CANDIDATES AT CLOSING RALLY

Nearly Every Man on Republican Ticket Speaks at the Empire.

Oratory and near-oratory flowed freely and disjointedly at the Empire theatre last night when nearly every Republican candidate in the city and county was given a chance to speak in his own behalf. Others who were not candidates spoke in behalf of the Republican party.

City Attorney John P. Kavanaugh led off with the oratory and was followed by a choice selection of fireworks from men who have become known as personal candidates and from those who are making their first bow for public recognition. Judge E. C. Bronaugh and L. McNary spoke in behalf of their candidacy for the circuit judgeship and were followed by T. T. Geer, who wants to be congressman.

George B. Shepherd, who is after the same position Geer is seeking, showed pictures to illustrate his remarks about the Columbia river and a waterway to the sea. Frank D. Hennessy, who is not seeking office, sang several selections which pleased the large crowd.

James Cole, candidate for the nomination for district attorney, made a hit when he denied that at any time he had ever shown or felt any enmity against any of the candidates seeking the office he is after, and pledged himself to support the man who won at the primaries. Cole further denied being a carpet-bagger, as he had been accused by one of the other candidates, and said that he is making the fight for the nomination on the platform which he outlined at the outset of the campaign. Cole made a good impression on the audience.

John Adams
Signer of the Declaration of Independence and Second President of the United States.

HERE we have a Puritan of the Puritans—a man of stern and unbending rectitude—of generous and truly heroic temperament.

Descended from a pious God-fearing New England family of Pilgrims and Pioneers (who were for generations brewers, malsters, barley and hop growers) he became the mouthpiece of the Revolution—the terror of tyrants—a giant in debate—and diplomatically more than a match for Pitt and Talleyrand.

I would rather die than be dictated to—this sentence accurately describes the stubborn spirit of this valiant old patriot whom all England could not govern.

John Adams, even as his fathers before him, nourished mind and body on health-giving barley beer, and died at 91 (twenty-one years beyond the scriptural span) enjoying all his mental powers to the very last.*

Budweiser

THE most popular beer in the world. There is less profit to the dealer who sells it, because it costs more money at the brewery than any other beer made. A royal brew of malt and hops whose absolute sovereignty has never been challenged. Unquestionably—

—a help or a handicap

The clothes that you wear are that very thing. They help a man in social relations or commercially, or they hinder him, depending entirely upon whether he has them well fitted or "baggy."

—ready made

Clothes seldom fit—are made of any old thing that will hang together—last only a few weeks and never again look as well on you as they did when the clever salesman sold them to you.

—tailor made

Clothes always fit, if the tailor is well chosen—they are made of material that you select yourself—they are more durable because of their better fit—they look well as long as you care to wear them.

—Columbia Tailored

Clothes set the pace and prove the pudding. If you don't you should wear them.

BEAUTIFUL JAPANESE PRINTS OF OLD MASTERS EXHIBITED

Some interesting Japanese prints are on exhibition at the Art Museum in connection with the showing of photographs of famous portraits by old masters. The advantage to students of showing a few examples of the best to be had in each line is obvious. In this collection there are several good prints by Utamaro (1753-1806) one of the earliest of the Japanese masters to be known and admired in Europe. Strange in his "color prints of Japan" says of Utamaro: "His composition is extraordinarily fine, the grace and variety of his lines far above anything ever attained by even the greatest of his predecessors." The examples shown are in fine condition and beautiful in color.

CATS TO PROTECT MAIL COST UNCLE SAM $24 PER YEAR

On duty at the Portland postoffice night and day are several cats. And they are not pets nor are they kept there for their beauty or to be admired by the clerks. The cats are kept at the postoffice to protect the mails from rats and mice and they cost the government $24 a year.

Portland is one of the few postoffices in the country for which the postoffice department makes an annual appropriation for the sole support of cats which are always supposed to be on duty. The money is used to buy food for the cats, though this seems somewhat of a reflection upon their ability to catch the pesky little rodents.

JUST A DOG IS KILLED BUT WEE GIRL'S HEART IS BROKEN

Did you ever lose a pet when you were a child and cry as though your heart would break and imagine that you couldn't live without it? A little girl was snuffed out by a streetcar near Thirteenth and Montgomery streets yesterday afternoon right before the eyes of its owner—a little 6-year-old girl with whom it had been playing a moment before.
