

LOS ANGELES SURRENDERS

Officers' Parade in Autos and Second Spanish Barbecue Were Features of Day — Business Houses Closed in Honor of Tars.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
 Los Angeles, April 21.—Los Angeles surrendered unconditionally to the navy today. All business was suspended in accordance with the proclamation of the mayor and by dawn thousands of visitors from neighboring towns were pouring into the city to pay their homage to the nation's sea-fighters.

The feature of the morning's program were the automobile parade of Rear Admiral Thomas and the officers of the fleet and a repetition of yesterday's Spanish barbecue and athletic events given to the enlisted men at Chutes baseball park.

While the officers were cheered to the echo by the solid banks of excited people that lined the route of the parade, it was the brave blue-jackets who were the center of greatest interest. At Chutes park a swelling mass of humanity swayed back and forth singing patriotic songs and evading the scenes of wild demonstration whenever the marine band, stationed in the inclosure, played some martial air.

The entire community seems surcharged with an awakened patriotism, and the mere waving of a flag, or the singing of a national air, is immediately followed by an outburst of national feeling never before witnessed in the city. At all the theaters and cafes the music thrums to martial keys is being played. The national anthem and "Dixie" almost alternate throughout the entire program.

The entire populace is joining in the demand for either the retention of the entire battleship fleet in Pacific waters or the assignment of at least a squadron of the big fighting ships with a complement of cruisers and torpedo destroyers for evading in the waters. Dinners, receptions, balls and banquets are to be tendered the officers and enlisted men during the remainder of the week.

For every social function some function has been arranged and the officers are putting in a continuous tour of social service. The traveling committee consists of Admiral Sperry and staff at the Hotel Redondo tonight while other receptions are being tendered by the societies of Colonial Wars and the Sons of the Revolution.

Not getting enough shooting, although cracking away for a month in Magdalena Bay, the officers of the fleet are swarming into the shooting galleries all over the city. There is a picturesque side to this. Many of these shooting galleries are conducted by Japanese who are ex-soldiers of the mikan's army and they saw some marksmanship today that made them open their eyes. The sailors made bulleizes until it sounded like somebody beating a tin drum.

Chasen James J. Jeffries has taken "the count" for the first time in his life. After submitting for seven straight hours of education, Jim is in a daze and he had to hire a room and go to bed, utterly exhausted from shaking hands, making autographs and being mobbed by the crowd.

When the barkeeper came down to Jeffries' third emporium and opened the door, he found a crowd of reporters waiting and they abused him roundly. They were vexed because Jeffries wasn't there ready to be adored.

The hotel registers are being brought out at every prominent hotel in Los Angeles today. The city is jammed with visitors. The city is jammed with travelers than some of the great conventions of the past. Weary transients wandered hopelessly around in quest of accommodations last night, but smaller hotels and lodging houses eventually cared for the throng. It is estimated that the hotels in the center of the city cared for more than 25,000 guests last night. Countless other thousands are housed at smaller caravansaries.

The hotel registers show that the fleet has attracted visitors from every state in the middle west, from as far north as British Columbia and as far south as the City of Mexico. Neighboring cities send immense numbers.

NEW TACOMA MAYOR PICKS UP THE REINS

Will Get Rid of Old and Put in New Officials, to the Limit of His Power.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
 Tacoma, April 21.—Mayor John W. Linek with all his official family today took charge at the city hall. The sweep is complete in all departments except the city engineer and the fire department. Both Fire Chief McAlroy and City Engineer McAlroy contend that they and all the men under them are covered safely with a civil service blanket. Mayor Linek admits that civil service applies to the men under him, but he believes he can pry the men loose by bringing charges of incompetency or as a last resort of offensive partisanship, and save the council, before whom the cases will come for trial, out of them. Mayor Wright drew his last pay check from the city coffers yesterday. This is the first time in four years that the city administration has been in the hands of Republicans, although the city is overwhelmingly Republican.

The city council is in a deadlock over the electing of a president. Councilmen Edward A. Lynn and E. A. Lynn each having eight votes.

PAPER TRUST TO BE INVESTIGATED

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)
 Washington, April 21.—All Republicans of the house voted yesterday on Dainzell's motion to cut off debate and adopt Cannon's resolution for a commission to investigate the paper trust during the summer.

Many Republican members had been pledged to vote for the immediate removal of the duty on paper and wool pulp, but they consented to Cannon's proposal to defer action.

Marquam—"Belle of New York."
 "The Belle of New York" is still entertaining and the judgment of time has been vindicated. The songs of Gustave Kerker are just as melodious as when they were first used. Dorothy and Teddy Webb have added little side-lights of their own to the book which makes it funnier than ever. Dorothy, this week's comedienne, is the best the Standard Oil company has given in Portland.

Robert Lett, the new comedian of the company, was very warmly received and in spite of an injured ankle, gave an excellent performance as Ichabod Brown, the tobacco connoisseur. Mr. Lett is funny in exactly the opposite way from Mr. Webb and the combination of the two is a very happy one. When one tries to talk horse-say, Lett is always there with his funny facial expression and the comic inflections of voice. He sings remarkably well.

Outside of Mr. Lett's performance perhaps the most interesting event of the evening was the contest of the grand opera as Violet Gray, the Salvation Army girl. She looked very well and sang even better—her voice was something of a surprise, even for those who have been watching her work closely. Amy Leicester's Cora Angelica was also very well given. Duane Polard's first was a comedy of humor and best, while Eugene Weiner, who has come in for some praise and some censure during his performances here, does so earnestly and with such humor as Pumpernick—the exit following his scene with Ichabod was a fine bit of acting and started the audience into loud and breathless applause.

On the whole "The Belle of New York" is excellent entertainment and gives a real evening of the grand opera strength of the San Francisco Opera company.

THIEF IS CAPTURED BY NEWFOUNDLAND DOG

(United Press Leased Wire.)
 San Francisco, April 21.—After he had snatched the purse of Mrs. Mary Smith of 141 Haight street, Thomas T. Robbins, a teamster, was chased and captured by a large Newfoundland dog.

Mrs. Smith was walking along Nineteenth street between Polson and Harrison, when a man grabbed her purse and started on a down town run. Charles Sharonberg, a saloon-keeper, ran to the dog followed by his large Newfoundland dog. The dog barked and the man was a thief and started after him.

At Nineteenth street and Treat avenue the dog grabbed the coat of Mr. Robbins and brought him to the ground, where he held him until officers appeared and took the purse snatcher to the Mission street station.

MODEL FOR "QUEEN"

Court Beauty Who Sat for Famous Picture and Married a Singer.
 The death of an old German millionaire, the late Mr. Mur, has revived the story of the picture of Queen Louise of Prussia, which is almost as well known in American households as it is in Germany. The picture, which was painted in 1875, whereas Queen Louise died in 1810, and the model for it was Juliet Muller's wife. It is the work of Professor Gustav Richter, and when he conceived the idea of painting it he searched far and wide for a model, finally selecting Fraulein (Josephine von Ziegler) and Klyphausen.

She was the youngest daughter of Baron Theodor von Ziegler, a chamberlain of the Prussian court. She was the most beautiful of the Prussian court in her girlhood.

Fraulein von Ziegler was just 18 when Richter picked her as the model for his picture. She was a girl of a quiet, almost a religious conviction, in her family. In youth she bore a strong resemblance to the queen, and when her grandmother had been a prominent figure. When the picture was finished, however, the old Kaiser, Wilhelm I, was invited to see it. He looked at it long and tenderly, then turned away, shaking his head sadly.

"Sehr hübsch, sehr hübsch. Aber auch nicht ohne eine Ahnung," he exclaimed. Which means: "Very pretty, very pretty, but not the least trace of resemblance to the queen."

The old emperor ought to have known, for he was the son of Queen Louise and was old enough when she died to have preserved a recollection of her.

Muller was an excellent singer; he belonged to the Wiesbaden company, but died at Frankfurt-on-Main. His wife, the model for the beautiful picture, survives him.

EMMA EAMES OPPOSES WOMAN SUFFRAGE

(United Press Leased Wire.)
 Chicago, April 21.—Mrs. Emma Eames, the noted operatic singer, has a plan to help the down-trodden man. She proposes to put a stop to all intrusions of the fairer sex at the ball box in the business world and in all of men's private matters. She champions the cause of the man who is overworked and women are going too far. She thinks their attempts to rule the ballot box are little less than anarchistic and wholly out of place.

MAN-EATING TIGER

India Native Always Knows Where He May Be Found.
 J. D. Rees in the Calcutta Statesman writes that a tiger was found in a small, well-defined forest containing tigers. Looking down from the hillside I could always tell when a tiger was on foot, where he was walking and when he lay down to rest, for all these movements were reported by screaming birds whenever he belatedly accented the forest. By the like telegraphy and by the woodratt which is born in them, by the interests and the color of their generations, the villagers are perfectly well posted regarding the great beasts, and particularly regarding the tigers in their neighborhood.

It is well known over the whole of his sometimes very extensive beat.

A sportsman arriving—provided the villagers have confidence in him, and this is a large provision, for they must know their man—will have no difficulty whatever in being accurately informed concerning the man-eater's movements, but whether he will persuade the villagers to help him to get up to his quarry will depend entirely upon his personal reputation.

It is easy enough to build a little leery screen in a tree over a good bait and dose there night after night till the tiger comes to drink in the moonlight and cannot be missed, but it is quite another thing to beak out and face the man-eater on foot. Consequently the sportsman does not always get taken up to the man-eater's lair, for this is not because the villagers do not know where he is, or rather she, for it is the female who generally preys on man.

The indiscriminate offer of rewards in no way tends to the destruction of the real man-eater.

The wholesome determination of the useful, indeed indispensable, deer and pig-stalker and the cattle lifter.

STANDARD OIL HAS DISAPPEARED

San Francisco Man Lost on Way to Join Fleet at Magdalena Bay.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
 San Francisco, April 21.—All efforts to locate Charles C. McClevery, the local manager of the marine branch of the Standard Oil company at San Francisco, who was either murdered or is lost somewhere in Lower California, failed today, although searching parties are scouring every part of the peninsula. More than a month ago McClevery left San Francisco to join the Atlantic fleet at Magdalena Bay. He was a passenger on the Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamer Curacao as far as La Paz, where he went ashore, intending to make this rest of the journey overland. For this purpose he hired a mule. He was last seen alive at La Paz.

When Admiral Thomas learned that McClevery had not reached the fleet port before he weighed anchor at Magdalena Bay, he ordered that a boat be sent ashore while the warships were going up the shore of lower California. This was done, but after the party had searched for several hours, it reported that no trace of the missing man could be found. The natives said they had never seen him.

The Standard Oil company has sent a searching party to the peninsula. The friends of McClevery fear that he has been murdered by the bands of outlaws that infest that country.

PARISIANS WANT LIVING PICTURES

Many Defenders of the Music Hall Shows the Police Are Trying to Suppress.

Paris, April 21.—As a result of a spirited protest by Senator Beranger, the author of the first offenders' law and the head of the French society for the Prevention of Vice, the Paris police raided a number of music halls this week where for the past three months the feature of the programs has been the display of scantily clad women.

Ever since the censorship over Paris theatres was promptly and severely enforced, the Paris police have been startled, and their consternation has been echoed by prominent Parisians. Finally the scandal reached the ears of Mr. Beranger, who wrote a stinging letter to the public prosecutor calling for the intervention of the police. The reply was a prompt and decisive one. Those who raided certain managers received warnings to amend their ways. Old-timers say that this drastic re-movement which is sweeping over Paris will not last. Meanwhile it is already condemned by certain Frenchmen, some of them well known in literary and artistic circles. They say that police intervention is entirely uncalled for. Anatole France of the French academy has expressed his indignation that the absolute nude is far less immoral than tights.

"There are certain matters of personal belief and no one has the right to call a legislator find them obscene? Such intervention is purely Calvinistic and is not Geneva." Anatole France writes in a public letter, often appears in public in scanty attire, expresses an opinion similar in all respects to that of Anatole France. Other authors and artists are expressing themselves in the same vein.

The police, however, are showing a determination to make sure that public exhibitions impossible, but alert managers have already discovered a ruse by which they can retain the outlawed numbers on their programs without falling under the ban of the law. These features are reserved for the close of the performance, and before they are scheduled to appear, the entire audience is dismissed. A private invitation is then issued to every person present to return as regular spectators.

In this way the spectacle ceases to become a public entertainment. The police never determined to make sure of some of these pseudo private

Grand-Vaudeville

How very bad most one-act skits are was well demonstrated at the Grand Vaudeville when we hailed an effort in that direction by George Cohan with delight. "Election Bets," which Mr. Cohan has written for the Grand Vaudeville and which is really the brightest thing in the playlet line that they have given for weeks. That Mr. Cohan has not a grain of humor and considerable native talent would be as foolish to deny as that he has not a grain of ability in the line of general and operable comedies. And in "Election Bets" he has seized upon a very absurd phase of politics—the "election bets" which are the most out-of-date days—and held it up for the farcical ridicule that it deserves. The piece is well given by the Grand Vaudeville.

But if Mr. Cohan's piece is amusing by contrast, what is to be said of "The Price of Power" which is, in fact, the less the better. It is the playlet of Leo Cooper and his support. It is a ridiculous attempt at something which is killed two minutes before the curtain falls by the grandiloquent language of the scorned one and the scorned.

Walter Winton and Weston have a farce called "Hotel Repose" which is mildly amusing, and "The Two Roses" give a musical act that is refreshing, not because they are young and ingenious appearing persons and seem frankly to enjoy the fun of being on the stage and playing before an audience. Connors and Aldert are black-face comedians and have a few ingenious steps and antics and the motion picture is entertaining. It is a good bill this week.

RULL REFUSES TO BETRAY ANARCHISTS

(United Press Leased Wire.)
 Madrid, April 21.—Juan Rull, the anarchist convicted and sentenced to death at Barcelona for the January bomb outrage in which a policeman was killed and several persons were wounded, scornfully refused an offer today to save his life by a full confession concerning the "red" organizations throughout Spain. The police are so fearful of a continuation of the campaign of anarchy under another leader that they would be willing to spare Rull if assured that by so doing they could root out anarchy completely.

He is said to have offered to make some minor revelations in return for immunity for his mother and his brother, who were convicted with him and sentenced to penal servitude. The police do not think this proposition worthy consideration, and it is believed they rejected it.

It is stated that Emperor William II is never without his revolver, and he is extremely skillful in the use of the weapon. It is inspected and freshly primed every morning so as to make sure it is in perfect working order.

Hale and Happy at 101.

Mrs. Mary E. Curtis of Farley, Iowa, who is 101 years old, hale and happy, praises Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for building her system up and driving out the pains in her back after many other medicines had failed to give her relief.

Mrs. Curtis says that with the help of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey she hopes to live many happy years yet.

Mrs. Curtis recommends Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a tonic stimulant for both old and young.

"I have had a great deal of trouble with pains in my back, which the doctors told me was kidney disease. I doctored for a long time, but found no relief. I finally was induced to get a bottle of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It did me good from the start. The pains in my back are gone and I feel as well as ever. It has done more for me than all the other medicine I have ever taken, and I cannot say too much in praise of it. I am 101 years of age and have never had anything to help me so quickly and continue to keep me so strong and well as your valuable whiskey. My heart action has been strengthened and my entire body built up. I feel now as if, with the aid of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, I can live in happiness for many more years.

I feel it my duty to write my thanks for the good Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done for me, and I hope you will publish my letter for the benefit of old people who wish to become strong and vigorous, and for young people who wish to continue in good health and spirits."—Mrs. Mary E. Curtis, Farley, Iowa, August 15, 1907.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old young and keeps the young strong.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold only in sealed bottles. Beware of cheap imitations. Look for the trade-mark "Old Chemist" on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Dr. C. C. Curran, Consulting Physician, for free illustrated medical booklet and free advice. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.
