The J. M. ACHESON CO. COR. FIFTH AND ALDER

GIVE HIM TASTE OF OWN MEDICINE

Clinton C. Gandy, Who Handcuffed Wife, Will Be Placed in Chains.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Tacoma, April 22.—Clinton C. Gandy, a man who handcuffed his wife's hands behind her back and after tying her feet to the footboard of the bed left her a helpless prisoner in her own house day after day while he was working his insurance business down town, will be given a dose of his own medicine. Gandy himself admitted when on trial that he had been thus mistreating his wife and Judge Snell promptly sentenced him to a year in prison. Now Sheriff Morris declares that he intends to handcuff and shackle Gandy and keep him as near as possible in the condition in which he was when he was arrested. "It's simply making the punishment fit the deed," said the sheriff this morning, "and the man should be given a wholesome lesson because he is a very bad actor."

ings bank had caused a run on the Title Guarantee & Trust company. Some surprise was manifested in the courtroom when at a few minutes after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the state rested its case. The state's attorneys had said at the same time the trial opened the presentation of their case would take at least two days. Much more astonishment was created when the defense concluded its case by calling just three witnesses—Douglas Lawson, accountant; Clyde C. Byers, bookkeeper, and J. T. Ross, the defendant.

Asked Few Questions.

Ross was asked only three or four questions by his attorney. Two were merely perfunctory. He was asked if he was a man of family and how long he had lived in Portland. The other witnesses were asked simply whether the moneys deposited with the Title Guarantee & Trust company that constituted the educational fund had been deposited in cash or been transferred from other banks by check. "Have you, Mr. Ross, ever converted any funds belonging to the state to your own use?" was the third question asked Mr. Ross by Mr. McCamant. "Not one dollar," was the clear and prompt reply. "Take the witness," said Attorney McCamant to the counsel for the state. The district attorney endeavored to get the witness out of the courtroom, but the bank when it failed. He was not successful. Mr. Ross would only say, "I do not know. The books will tell and they are the best testimony."

RUSSIAN GIRL MAKES ESCAPE

Woman Who Was Sent to Siberia for Killing Policeman Is Free.

(United Press Leased Wire.) New York, April 22.—Marie Spiridonova, the Russian girl martyr, whose sufferings as a prisoner and exile have made her world famous, has added another chapter to her eventful life by escaping from the horrors of Siberia. According to reports received here in cablegrams, she is either on her way to America or Australia. The girl was sentenced to Siberia for life in 1905 for shooting Chief of Police Luxenofsky of Tambov. While she was in a cell she was so brutally treated that the whole world indignantly exclaimed against the cruelties. The officers kicked her as a human football across the cell in trying to make her tell the names of her accomplices, but she had none. She was sentenced to hang, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment at Siberia where she suffered the tortures of an exile for four years, until she escaped by hiding in a bed in her escape by revolutionists.
