Harry Jacob Schatz, a tailor, born in Russia, was admitted as a citizen of the United States by Judge Wolverton in the federal court this morning. Schatz appeared for a final hearing yesterday but the question was put off until today owing to the fact that Schatz was not accompanied by either of the two witnesses who had signed the petition for the applicant to become a citizen when the papers were first filed. Judge Wolverton held that under the circumstances when other witnesses were produced and who swore that they had known the applicant personally for six years there was no reason why the citizenship should not be allowed.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Thomas H. Brickell, who died at her home, 111 East Sixth street, yesterday afternoon, will be held at Dunning's undertaking chapel, East Sixth and East Alder streets, tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Brickell was well known in Portland, having been an active member of the Martha Washington chapter, No. 14, Order of Eastern Star. She was also a member of the Order of Washington. She leaves a husband and the following children: Mrs. Lena Epparly and Frank A. Brickell of Portland, and Mrs. Mabel Rice of Salem. Mrs. Brickell was the daughter of a well-known Oregon pioneer, Caleb Parrish.

Contractors who have been held up in receiving their pay from the city will not be able to collect interest on their money, according to an opinion handed the committee on judiciary and elections yesterday by City Attorney Kavanaugh in deciding the claim of the Pacific Bridge company for interest amounting to about $2,000. The committee made a recommendation to the council that the claim be disallowed. The company filed its claim several weeks ago for interest on money due from the city for street improvements. Some of this money has been owing by the city for nearly a year.

The liquor license committee of the city council yesterday voted to recommend the transfer of several saloon licenses, including the one of the Erickson saloon, Third and Burnside, from Hugo Fritz, who died Sunday morning, to Eugene Froessner. This action of the committee was taken despite the contention raised by attorneys engaged in the litigation that involved Fritz and his wife previous to his death to the effect that the license did not exist because it was obtained by false swearing. Because of this fact the lawyers contended that the committee could not transfer the license.

At a meeting of the Montavilla board of trade last night it was decided that the organization build a float for the rose carnival parade. Fifty dollars was subscribed for the purpose by the members present at the meeting last night. A mass meeting of the citizens of the suburb will be held Friday evening, at which time arrangements will be made for receiving further subscriptions and carrying out the plan of building the float. A committee including Dr. William De Veny, E. B. Morelock, C. T. Evans, J. E. Blackburn and J. Goodwin was appointed to make arrangements for the meeting.

Members of the committee on judiciary and elections of the city council yesterday referred Councilman Driscoll's ordinance keeping women out of saloons to City Attorney Kavanaugh for changes. This ordinance has been up before the committee four times, and was referred to the city attorney yesterday because it is feared the measure will keep women out of drug stores, groceries and similar places where intoxicating liquors are sold.

A reception will be given at the home of J. A. Bamford on the Base Line road tonight by the Epworth league of the Episcopal church, Mount Tabor, in honor Rev. J. W. McDougal, pastor. Dr. D. L. Rader, editor of the Advocate, and Mrs. R. L. Heness, Rev. McDougal will soon leave to attend the meeting of the general conference of the Methodist church and Mrs Heness will soon leave for Boston.

The Oregon conference of the United Evangelical church closed Sunday at Dallas, with the result that most of the Portland pastors were returned to their pulpits. Rev. A. A. Winters was returned to the First church, Rev. J. Bowersox to the Ockley Green church, Rev. C. B. Bates to the St. Johns church. Dr. C. C. Poling has been appointed to the Second church at Kerby and Fargo streets.

The 45th Precinct Republican club will meet this evening at East Twenty-sixth and Clinton streets. The purpose of the meeting is to indorse candidates in the approaching primaries and the meeting will be closed to all but Republican voters of the 45th precinct. No candidates are invited to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Ella Ball has petitioned the county court to have George W. Prosser cited to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt for failure to pay her $1,000. Prosser is administrator of the estate of the late John Bowles, and has held $1,000 in trust for Mrs. Ball. She says he has defied the order of the court.

R. W. Gainard, who lately entered the race for postmaster at Milwaukie, has received the appointment. Mr. Gainard will succeed Cyrus Bellard, who died several months ago. He will enter upon his duties as soon as his commission arrives.

Geo. Rubenstein, reliable optician. Maker of high-grade eye-glasses at low prices. 183 Fourth street, between Yamhill and Taylor.

COLE ASSURED HEARTY SUPPORT

Candidate for District Attorney Nomination Wins Favor in Albina.

James Cole, candidate for district attorney on the Republican ticket, spoke to the members of the North Albina Improvement club last night, and was favorably received by the members of the energetic push club. Cole made one of his characteristic short talks, in which he told of the work that could be expected from him if elected to the office he is seeking. After the meeting many of the members assured Cole that they would not only vote for him, but would aid him in his campaign.

Cole told the members of the push club that he would stand fairly and squarely upon the platform he adopted at the outset of his campaign, and promised to enforce all the laws of the state without regard to the position or influence of any person.

Cole emphasized the point that his candidacy was one for the best interests of the general public, and that he enlisted the support of all citizens favoring good government. At the same time Cole said that he would show no favor if elected to any man, whether he belonged to the better class of citizen or was a north end hobo. He said that he would be impartial in enforcing the laws and that he believed the people wanted that kind of a district attorney.

At the conclusion of the address Cole mingled with the members of the club and further explained his position in regard to the enforcement of the laws, and won the support of his auditors.

NEW ALASKAN DISH.

Moose Nose, Says Far North Hunter, Is Fine, Nutritious Food.

From the Seattle Times.

The nose of a big Alaska bull moose weighs eight pounds, and when boiled 24 hours into gelatine makes the choicest and most nutritious article of diet to be had in all Alaska. At least this is what Webster Brown of this city, who has hunted and surveyed all over Alaska, says, and he ought to know.

"Alaska moose," said Brown yesterday, "is the best game food to be had in Alaska, and those who subsist for a large part of the time on the game of the country are careful when they kill a big moose or any other kind of big game to have means at hand to take care of the carcass and save it.

"I remember not many months ago in the White River country when our food ran short and we killed a big bull moose and made away in the next few days with the most of his good points. We were traveling over a rolling, partly open country in the direction of the Tanana valley, and every particle of fresh meat counted. When the carcass was all butchered up and packed away I boiled the big, bristly, fat nose of this moose about 24 hours, after spending five hours scratching the hair off the hide and picking it out by the roots.

"Well, sir, I boiled that moose's nose until it made the finest sort of gelatine you ever saw, absolutely clear and of a delicious sweet and nutty flavor. It made a meal for the whole outfit for every day for three days, and in my judgment the dish contains more lasting and nourishing qualities than anything that we had."

MATTHEW WOEHRLIN WAS SPOKANE VICTIM

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Spokane, April 7.—The identity of the man who drove over a high, steep bank into the river here Saturday night was established today. He was Matthew Woehrlin of Colbert, Washington. His son today recognized the harness found in the river. Woehrlin owned a big farm and leaves a family. He drove off a bluff while coming into the city late at night. The body has not been found. The horses were drowned.

GEER EXPECTS TO WIN NOMINATION

Candidate for Representative Makes Campaign of Eastern Oregon.

Ex-Governor T. T. Geer, Republican candidate for the nomination of representative from the Second congressional district, arrived in Portland last night after a strenuous two weeks' campaign in Gilliam, Baker, Union, Umatilla, Morrow, Wheeler and Wasco counties. Governor Geer has also campaigned in Columbia and Clatsop counties and stated this morning that he is confident of winning the nomination at the coming primaries.

Ex-Governor Geer expects to carry seven of the 13 eastern Oregon counties by safe majorities and says that Multnomah, Clatsop and Columbia counties will go overwhelmingly in his favor.

Geer will be in Portland a week and will make several speeches while in the city. He received an invitation this morning to speak before one of the local Republican clubs Friday night. He will return to Pendleton in time to vote at the primary election.

In speaking of his candidacy, ex-Governor Geer said:

"The prospects for my nomination are very bright and I expect to win by a good majority. Eastern Oregon has always secured the representative from this district and for that reason I do not fear for the western counties. Multnomah has one of the senators and has never asked for the representative, so I am not afraid of not carrying this county. In the primary election two years ago, when I was running for governor, I carried this county by 1,800 and do not believe I have lost any friends since."

Mr. Geer is a native of Oregon, has served four terms in the state legislature, once as speaker of the house, and four years as governor of the state. He is personally acquainted with the people of every county and has lived all told for 12 years in eastern Oregon. He carried this district two years ago by over 2,100 votes over the next highest candidate for the nomination for governor.

Ex-Governor Geer left Fossil yesterday morning at 3 o'clock and drove through a heavy snow storm to Condon, where he took the train to Portland. He said that the residents in that district welcomed the snow storm because of the beneficial results to the crops. He said that the season has been dry and that yesterday's snow storm would aid materially in developing the crops.

ORGANIZE CHURCH AS MISSION CONFERENCE

At the annual conference of the Norwegian-Danish Methodist ministers of Washington and Oregon, which was held last week in their church at Thirteenth and Davis streets, steps were taken towards organizing the Swedish Methodists on the Pacific coast into a mission conference.

The following resolution, which was unanimously adopted by the district conference, will be presented to the coming general conference of the Methodist church:

"Whereas, The work of the Methodist Episcopal church among more than 75,000 Swedes on the Pacific coast is as important as the work of our church anywhere, among any foreign speaking people, and

"Whereas, Observation and experience have proven that our church's work among foreign speaking people cannot be carried on as well and effectively when divided up in the English speaking districts and conferences as when organized in districts and conferences by itself, and

"Whereas, The great majority of the Swedish Methodists on the coast feel the need of organizing themselves into a mission conference, and are asking this (coming) general conference to grant them this privilege,

"Resolved, That we, the ministers of the Pacific coast district of the western Norwegian-Danish conference, assembled to our district conference in Portland, Oregon, this 4th day of April, 1908, do respectfully petition the general conference to grant the request of our Swedish brethren on the coast and pass an enabling act to that effect."

The Norwegian-Danish Methodist church was organized in Portland 25 years ago, with 15 members and two probationers. The work of the denomination has now grown to where its work requires an annual conference, including in its territory, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California.
