Poor Rich Children

Two hundred thousand dollars is enough to "bring up" a little daughter of the rich. If it's a boy, it will cost more.

May K. Warwick takes up the case of these rich children, in the current issue of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

A wealthy Boston couple put their two boys under the care of French bonnets and governesses. When the children reached the ages of eight and nine they were sent to a well-known school.

They knew their mother-tongue so very little that they could not understand what their instructors were saying to them, and they actually did not know how to dress themselves. They had to be sent home; there was no place for them, even in a fashionable school.

Some of these children become cads and rakes, others attain beautiful ideals of courtesy, breeding and social grace, but they all lose something which a human being has a right to.

In this week's issue of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, "Little Children of the Rich."

INSPECT COWS DAIRIES

New Deputy Commissioner Will Give Farmers Benefit of Knowledge.

Within the next few days J. W. Bailey, state food and dairy inspector, will appoint a deputy whose duty it will be to travel constantly through the dairy districts of the state with a view to bettering conditions generally. This deputy will be a man who understands the industry thoroughly and they will be merely advisory capacity, demonstrating to the dealers in milk and butter where they can make improvements.

It was about two months ago that the Buttermakers' Development association was formed for the purpose of having an inspector employ such a man as an inspector Bailey proposes to appoint, and since that organization has been formed, it has made several trips into the dairy district, organizing cow testing associations. Last evening he returned from Lincoln, where a society was formed with W. J. Crawford as chairman and A. R. Morgan as secretary.

Benefit to Farmers. "In order to improve dairy conditions in the state it is necessary to have a man travel through the district constantly and advise the farmers," said Mr. Bailey, this morning, "and the Buttermakers' Development association was organized for the purpose of securing funds to defray the expenses of such a man and pay his salary. This deputy will visit the dairymen of the state, weigh the milk of the cows, determine what per cent of butter fat there is in the product, and if that percentage is not high enough, he will advise the farmer to improve it by replacing it with another. Also, he will look into the feed question and inspect separators and where improvements can be made, he will give the farmers the benefit of his knowledge. Such an inspection will tend to improve generally throughout the dairy districts."

Already cow testing associations have been formed in Forest Grove, Pleasant Hill, Florence, Alpha and Lincoln, and the next meeting along that line will be held in Pleasant Valley April 15.

No Opposition Encountered. "So far we have met with no opposition to the plan. The dairymen realize that the idea is an excellent one and are enthusiastic because they understand that it will mean better cows, better milk and cream and better conditions generally throughout the industry. We will not stop the work of forming these cow testing associations until every dairy section in the state has been organized."

Within the next few days I will appoint a deputy and he will undertake his duties immediately."

CANDIDATES PRESENT CLAIMS FOR VOTES

Republicans Hold Rally Under Auspices of Sixteenth Precinct Club.

A Republican rally was held last night at Merrill's hall under the auspices of the Sixteenth Precinct Republican club. There was a large list of candidates present and a goodly crowd of voters out to hear them speak. All of the candidates for district attorney were present with the exception of J. N. Davis, and all made short tellings of what they would do in the event of their nomination and election.

C. N. McArthur, candidate for joint representative from Clackamas and Multnomah, the second a candidate for state senator, presented their claims for popular approval at the polls.

Those who spoke during the evening were: John P. Kavanaugh, present city attorney; T. J. Geis, George S. Shepherd, candidates for congress; Joseph Gaston, A. N. Hamilton and C. C. Loucks, candidates for railroad commissioner; Earl C. Bronaugh and L. J. McNary, candidates for circuit judge; George J. Cameron, James C. G. G. Moore, Roger B. Elliott, Edward T. Taggart and Henry S. Westbrook, candidates for district attorney; and C. N. McArthur and James C. Drake, candidates for the legislature.

HURLBURN RAPS AITCHISON Replies to a Campaign Attack Upon Himself and Others.

Portland, April 10, 1908.—Is the despatch of the state of Oregon the highest honor of the transportation committee of the chamber of commerce, run by a small bunch of Portland jobbers, and is their former campaigner, Mr. Hurlburt, the only available man to work out the transportation problem?

When I decided to make the canvass for railroad commissioner, I determined to make a clean campaign, and to abstain from indulging in personalities. I determined not to refer to the fact that Clyde B. Aitchison, present commissioner and candidate for reelection, was compromised with the Title Guarantee & Trust company, the result of which, with the resulting investigation, constituted a chapter in the history of this state and of the city of Portland that is nauseating in the extreme, and humiliating to every citizen possessor of a spark of civic pride.

I determined not to write a line to any of the 3,000 depositors, whose savings were squandered by the management of that institution, and whose loss would have spelled distress to them were it not for the fact that I did look over the delinquent and agreed to make the depositors whole.

I determined not to refer to the fact that Mr. Aitchison was the lobbyist of that institution and the confidential man of its president, Thorburn Ross, at the legislative session of 1907.

I determined not to call public attention to the fact that Mr. Aitchison was officially connected with subsidiary corporations of that defunct institution as follows: Secretary of the Commercial Trust company. Secretary of the Portland Development company. President of the Irrigation Abstract company. Secretary of the Oregon company. Secretary of the Fourth Flange Evaporating company. Secretary of the Colonial Investment company.

I determined not to mention the fact that during the legislative session of 1907 Mr. Aitchison was an active lobbyist for the association of a few of the Portland jobbers, who are so active in supporting him at this time.

But now Mr. Aitchison, through the medium of a few of these Portland jobbers, parading as a self-constituted committee of the chamber of commerce, is attacking the honesty, ability and integrity of each of the other six candidates running against him, and it is time for me to give publicity to the facts as I will not submit to this sort of attack in silence.

Mr. Aitchison has been in the state less than three years, he has no railroad experience, and before he ever came to Oregon I was disbursing hundreds of thousands of dollars in aid of the state and its resources, and attempting to assist in its material development. And, furthermore, while I was president of the Oregon

W. J. VAN DAMME'S Kidney Cure Tea 125 Morrison St., Next to Pap's Coffee House.

NEW TESTIMONIAL. In the autumn of 1906 I was taken with a serious form of kidney trouble, passing both gall stones and bladder stones; had also a floating kidney. The doctors told me that I could not live without an operation. It was impossible for me to ride and I walked with the greatest pain. Mr. Van Damme urged me to try his kidney cure tea, without much confidence, but about 35 bottles effected a perfect cure. It is a nature's cure for kidney trouble and I believe a trial will convince the most skeptical. Health is of more value than money. I am now in good health. Prof. W. L. Strange, 66 North Sixth St., Portland, Oregon.
