MACHINE IS ONLY FOE

Governor Declares Majority Is Determined to Retain Rights Involved in Statement No. 1—Not Surprised at Victory.

Governor George E. Chamberlain, who has received the nomination for United States senator on the Democratic ticket, stated last night that he deeply felt the great compliment paid him by the voters, and said that he would make the best fight he could to win the election, as an effort on his part to repay the confidence shown in him by the people.

Governor Chamberlain also said that he was not surprised at the sweeping victory for Statement No. 1. He said that for the past two years he has been closely associated with the people, and knew that outside of the politicians the principle is believed in by the large majority of the voters.

"Outside of the men who were aligned with the old machine politicians," he said, "Statement No. 1 is advocated by the agricultural classes, the laboring classes and the business men. Two years from now it will make no difference who is nominated, the people will vote straight for the principle. Never again will there be the fight made against Statement No. 1 that was made at the election Friday. The people believe in it and will insist upon having it.

"As to my nomination, it came without any selfseeking on my part. I left it to the people to decide and will make the best fight I can to be elected. One word more in regard to Statement No. 1. The people have won a great victory and I believe The Journal is entitled to congratulations for the fight it made in behalf of the great principle."

OPEN BIG EMPIRE

tions already partially settled by lessees and others who have secured homes on the alternate sections held by the government are the Goose Lake valley, Catlow valley, Warner valley, Sprague river valley, all large, fertile and well watered sections with soil capable of producing large crops of fruits, grain and vegetables. It is said the Catlow valley produces the largest and most luscious tomatoes in the world. The products of the region have never become generally known because of its remoteness from transportation, and only the crops necessary for local consumption are raised.

County Very Fertile.

In 1905 the Lewis and Clark exposition could secure no considerable exhibit from Lake county, owing to the long haul of 160 miles by wagon and the long trip by rail to Portland. After the fair had opened a Lake county farmer loaded a small exhibit of grain, vegetables and fruits in his wagon and made the trip, determined that Lake county should be heard from. Arriving at Portland he set up his exhibit in a room in the old Union block, on Stark street, and succeeded in getting a good deal of publicity for it.

Mr. Hunter, at the Portland hotel last night, said:

"The valleys in this grant are unsurpassed in fertility, and grow large crops of grain, alfalfa, meadow grasses, while apples, peaches, pears, cherries, plums, apricots and small fruits are produced in abundance. The altitude, while higher than some parts of western Oregon, is ideal for vegetables and other products. I have just visited some of the most fertile and productive regions of Colorado lying at an altitude of 5,000 feet and more. The southern Oregon lands range from 3,000 to 4,500 feet. There are at the present time over 300,000 sheep in Lake county alone, and more than 80,000 head of cattle and 35,000 horses and mules. The county's income from livestock last year was more than $3 per capita. Her wool export was over 3,000,000 ounds."

Mr. Hunter, who lives a part of the year at Minneapolis, and also has a summer home at San Diego, California, is enthusiastic over Oregon's climate and resources.

Talk Your Climate.

"The inland empire, and more especially Oregon, is only beginning to reap the harvest sown by this community and by other ever increasing advertising," he said. "Portland should see that its machinery for this kind of work is kept in order, and there is no need for exaggeration about Oregon. Endeavor to reproduce as best you can in picture and story the beauties of the Oregon apple and pear. You will not often succeed in this, but you will come near enough to get results.

"Ten cents apiece for Oregon pears and $10 per box for Oregon apples, if only told abroad, will bring the people. And talk climate. You say so little about that in your wonderful state that you do not deserve half as good a climate as you have. And the great future for young men in the agricultural industry is not given enough force. Last year the country's crop had a value of about $7,500,000. That is enough to make the young American sit up and take notice, especially the young and healthy wage worker who is thinking about what he is earning. If only some of your excellent literature could reach these men, what a difference it would make in the votes cast at the next primaries."

NEWSPAPERMAN WINS FAME AS PLAYWRIGHT

(United Press Leased Wire.)

New York, April 18.—Eugene Walter, the young newspaper man, who a few weeks ago leaped into the front ranks of American dramatists at a single bound, upon the presentation of his drama, "Paid In Full," proved tonight he was not an accident when his second venture, "The Wolf," was given its Broadway premar and scored a distinct success.

"Paid In Full" has proved the biggest success of the season, despite the fact that its most pronounced feature is its wonderful complexity. "The Wolf" promises to be equally successful, chiefly because of a duel scene in the last act, which tonight proved one of the most realistic and thrilling scenes of the present dramatic season.

Everyone who has seen these plays concedes that a brilliant new genius has risen in the dramatic world and he seems unspoiled by his fame.

Tomorrow (Monday) will positively be the last day for discount on East Side gas bills. Portland Gas Co.

Fire Apparatus Installed on Portland Heights

After many years of waiting residents of Portland heights have at least secured fire protection for their part of the city. In addition to the fire engine house the residents have also secured the first fire alarm boxes ever installed on the heights. The picture shows the fire engine and the combination chemical engine and hose wagon. Both of these are drawn by three horses which forms another distinctive feature of the engine house, it being the only one which possesses three horses for each piece of apparatus operated.

The engine house is at Twentieth and Spring streets and cost about $8,000. Captain William Kerrigan is in charge of the crew of eight men who control the house and equipment.

CAMERON TO OPPOSE MANNING

ran well in spots, but their strength was localized. Kreuder lives in the Mount Scott section, which is also the home of Lightner, while Hart is a resident of St. Johns. In the totals Lightner gets 7,955, Kreuder 3,702, and Hart 3,333. There was no well defined issue between the candidates, Lightner emphasizing his record with respect to road improvement and his rivals running on good road platforms, as far as consistent with economy.

One of the surprises of the day was the ease with which Dr. Ben L. Norden plucked the office of coroner. Wise ones had picked him as a winner, but few would have dared predict that he would receive more votes than the quartet that contested the field with him. His vote went to the unexpected total of 8,139. E. E. Ericson came next with 3,543, Dr. J. C. Sill had 1,838, Dr. J. C. Twitchell bunched up 1,477 and Dr. John S. Stott came last with 1,010. Norden's majority over all is 271.

Sheriff Robert L. Stevens was one of the lucky ones who had no primary worries, as he had no opposition. He received the full party vote, except that an occasional Republican indicated a preference for his Democratic opponent, Tom M. Word. On the Democratic side it was a one-man race, also, Word being named to make the race once more against the present sheriff.

County Clerk Fields was usually found to be the high man in each precinct as the vote was read, having no opposition for another term. Many Democrats also paid him the compliment of voting for him as the Democratic candidate.

County School Superintendent R. F. Robinson had only a "scattering" vote to oppose him, and received practically the unanimous vote of the Republican party. The same is true of Philo Holbrook Jr., who is seeking another term as county surveyor.

For the offices of assessor, commissioner, coroner, clerk, school superintendent and surveyor there were no Democrats in the field. A scattering vote was given by writing in the names, but it is yet impossible to tell who will be declared the nominees of the party for these offices. A considerable number of Democrats gave the Republican candidates complimentary votes.

BUMPER CROPS UP BROWNSVILLE WAY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Brownsville, Or., April 18.—Much rain has fallen here in the past two days. It was welcomed by the farmers, as the ground was getting very dry and farming was about at a standstill. Spring sowing is almost completed. Orchards are in full blossom and have been for the past week. Indications are that there will be a bumper fruit crop. It is expected that the big Brownsville cannery will have a long run this season. Grain is looking fine and grass is growing very fast. The fine weather of the past two weeks has been, in its way, also a boon to Linn county. Prosperity for the coming summer is assured.

Woman Recovers Daguerreotype Taken From Slain Soldier at Chancellorsville.

Patterson, N. J., April 18.—A daguerreotype of a young man and girl taken from the body of a Union soldier on the battlefield of Chancellorsville during the civil war has been returned to the girl in the picture, Mrs. T. W. Stowe of Milford, Connecticut, after a search lasting 33 years.

Edgar Whritenour, a manufacturer, conducted the search for the owner of the picture. The daguerreotype came into the possession of Whritenour through his wife.

Mrs. Whritenour's father, N. Barnes, who was a member of the Thirteenth New Jersey volunteers, was captured during the war, and the daguerreotype was given to him by a confederate soldier, who explained that the picture had been taken from a dead Union soldier at Chancellorsville.

On the back of the case were found the names "John Rawson" and "Nellie Augusta Nettleton." The case also contained a needle, piece of thread and a lock of hair.

Mr. Whritenour communicated with every Grand Army of the Republic post in the country, but was unsuccessful until "Nellie Augusta Nettleton," now Mrs. T. W. Stowe, was located in Milford, Connecticut. Mrs. Stowe wrote to Mr. Whritenour yesterday. She says:

"John Rawson was reported missing after the battle of Chancellorsville. My husband is glad that I am to get the picture back. I wish I could make good to you all the expense you have gone to to find the owner. I am thankful that this little bit of my life's history has been handed down to me over the silence of so many years."

A RUN ON POSTAL CARDS

Ellers Unique Publicity Contest Causes Heavy Demand for Uncle Sam's Penny Stationery.

Many individuals needing postal cards have found it almost impossible to secure them except by diligent and patient search all over town. Some have begun to think that Uncle Sam has shut down his printing plant and still others have reasoned that probably the last batch of postals were possibly blemished in some manner and have all been purchased by eager stamp and curio collectors.

Such is not the case, however, and the extraordinary demand is the result of a very unique and interesting publicity contest inaugurated by Ellers Piano House, the largest piano and talking machine dealers.

Through a special concession given by the three foremost piano factories in America today Ellers Piano House will give away absolutely free three of the world's best pianos, the Kimball, the Hobart M. Cable and the Lester, in addition to other valuable prizes.

To persons writing the following sentence correctly the greatest number of times on one side only of a standard-size government postal card (5½x3½) will be awarded these pianos. This is the sentence: "Ellers stores sell the three foremost pianos of today—the Kimball, Chicago, the Lester, Philadelphia, and the Hobart M. Cable."

Pen and ink, only, is to be used and expert penmen and engravers are barred. Punctuation, spelling, correctness and legibility will be the factors in determining the winners. The number of times the sentence has been written together with the name and address of the contestant must be written across one end of the stamped side and only one card from each family will be accepted. The decision of the judges is to be final.

All replies must be addressed to the Publicity Department of Ellers Piano House, 353 Washington street, and must be received before 5 p. m., April 27. Winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible.

It is an interesting contest, without any strings or entrance fee, and everyone has an equal chance.

AITCHISON VICTORIOUS

Railroad Commissioner, Second District—Campbell in the First—Hurlburt's Victory in Multnomah Is Not Enough.

One of the political battles decided Friday which kept the voters guessing as to the outcome was the one for railroad commissioner, in which Aitchison finally won out with a lead of about 500 votes over Hurlburt, his nearest competitor. With nearly complete returns from all the counties in the district Aitchison has 6,776 votes, while Hurlburt has 6,380. This despite the fact that Hurlburt led Aitchison in Multnomah county by 583 votes.

Hamilton was next in the race with 3,226 votes, while Gaston followed with 3,104. Loucks ran especially strong in the counties other than Multnomah, polling 1,140 votes. His vote in Multnomah was not as strong as many expected it would be. While Whiting showed well in Multnomah he lost out in the other counties, polling but 478 votes there.

Great interest centered in the fight for the railroad commissionership especially within the last few days. For a long time the voters were uncertain as to the various candidates although Aitchison was felt to have the inside track because of his present occupancy of the position and his good record. In the last days of the campaign the fight centered around Aitchison and Hurlburt, although Loucks was considered a strong factor. Considerable railroad influence was used against Aitchison in Multnomah, Wasco and Umatilla counties.

The vote for the three leading candidates outside of Multnomah county, so far as reported, was as follows:

Railroad Commissioner Second District.

	Aitchison.	Gaston.	Hurlburt.
Baker	389	135	94
Clatsop	274	168	173
Columbia	216	111	64

NOT MUCH OF A HAND AT SUICIDE

Shoots Crooked and Gulps Down Castor Oil for Carbolic Acid.

St. Louis, April 18.—Dissatisfied with his lonely existence, Ewald Siebert, a Caseyville farmer, bought a cheap revolver and when he was in his cups aimed the weapon at his temple and pulled the trigger. He made a poor shot of it, and only inflicted a slight wound. Confidence gone in his abilities as a marksman he concluded to swallow carbolic acid. This he believed he could accomplish without any previous target practice.

Fate was against him, for he got hold of a bottle of castor oil and that sickened him. He then announced that he would will his entire possessions, valued at $60,000, to the person who would aid him in killing himself.

The story was published and then came a deluge of letters, the burden of many of them being, "I love you don't kill yourself—yet," and Siebert has been kept so busy reading them that he has had no time to think of further attempts at self-destruction.

Maids, young and old, and widows, merry and otherwise, have sent him tender missives in which they say that his 60 years would be no bar to happiness, seeing that he has $1,000 for each year.

Others say they are quite sure that they could keep him from further thoughts of suicide, while still others remind him that it would be foolish to kill himself if he had no one to whom to leave his money.

"Letters? Well, I should say," exclaimed Siebert when he was asked about his correspondence. "I guess this is about the busiest rural free delivery route in Illinois just now. I haven't got the letters here. Haven't got room to keep them. I sent them to my lawyer in Belleville. Get him to show them to you. There are some pretty warm ones.

"When an old man like me gets his name in the papers he might just as well go out on the front steps and wait for the letters. They'll come, sure.

"I don't mind getting married. Maybe if I had had a wife a long time ago I wouldn't have done a lot of things I oughtn't have done."

Attorney Buderer, to whom Siebert turned over the letters, is busy answering them. He says that replies will be sent to all of the fair correspondents who seem to be really in earnest in their proposals to his client.

"I can't make any of the letters public at this time," he said. "It might scare the girls away. I think Mr. Siebert ought to have every possible chance to get a good wife, now that this thing is started."

JUST SO ROOSEVELT IS ON THE TICKET

Bourne Would Rather See Him Drilling Along After La Follette Than Not at All.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Hood River, Or., April 18.—Through an intermediary who stands close to Senator Bourne, documents have been transmitted to Mayor Blowers of this city that indicate a purpose to introduce into Oregon a Roosevelt-LaFollette, or a LaFollette-Roosevelt, boom. One of the documents is a letter from the intimate Bourne adherent, inclosing a letter written by Senator LaFollette's private secretary in the interest of an interchangeable presidential ticket and advocating efforts to send delegations to the national Republican convention instructed for such ticket. The letter that bears the signature of the person known to be close to Senator Bourne, makes a plea for delegates to be sent to the state convention from Wasco county similarly pledged.

Taking the view, from internal evidence in the letter of LaFollette's secretary, that LaFollette himself is sponsor for the letter, some venture to draw the inference that President Roosevelt has reconsidered his previous position in regard to becoming a candidate again and that he has decided that if enough delegates can be secured in other states to insure his nomination he will accept. However, the prevalent view is that even though the president should consent to run, his entry would be for a race ahead of LaFollette, and never behind him, on the ticket.

The letter of LaFollette's secretary contains an indorsement of Statement No. 1.

During the year ending October 30, 1907, there were 71 strikes in Connecticut, involving 7,090 employes and 95,810 days' time was lost, while the loss in wages amounted to over $151,542.
