TAP SOUTHERN OREGON AND DRAW TRADE SOUTH

Purpose of Newly-Incorporated Goose Lake & Southern, a Harriman Branch, Which Will Enter a Rapidly Developing Portion of the State.

A railroad company with $12,000,000 capital has been incorporated to build a road from Lake county, Oregon, to connect with the main line of the Southern Pacific at Anderson, California, a few miles south of Redding, California. It becomes apparent through this move that the Southern Pacific's plan is to drain southern Oregon traffic to San Francisco. The incorporators of the new road are E. H. Calvin, general manager of the Southern Pacific's California lines; William Hoop, chief engineer Southern Pacific system; W. F. Herrin, general attorney, and W. H. Scott.

The line from Goose Lake to Anderson, California, will have a feeder 175 miles long, beginning at a point in Modoc county and extending through Lassen, Plumas and Tehama counties to Vina, station between Red Bluff and Chico. It is said surveys and preliminary arrangements have been completed, and that construction work is expected to begin any day.

The result of this railroad in the movement of commerce of southern Oregon will be to place San Francisco on a strongly competitive basis for the trade of Lake, Harney and Klamath counties, and even as far north as Crook county should the surveyed line of the Oregon Eastern to Madras be built. The business of Lake and Harney counties would be especially accessible to San Francisco, for the Goose Lake & Southern will have practically a water grade from Lakeview to Sacramento.

That the road will be built there is hardly room for doubt, as the incorporation provides a capitalization sufficient to construct and equip the entire 408 miles, and railroad companies do not file capitalization figures meaning nothing when they have to pay the fees that are exacted on capital stock. The line is believed to be the concluding link in a large game Mr. Harriman and associates are playing to keep the Gould lines out of southern Oregon and so retain the complete control of the immense territory that lies between the Columbia and Snake rivers on the north and the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific lines running from Salt Lake to San Francisco.

Big Tonnage Awaits Trains.

The opening of the Oregon military road land grant, and its colonization by the Oregon Valley Land company, is believed to have an important bearing on the proposed Goose Lake & Southern. The grant has for years kept the southern Oregon country closed to settlement in the same manner that other large grants controlling every alternate section of land have clogged the progress of the country through which they run. The military road grant is 1 1/2 miles wide and touches the northerly end of Goose lake, includes the town of Lakeview, and embraces within its outward limits 600,000 acres of lands that are directly tributary to the proposed Goose Lake & Southern. So long as these lands were kept closed to settlers a railroad would have had but limited prospect for tonnage. Now that the grant is thrown open and is being sold in small tracts, the railroad will find in Lake and Harney counties an immense tonnage awaiting the operation of the line.

MACHINE MEN SNOWED UNDER

Lincoln-Roosevelt California League Stamps Out All Corporation Politics.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, May 6.—No comfort came with the early morning hours to the Southern Pacific machine ticket, and every report from the interior counties indicates a complete victory for the Lincoln-Roosevelt league, the combination that was organized to rid the state of all traces of Ruff-Schmitz-Otis-Herrin politics. The people were on their feet, and they went to the polls and slaughtered every man on the ticket who "made a noise like a locomotive."

The returns from yesterday's primaries show that the league will have control of the state central committee, and such old time chairmen as Colonel Stone, who was in on every Herrin love feast, will have to surrender the reins to those who wear the railroad collar. It was a trimming such as the boss strong forces of the machine did not suspect would be

RAIDING AFGHANS SUFFER HEAVY LOSS

(United Press Leased Wire.)

London, May 6.—The fighting between Major Willcock's forces and the raiding Afghans in Khyber passed on Sunday and Monday was bloodier than was at first supposed. According to an official report received today from Peshawar, 300 natives were killed and the same number wounded. The loss sustained by the British column is not mentioned. No further fighting is expected.
