is the very incarnation of justice and honor and square dealing, and there will be no need of an arbitrator."

"The best way to get your rights is to get yourself right. For if you should get your rights before you are right, you are in the position of treading upon the rights of others. The only thing that can possibly save a man from that is the righteousness of God."

"Covetousness and Its Crimes." "Selfishness lying at the root of covetousness makes it the breeder of nearly all sins and crimes against God and man. It has been the cause of every war, every tear, every heartache. It has dethroned honor, justice and reason. It has built its palaces with money wrung from slaves and widows and orphans. It has robbed countless women of their virtue and myriads of men of their manhood. It feeds the body and starves the soul into the loss of everything eternal. Through the soul says, 'My barns are full, I have nothing to do but eat, drink and be merry. Soul, take thine ease, suppress thine aspirations, clamor not for thine eternal goods, suppress love, fret me not with the needs of my fellowmen, be thou my slave to help me wallow in gluttony and drunkenness, yet these things satisfy not. You tried the theatre with its excitement and spectacular, the dance with its passionate, exciting merriment, but these left you unsatisfied and you hungered again. You were feeding your body with husks and quenching your thirst with salt."

"An election is in progress today at St. Johns that means much to the property-owners and taxpayers of the city. Two tickets are in the field and the issues are sharply outlined. The Good Government league, headed by H. W. Brice for mayor, a respected citizen of St. Johns, stands for a closed town and economy in running the government, even to the reduction of salaries. The People and Taxpayers' ticket, headed by F. J. Hendricks, stands on a platform somewhat similar to the Good Government league, but with the "closed town" plank eliminated.

"One of the most interesting fights for office is that for city attorney, around which it is expected the real strength of the two factions will be centered. H. E. Collier is the candidate for city attorney on the ticket put forward by the Good Government league and is one of the leaders in that organization. T. Parker is an independent candidate for city attorney, making a three-cornered battle for city treasurer, the candidates being W. L. Church, president of the Good Government ticket and J. E. Trench and C. S. Thompson, both having been endorsed and both being on the ticket of the Taxpayers and People's factions. The latter two factions held separate conventions, but nominated the same officers practically, except in this instance. J. E. Trench is the People's candidate. J. E. Trench is well known, being the school clerk for the St. Johns district.

"Not the least interesting part of to-day's contest will be the sitting at a three-day meeting at St. Johns. Those outside of the city are opposing the measure on the grounds that it will increase taxation without corresponding benefit. The measure will undoubtedly be carried into the city limits, but it is quite doubtful if it will pass in the city precincts. A separate board has charge of the election outside the city, composed of A. Wynne, L. Hyner and Harvey Smith, judges, and J. C. Walton and C. E. Wheeler, clerks.

"A bond issue of $75,000 will also be considered by the people for the purchase of a public dock and city park. An option has been secured on four lots at the foot of Philadelphia street for $23,500. It is estimated that the cost of building the dock will reach altogether the sum of $40,000. The remainder, or $13,000, will be used for the purchase of the park. This dock bonds are to run 20 years at 6 per cent; the park bonds 35 years, also at 6 per cent."

Drinking Men Not Wanted

The above sign is now seen in many shops and offices in this city, because drinking men are unreliable.

Competition is too keen and life is too strenuous for an employer to keep men on his payroll whose nerves are unsteady and whose brains are not clear.

Every line of business is beginning to close its doors to drinking men. Drunkenness is a disease and, like most diseases, has its remedy. Orin is the reliable treatment and is sold under a positive guarantee to effect a cure or your money will be refunded. Orin is in two forms: No. 1, which can be used without the patient's knowledge in tea, coffee or food, and No. 2, for those who wish to be cured.

The guarantee applies to both forms. Mailed in plain-sealed package on receipt of $1.00. Write for free booklet, mailed in plain sealed envelope. The Orin Co., Washington, D. C., or Clarke-Woodward Drug Co., and nearly all druggists in Portland.

water. Nothing satisfies the hungry, thirsting soul but Jesus, the bread and water of life."

STUDY OF THE JEWS.

Bishop Scadding Takes Judaism for Subject of Sermon.

In his fifth sermon upon the six great religions of the earth last night Bishop Charles Scadding took for his subject, Judaism. His text was "Lo, the people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nation." Bishop Scadding first dwelt upon the history of the religion and then closed his sermon with the following observations gained from personal study of the Jews in all walks of life from the crowded tenements of districts on the east side of New York to the wealthy merchant. He said in part: "We Christians agree that the law has been neither silenced, abrogated nor superseded by the coming of the Son of God. His real character is vindicated. It has passed into the gospel. The Messianic promise of a righteous king and an eternal kingdom has always come forward to sustain the drooping spirit of the Jew. Here is the point of departure between the Jew and the Christian. The Jew still looks for the fulfillment of the promise. The Christian believes the promise has been already fulfilled."

"There are four periods of Judaism which stand prominently forth. The Bible makes us familiar with the first period under Moses, the law-giver. The second period is that of the middle ages. It is identified with the name of Moses, the son of Maimon, who was born in Cordova in 1135. He is called Moses Maimonides.

"Again in 1750 the whole aspect of Jewish life was changed, especially among German Jews, and this was wrought by a Moses, Moses Mendelssohn, by the introduction of all that is known as culture. Mendelssohn was the great Jewish philosopher. He translated the Pentateuch into German. Jewish literature and learning took on a new life. In 1828 another Moses arose. He was Moses Montefiore, who became the advocate for the oppressed Jews of all countries. He was the greatest philanthropist of his race. Possessed of boundless wealth, he used it in charities of all kinds. Today where will you find so much generosity and liberality for charitable causes as among the Jews?"

"For three years I lived in the heart of the most crowded Polish Jew district in the world, on the east side of lower New York. I saw that Jewish life came up like a giant tidal wave, assuming our St. George's chapel. When I remember Jesus was a Jew, St. Peter and St. Paul were Jews, my heart is aglow for the race, and I try to be without prejudice. There are Jews and Jews, and it is unfair, yes, it is wicked to judge the race by the actions of a few. It is possibly the most familiar. Just as unfair as it would be for a Jew who keeps the Sabbath to judge Christianity by those Christians who make no true observance of Sunday."

"If we desire the well-being of the world, if we desire the glory of the Lord, we must earnestly pray and diligently labor to promote the highest good of his entire people. Pray for the peace of Jerusalem."
