TRUSTS ARE ELIMINATED

President Roosevelt Says People Have Determined That They Shall Keep Within the Law—Wants More Legislation.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, April 28.—Advocating the adoption in future of a national incorporation law to curb alleged illegal combinations of capital, and making a plea for the enactment of laws affecting the power of injunctions and anti-trust legislation, President Roosevelt late yesterday sent to the congress his fourth special message during the present session.

After making the opening plea for a law to limit judicial power of injunction and insisting that amendments to the anti-trust law are sorely needed, the president devotes some space in his message to the report of the finance committee of Boston, showing the practices indulged in by certain corporations with that city.

He called attention to the fact that the committee's report afforded proof that collusive bids were submitted to the administration of Boston by dealers in structural steel, one of whom was a member of the notorious steel trust, for the purpose of raising prices.

The president said he had submitted a copy of the Boston committee's report to the department of justice for adjustment, and that sufficient evidence of guilt could be gathered to convict under the anti-trust law.

"The power should unquestionably be lodged somewhere in the executive branch of the government," the message says, "permitting corporations which further public interests; but it must be remembered that, as regards wealthy corporations, through which most interstate business is done today, the burden of proof should be upon them to show that they have a right to exist."

No judicial tribunal had the knowledge or the experience to determine in the first place whether a given combination is advisable or necessary in the interest of the public good. Some body, whether it were a commission or a bureau under the department of commerce and labor, should be given this power. It was the president's belief that ultimately we shall have to adopt a national incorporation law, although he was aware of the impossibility of enacting such a law at present.

The president further recommended the establishment of postal savings banks and an ample appropriation to enable the interstate commerce commission to properly supervise and control the accounting systems of the railroads of the country.

He also urged the creation of forest reserves in the Appalachian mountains.

Scolds Congress.

Discussing the impossibility of maintaining a dual control of the national congress, and how the states were unable to control it, the president scolded both branches of congress for their failure to utilize and exercise the great powers conferred upon them as regards the needs of interstate commerce. He said that commerce was not being regulated by congress or the states, but by "occasional" and necessarily inadequate one-sided action by the federal judiciary.

"However upright and able a court is," continues the president, "it cannot act constructively as an agency of the government, and this means that courts will never be able to deal effectively with problems like these, which require constructive authority. Therefore it grows clear that unless a national incorporation law can be forthwith enacted some person or persons in the executive service should be given power to pass upon the agreements of combinations in relation to interstate commerce, and every such combination and agreement not thus approved should be treated as in violation of the law and prosecuted accordingly.

"The issuance of securities of any combination doing interstate business should be under government supervision."

Right to Strike.

Speaking of efforts being made to have labor organizations exempted from any operations of an incorporation law, the president says that such exception would in all probability make the bill unconstitutional. The president maintained that the laborers have a perfect right to combine, strike peaceably and enter into trade agreements with employers.

"But we should sanction neither boycott nor blacklisting, which would be illegal in common law," he says. "The measures I advocate are in the interest of decent corporations and law-abiding labor unions. They are preeminently good for the public, for in my judgment the American people have definitely made up their minds that the reign of the law-defying, law-evading corporation is forever over."

In urging the enactment of legislation limiting the power of injunction and the punishment for contempt, the president said that in contempt cases, save where immediate action was imperative, the trial should not be held in the court offended by the defendant or defendants.

"They are blind who fail to realize the extreme bitterness caused among large bodies of worthy citizens by the use that has been repeatedly made of the power of injunction in labor disputes," says the message.

"I ask that it be limited in some such way as I have already pointed out in a previous message."

The president expressed the belief that congress would this session enact a child labor law for the District of Columbia, and that steps would be taken providing for an investigation of tariff conditions by an appropriate committee of congress, acting with government experts, preparatory to a revision of the schedule to be made by the congress to be elected next fall.

He hoped that financial legislation to provide for possible emergencies will be enacted this session, and that a commission of experts would be appointed to investigate the entire subject and to recommend the legislation which will put our financial system on an efficient, permanent basis.

BUILD DAMS IN MINIATURE FIRST

Panama Canal Engineers Make Mud Pies Before Undertaking Bigger Tasks.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, D. C., April 28.—Engineers of the Panama canal have originated a novel method of determining the necessary construction of the dams that are to impound and guide the water supply for the big ditch. This is by building dams in miniature.

In a wooden tank, 80 feet long, six feet wide and eight feet high, a section of a dam is constructed one twentieth the actual size. Into the tank are pumped materials under conditions similar to those that will exist in the dam itself. The miniature section will be subjected to water pressure. Records will be kept of the water percolation through the layers of soil, the degree of saturation and the erosion of the embankment. When these are completed the engineers will know exactly what sort of material is required, the quantity and the method of construction for the big dams.

Studies of landslides—the most vexatious of the canal problems—are being made in boxes in a similar manner.

When these various other experiments are completed the canal zone will be the most thoroughly tested strip of territory in the world. It is now full of exploration pits and diamond drill holes. The engineers will know not only the nature of the flow of surface streams, but of underground streams under each stratum of rock and in the various strata of earth. Physicians preparing a patient for an appendicitis operation could scarcely be more thorough than the men who are preparing to make the big incision in the earth's crust.

LINCOLN'S BOOSTERS VOTE BOOST MONEY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Newport, Or., April 28.—The banquet of Newport and Lincoln county Commercial clubmen took place at the Abbey house here, with representatives from Toledo, Elk City, Eddyville, Waldport, Siletz, Kernville, Norton and Chitwood present, 150 in all.

Speeches were made by Bishop Scadding of Portland, Rev. J. R. N. Bell of Corvallis, Robert A. Miller of Portland, Charles Bladford of Augusta, Wisconsin; Dr. F. M. Carter, Newport; B. F. Swope, Toledo, along the lines of promotion and demonstration. John M. Scott and W. B. Wells, representing the Harriman lines on joint community advertising, were present. Several cheer-up telegrams and other communications from towns throughout the state were received.

After enjoying a bountiful spread the club took up the matter of community advertising. W. B. Wells explained all the points in detail so well that the club voted $1,000 for a booklet describing all the county in detail and to buy space in a popular coast magazine.

The banquet was a decided success and great results from it are expected.

Fruit Growers Meet.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Riverside, Cal., April 28.—Horticulturists from all over the state are gathered here for the thirty-fourth annual convention of the California Fruit Growers association, which opened this morning. Better packing-house methods and the reducing of decay of fruit in transit is to be the keynote of the convention.

True Color of the Paint with Every Stroke

A GREAT deal can be told about the quality of any paint by the first stroke of the brush.

More can be told after the job is done. And then after a year—two or four years, you will know without being told whether the color and quality were in the paint.

Lowe Brothers "High Standard" Liquid Paint is a paint with exceptional quality. You can tell this by the first stroke of the brush—because you get the true color of the paint with every stroke.

Notice when you get the job done; you won't get variable shades of color, but every part of the job will have the true color of the paint.

And then after one—two or even six years the quality and the color of "High Standard" Paint will show—

Because "High Standard" colors are durable.

And another thing—whatever your "color scheme"—it's always an easy and simple matter to get the right color combination in "High Standard" Paints.

Here are a few special colors for special uses—

Italian Gray for rough plaster houses—a most beautiful effect—and it combines richly with all the Greens.

Colonial Yellow—an unusually attractive and pleasing finish for Colonial style houses.

And our Moss Green is another rarely beautiful shade.

Are you interested in "new fashions"—ask about them. We will gladly assist any painter or householder in selecting the right combinations.

Just as dependable as "High Standard" Liquid Paint are Lowe Brothers Varnishes and Enamels, for exterior or interior finish, porch, floor paint and oil stains for fillers, for beautiful interior effects.

They are the best values to be had—and every can of Paint and Varnish is always full measure. Ask for color cards.

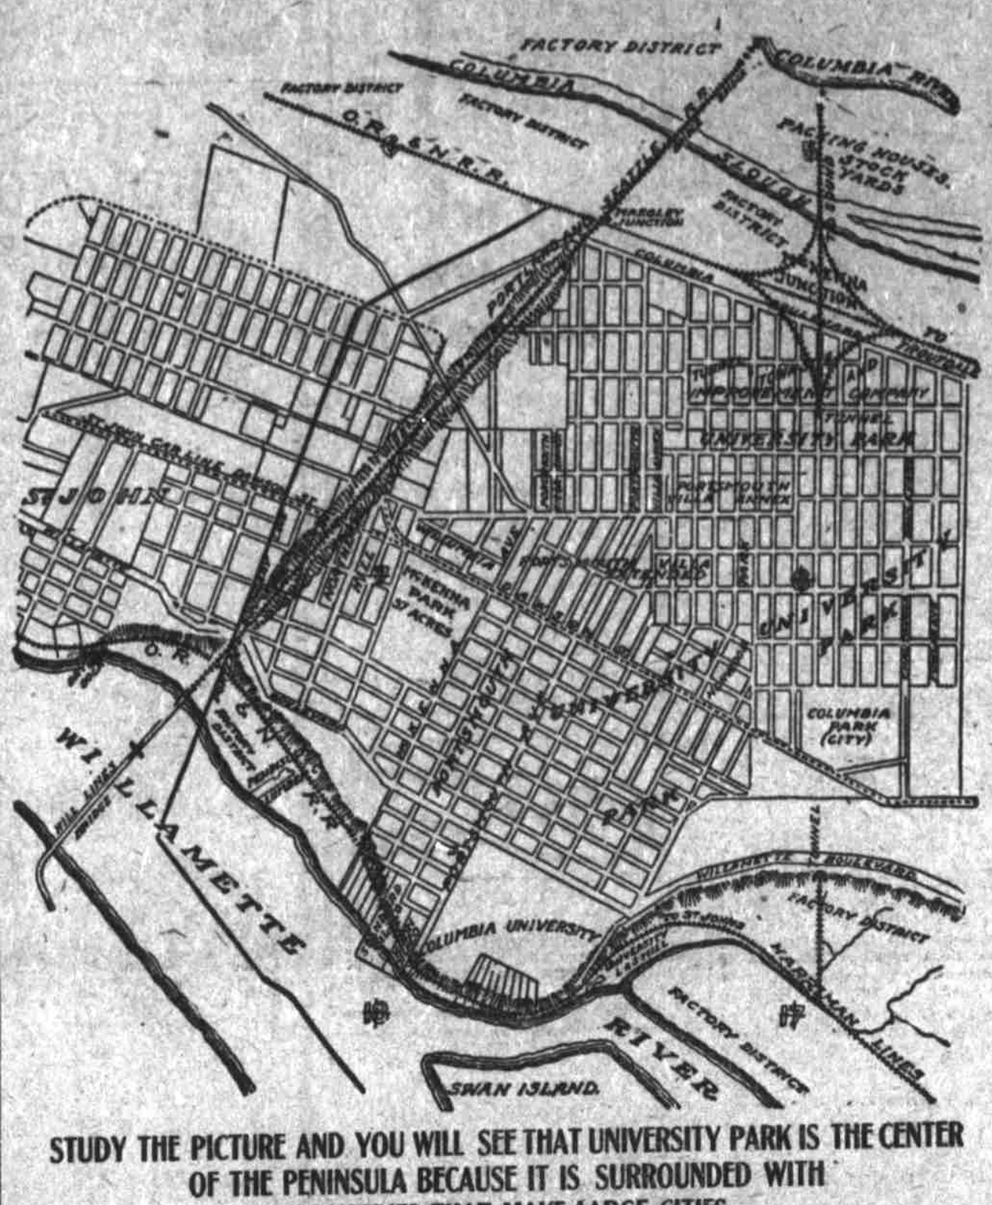
University Park

The Business Center of the Great PENINSULA

The Business Center of the Great PENINSULA



STUDY THE PICTURE AND YOU WILL SEE THAT UNIVERSITY PARK IS THE CENTER OF THE PENINSULA BECAUSE IT IS SURROUNDED WITH INDUSTRIES THAT MAKE LARGE CITIES

The lumber business made Detroit, Michigan, a city of 400,000 population; business lots now $4,000 per front foot. Stockyards and packing-houses gave Chicago its first boost towards greatness by adding 100,000 population to its ranks, business lots now $10,000 per front foot. Stockyards and packing-houses made Kansas City peer over all its rivals by adding to it 60,000 population, business lots now $3,500 per front foot; and made South Omaha a city of 40,000 population, business lots $2,000 per front foot.

What may we reasonably expect of University Park, with its vast lumber business, its large stockyards and packing-houses, and all the great transcontinental railroads centering there, in addition to its rivers navigable to the commerce of the world? When we consider what has been done in other cities, have we not good reason to expect to see lots sell on such streets as Chautauqua, Willis and Fowler for $1,000 per front foot within 10 years? An investment in only one lone lot will surely make you rich in 10 years. Does not something deep down inside tell you not to let this opportunity slip by?

This will be your last opportunity to buy lots on the Peninsula on the installment plan because the lots there will all soon pass into the hands of new owners who will likely demand the cash. PRICES NOW $10 PER FRONT FOOT FOR RESIDENCE LOTS, UP TO $20 PER FRONT FOOT FOR CHOICE BUSINESS LOTS. TERMS 10 PER CENT CASH, BALANCE $10 MONTHLY ON ONE LOT AND $5 ADDITIONAL FOR EACH ADDITIONAL LOT. NO INTEREST IF EACH INSTALLMENT BE PAID WHEN OR BEFORE DUE.

Take St. Johns Car, get off at Chautauqua Boulevard, where you will find my office.
