

NOMINATED FOR OFFICE IN THE WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. Robert Lutke, Candidate for President.

Mrs. John W. Alexander, Who Will Be Elected First Vice-President.

Mrs. Alice Webster, Nominated for Director.

Mrs. O. P. M. Jamison, Candidate for Auditor.

Nominations for the general election May 22 were made at the regular meeting of the Woman's club Friday afternoon. The club has changed the system of balloting, and has adopted the Australian system. The two candidates receiving the highest number of votes are declared the choice of the club as candidates. The nominations resulted as follows:

For president, Mrs. Robert Lutke and Mrs. Grace Watt Ross; for first vice-president, Mrs. John W. Alexander; for second vice-president, Mrs. James P. Moffett; for recording secretary, Mrs. T. P. Wise; for corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. A. Moore and Miss Anne Shannon Moore; for financial secretary, Mrs. C. E. Runyon and Mrs. John M. Scott; for treasurer, Mrs. C. M. Rankin and Mrs. E. J. Jaeger; for auditor, Mrs. O. P. M. Jamison and Mrs. C. C. Chapman. Mrs. A. Staiger and Mrs. Alice Webster received the unanimous nomination for directors, who are elected two at a time to serve three years.

STRONG MOVE TO CLOSE UP STORES

Consumers' League Furthering Effort for Half Holiday Saturday.

An enthusiastic open meeting of the Consumers' league was held yesterday afternoon at the Unitarian chapel, which was attended by members of many organizations in the city, dealing with the subject of the Saturday night closing of the retail stores.

After much discussion a motion was carried that it is the sense of the meeting that a federation be formed of all the organizations in the city which favor Saturday night closing, to unite with the Consumers' league in a campaign for that purpose, and that delegates be sent from every such organization to meet Monday afternoon, May 4, at 3 o'clock, in the Unitarian chapel to effect confederation.

The closing is to take effect through July and August. The support of the Retail Merchants' association is to be asked, and in the campaign for this purpose heads of the different retail stores will be called upon to lend their support.

Remarks favoring the early closing were made by C. O. Young, the national organizer of American Federation of Labor, R. A. Harris, editor of the Labor Press, Miss McCorkle of the Y. W. C. A., James Bell, representing Olds, Workman & King, Mrs. Fred W. Perry, representing the Women's Union Labor League, Rev. E. M. Mueley, Rev. J. Whitcomb Brough, Mrs. Frederic Egert, representing the Woman's club, Mrs. Sarah Evans, representing the State Federation of Women's clubs, and others. Mrs. Millie Trumbull, the vice-president of the Consumers' league, presided.

It was strongly urged that women of leisure do their shopping at some other time than Saturday afternoon. It was suggested that pledge cards be circulated by which the general public sentiment might be helped. Mrs. Trumbull showed that this was contained in the petition which is already receiving many signatures asking the retail dealers to close.

The matter of a purchasing time for those who are employed all day was discussed, but it was the opinion of the representatives of the labor unions present that as the union day is but eight hours, a margin of time is already allowed for that, without keeping the shops open in the evening.

The matter will now be presented to all the churches, labor unions, councils and lodges, the commercial bodies and board of trade, the civic federations and improvement clubs, the charitable societies and all other organizations which may be interested, and they will be asked to send three delegates each to the next meeting to be held May 4.

CHILDREN'S MAYING PARTY CHARMING SOCIETY EVENT

Society was deeply interested in a charming May party given yesterday afternoon at the Armory by Professor J. M. Beggs' dancing class. There was a large attendance of mothers, fathers and sisters and the program was thoroughly enjoyed. Informality stamped the afternoon and grace, unconsciousness and simplicity characterized the children.

"The Fairies' Levy" was the title of a little play in which the children all took part as attendants. Their graceful bowing and easy movements were noticeable. Little Ruth Teal, the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph N. Teal, was the May queen and was crowned with all the pretty ceremony of a fairy queen. Hazel Kopitz was the fairy queen who crowned her and Frances Bates was the directress.

A pretty fancy march with intricate figures followed the crowning in which all the children joined. The tiny tots of four and five who brought up the rear were the delight of the spectators.

All the children wore pretty white frocks with sashes and bows. There were wreaths of flowers in their hair; some carried baskets of flowers, and others wore wreaths draped about their shoulders.

The prettiest part of the program was the fancy dances that followed and those done by the smallest children with their teacher brought out storms of applause. The little children who did the "Merry Widow" dance, the Highland fling, the three-step and other fancy dances were Mr. Beggs' Georgiana Mears, Helen Ransome and Bernice O'Neill. Little Lucretia Cavalline gave a splendid exhibition of the sword dance and had to repeat it. Hoyt Colgate and Ingle Dawsome did the sailors' hornpipe in excellent style and repeated it.

Margaret Hawkins, Nellie Bailey, and Lucretia Cavalline, did a pretty Spanish dance. A minuet full of grace and beauty was danced by Ruth Teal, Nellie Bailey, Margaret Hawkins, Stella Wolfe, Louise Manning, Marjorie McGuire and Miss Caswell. Several dances for the whole class were interspersed between special numbers that all the children might enjoy the program.

AMEND BUBBLE LAW TO PREVENT OWNERS GETTING MIXED IN WHEELS

Owing to confusion which has arisen over an attempt to interpret the wording of the new automobile law in regard to the ownership of machines owned by more than one person, amendments will be made to the new ordinance making it possible for only one of the owners to take out a license.

This will save a great amount of work in the city auditor's office, and will also save the owners from taking out two licenses for the same machine. At the same time the law will be so amended as to allow owners thus exempted from taking out a double license to operate their machine without taking out a chauffeur's license. These two amendments will save a great deal of annoyance to which the owners and city officials have been put to in enforcing the new law.

In connection with the changes in the ordinance the amendment has been made that chauffeurs and owners will have to take out their licenses and pass the board examination on Friday or be subject to arrest. So far there have been but 223 owners' licenses taken out and 127 chauffeurs have passed the board examination. Inasmuch as there are several hundred more machines owned in the city than have taken out licenses, it is expected to be a great rush for licenses at the city hall this week.

CITY'S SONG BIRDS NOW OWN 130 MADE-TO-ORDER HOUSES

The life of the song birds that live about Portland has been made more pleasant by the addition of over 130 new bird houses. These have all been placed in various parts of the city in trees, under the eaves of houses and on woodsheds and posts where they are rented by feathered tenants. More than that, each of these birdhouses has a strong protector, who will watch and see that no harm is done the bird residents.

Some time ago, at the suggestion of the Audubon society, the pupils of the manual training department of the public schools, under direction of Instructor W. J. Standley, took up the making of bird houses as part of the required work. The result has been a thorough success. A variety of designs have been used, and many of the birdhouses are unique and elaborate.

The interest is greater now among the pupils than when the bird houses were being made. Each of the 130 boys that placed out a new bird home has been anxious to see that it is rented. Many interesting stories are told by the boys and they have gained a variety of new facts about the birds. Most of the new facts seem to be taken by swallows and bluebirds, but in some places these native birds have been driven away by English sparrows.

One boy reports that his house was taken by a pair of little wrens, and the next day when the sparrows tried to steal possession both the wrens plucked a sparrow and gave him a good trouncing. Another boy reports that his house has been taken by a pair of chickadees, and the next day has eggs in it. This is rather unusual, as the chickadees generally hunt an old stump in the midst of the woods.

On the whole the plan seems a great success from all points of view. The boys have become more interested in studying and protecting the native birds. It is surely appreciated from the birds' point of view.

TIN IS BETTER THAN GOLD

From a Photograph of Lost River Tin Mining Co.'s Properties

In the United States alone $30,600,000 worth of tin—39,000 tons—were consumed last year, not to exceed 200 tons of which were mined in America. The mines of Cornwall, England, which up to the present time have been the great tin producing center of the world, are gradually decreasing in output. The need of a new and nearer-home source of supply has been so seriously recognized by our national government as to prompt an offer of $150,000 reward for the discovery of a paying tin mine in America. For many years this offer was open without a successful claimant; then it was withdrawn. Now, at last, tin has been located in lodes of indisputable value in the York region of Alaska. A discovery of such national importance called for the United States government's investigation, the results of which have been embodied in a report termed Bulletin 229, and headed "The Tin Deposits of the York Region, Alaska."

U. S. Government Report

- Page 7: "Placer tin was discovered in this region (York) in 1900 and since that time active prospecting has been going on to determine the extent and distribution of the stream tin, and also to locate its source in bedrock."
Page 11: "In 1902 the search was continued, and the first real attempts to mine the tin-bearing gravels were made on Buck creek. The developments since 1901 justified further investigations."
Page 18: "Tin is known to be irregularly distributed in the York region over an area of about 450 square miles, embracing the western end of the peninsula. Its occurrence in alluvial deposits has been verified by the United States Geological Survey at three localities, and the existence of tin-bearing lodes has been observed at two points. In addition to these prospectors report the occurrence of tin at a great many other places, either in lode or placer form."
Page 17: "Along Lost river, from the coast to the tin deposits, can be found an exceptionally good roadbed."
Page 18: "Lost river carries approximately 1,000 miner's inches of water."

The mining men who form The Lost River Tin Mining Co., Chas. Randt, Leslie Crim and W. J. O'Brien—mentioned on page 23 of the U. S. Government Report, have been continuously in Alaska since 1904, exploring and developing these tin mines and blocking out ore. Last summer a 6-inch stringer of tungsten, a mineral of great commercial importance, was uncovered, and other minerals such as copper, silver, gold, etc., are indicated in paying quantities. These by-products should in time take care of all operating expenses, leaving the tin clear profit. The company owns 39 claims, covering about 800 acres, and embracing the very heart of the tin deposit region. Three assays of ore made by the U. S. Government went from 4.13 per cent to 15.70 per cent of tin. Later mill tests from ore shipped out by the company went on an average of 7.52 per cent tin. Twenty thousand dollars has been spent in development work and everything is in fine condition for rapid results. But a point is now reached when more capital is needed for the installation of a concentrating plant. To meet this need 50,000 shares of stock will be sold at 50 cents a share.

Leading mining men believe this to be the greatest investment opportunity in Alaska today. The government's proofs of the commercial importance of tin, its increasing demand and the decrease in the output of other well known mines, the cheapness of operation, ready transportation facilities and the fact that practical mining men on the ground put $20,000 of their own money into the development of these mines guarantees the success of the enterprise. For full details write or call at once.
