A. M. Applewell, a fruitgrower of Brooks, Oregon, has written the Federated Trades Council to the effect that he will want about 150 loganberry pickers for six weeks commencing about June 15, and the pickers are to be work to white men instead of Japanese, who are after closing a contract for it. The council, however, has no objection with much satisfaction because of its attitude to Asiatic labor and it was turned over to the Labor Press for publication. The writer states the farm has a beautiful lane where the pickers might strike camp.

An impressive and gala feature of tomorrow's Easter service at Taylor Street Methodist church will be the presence tomorrow evening of the Knights Templar in full regalia. It has for some years been the custom of the body to attend one of the services in full dress. On this occasion they will be accompanied by a full brass band and will march in procession from the temple to the church. All members of Oregon commandery No. 1 are urged to be present at the new time at 8:30.

Misfortune overtook Jim King, a vegetable peddler, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, as he was driving his wagon down Front street. As he was crossing Morrison street the rear wheel of his wagon caught in the car track and swung around, throwing King into the street. The man was rendered unconscious by a fall. When he recovered the use of his limbs he found that his horse had run away, finally bringing up against a telegraph pole and wrecking the wagon. Neither the horse nor man suffered any serious injury.

INDIAN FIGHTER DIES, AGED EIGHTY

One of Oregon's pioneers, George Knox, who came to this part of the country more than 60 years ago, is to be laid to his final rest today.

Mr. Knox died yesterday at the home of his nephew, J. E. Knox, 168 East Twelfth street. The funeral is to take place today at Knoxville.

Mr. Knox was born August 28, 1828, in Pennsylvania, and came to Oregon in 1845. The year following he settled in Linn county where he remained until 1882 when he removed to Albany. During 1855-6 Mr. Knox was a member of the Oregon volunteers and took part in several of the engagements between the troops and the Indians on the ramparts at that time.

He moved to Portland six years ago. Mrs. Knox died in 1900. A sister, Mrs. Margaret Chambers, lives in Linn county.

Mr. Knox, during his younger days, always took an interest in the improvement and opening up of the country, and to him is given the credit of starting the project of building a road over the hill from Multnomah into Washington county.

Justice Reid Declares $10,000 Should Be Required—Amount Not Yet Settled.

When the case against G. B. Whitney, charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of his fiancée, was brought up, the west side justice court this morning, Judge Reid announced that he had read the statutes and decided that the defendant should be held to await the action of the grand jury.

At the preliminary hearing Attorney W. P. Richardson, acting for Beach & Simon, asked that the case be dismissed on the ground that there was no ground to show that a crime had been committed. If a crime had been committed, there was no evidence to show that the defendant had any connection with it.

When Judge Reid indicated that he would hold Whitney to await the action of the grand jury this morning, Attorney Richardson made a request that the bail of the defendant be fixed at not more than $500.

"I do not believe any court would accept $500 as bail for a man who is charged with manslaughter," said Judge Reid. "You must realize that the charge is manslaughter. As a matter of fact, I think the bail should be fixed by the circuit court."

Attorney Richardson suggested that arrangements might be made with the district attorney whereby the bail might be fixed at the sum stated. Mr. Richardson then left the court to confer with the district attorney, but at the end of a half hour he had not returned and the defendant was taken back to the work.

"It is interesting to see a boy when he has finished an exercise, proudly carry it to his teacher or parent. Crude, if you wish, and simple, and yet of intrinsic value. "But we must never lose sight of the fact that it is the boy and not the work."

"There has been born in that boy something of more value than the most beautiful work of the skilled artisan. He is a creator, and his own ability has made something and he has it there in his mind and now on the right road to manhood and useful citizenship."

FURTHER MANUAL TRAINING WORK

The teachers of manual training in the public schools of the city have organized under the name Portland Manual Training Teachers' association, for the purpose of furthering the work of this department of public instruction.

Officers in the association have been elected as follows: President, H. J. Burroughs; vice-president, C. J. Larsen; treasurer, M. G. Steel; secretary, George Butcher; corresponding secretary, Leon La Forge. An exhibit of the work of the manual training classes is to be made at the end of the term in each school, and plans are now being made to have a general exhibit of the work at some central place.

One who has for many years been interested in the advancement of manual training for the young says: "A great deal of attention has been given to the preparation of this course, eliminating as far as is possible all useless repetition of exercises, and yet making the course so thorough and comprehensive that by the time the boy has successfully finished the four years' course in the grammar school he has a good, thorough preparation for the advanced work in the high school or the trade school."

"Another excellent feature and one which gives additional interest to the work is that nearly all of the articles made are useful. "This is of considerable value, as a boy feels that he is getting something out of his effort, and that something is in exact proportion to the amount of application he gives to the work."

WANTED SWEDES SO HE REFUSED POLES

Sam Smith, Jack Topil and Sam Pluhator are natives of Poland and because of that fact they found it necessary to apply to Deputy City Attorney Tomlinson this morning for a dress and restriction. They were refused work, and the following notation appears on the back of their receipts for fees from the employment agency: "I ordered Swedes and you send any old thing. Now if you can't send what I ordered don't send any men. George Nelson."

On this showing Deputy Tomlinson ordered Hansen to return to the men the amount of their fees and railroad fare. If it is not done Hansen will be prosecuted for violating the employment agency law.
