

MUSICIAN MURDERED

Body of Henry E. Johnson of Sixth Artillery Found in Furnace of Fort Near Vancouver — Suspect Under Arrest.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Port Townsend, Wash., May 9.—With arms hacked off at the elbows, both legs severed at the knees and all but consumed in the flames of a furnace into which the murderer had cast them to remove traces of his crime, the body of Musician Henry E. Johnson of the Sixth United States Artillery corps band were found this morning by a companion who went to investigate any heating apparatus in the barracks was not working. Johnson was also post cobbler and derived a healthy revenue from money which he loaned to his fellow musicians at a promising rate of interest.

Yesterday was payday, and many debtors called on Johnson to reestablish their credit. It is therefore supposed that the robbery was the sole motive, for the man had no enemies in the district. For a time the officers at Worden were in a quandary as to the identity of the badly charred victim or his murderer, but the sizzling flesh which was speedily hauled from the furnace furnished clues that resulted in the positive assurance of identity and the probability of the identity of the culprit.

AGENT IS KICKING AGAINST HOLD-OUT

P. E. Blackman Alleges S. P. Docked Him for Rate Misquotation.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., May 9.—P. E. Blackman, a former freight clerk for the Southern Pacific at Roseburg, has appealed to the railroad commission to aid him in securing $30, which the company kept out of his monthly salary of $75 because of a misquotation of tariffs. It is alleged the company was at fault because both the interstate law and the law of Oregon require that the tariffs shall be posted and kept for the inspection of the public at all depots as well as for agents.

W. S. Booth shipped to Roseburg from Rawlins, Wyoming, a carload of horses. He ordered a certain sized car, the road being unable to provide a car the size ordered a larger one was substituted presumably at the same charge. Blackman collected from Booth when the shipment had arrived, at the rate for the former car. The auditor of the Southern Pacific detected the alleged mistake of the agent and kept the difference, amounting to $30, out of Blackman's next pay check.

COPI CAPTURE WRECK BEAR

Stolen by Steamer Crew but Rescued by Gallant Policemen.

Chief Gritmacher's doughty warriors in blue were confronted with a soul-trying proposition at midnight last night. Just as the station clock struck 12, there came a telephone call from Vancouver. It was Sheriff Sappington of Clarke county and his voice trembled as he transmitted the message to Captain of Detectives Baty. And the hand of the brave captain shook as he held the receiver to his ear and a panic was averted.

"My bear, my cub bear, has been stolen," said Sheriff Sappington. "It was in a stage coach in the river near Camas when the crew of the tugboat George Burton came along and took it away with them. Please meet the boat and rescue the bear, which I value at $100."

It was a time to try men's souls. Captain Baty, his voice hoarse with emotion, called up the reserves and asked for volunteers to capture the bear. One of the blue coats suddenly stepped forward and offered himself on the altar of duty. The captain selected the six largest and sent them down to the wharf to the tugboat and rescue the ursu horribilus. At the time of going to press the fearless band was still waiting on the dock while the reserves held the fort at headquarters. The boat was due at 2 o'clock this morning.

GOVERNORS WILL MAKE HISTORY

First Time President of United States Has Called Such a Conference.

(United Press, Leased Wire.)
Washington, May 9.—History will be made at next week's White House conference on the conservation of national resources. Never before has a president of the United States conferred with the governors of the states, or their representatives. No cut-and-dried program will be followed. For this meeting the famous east room of the White House will be transformed. Along the east wall will be placed a combined framework and platform 12 feet long and 12 feet high. It will hold the giant maps made by the forest service, each 12 by 16 feet in size. Between the maps there will be an arrangement for displaying illustrations by hand-colored transparencies.

The strictest sort of secrecy will be given every person attending the meeting and the grounds even will be restricted to the delegates. No one will be admitted to the east room until the delegates have entered. All entrances will be closed to all visitors for three days of the meeting.

COPPER SHOOTS MOVING PICTURES

Pittsburg Policeman Rides Canvas in Attempt to Rescue Fair Heroine.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Pittsburg, Pa., May 9.—With a roar that would have done credit to the Bull o' Bashan, J. H. Burkhard, a policeman, drew his revolver at a moving picture exhibition here tonight and literally riddled the canvas on which a series of moving pictures called the Cowboy and the Schoolmarm were being portrayed. The hall was crowded with women and the scene was a panic was narrowly averted.

The pictures were so realistic, the melting wax of the stilling, the violence had frequently broken into wild applause, an unusual thing at a moving picture show in Pittsburg. The scene of the action is the wildest west. The heroine, a beautiful and most estimable young woman, is shown riding in a stage coach toward the small town in which she has received an appointment as school teacher. The stage coach is suddenly attacked by bandits. There is a terrible fight. Bullets fly but when the smoke of battle clears the school teacher is the victor. The school teacher falls into their ruthless hands. They drag her off and, as the pictures show, they are still waiting on the dock while the reserves held the fort at headquarters. The boat was due at 2 o'clock this morning.

Burkhard sprang to his feet, jerked a heavy revolver from his holster and bang-bang-bang, he blazed away at the villainous children and women shrieked and fainted. A fellow policeman quieted the excited officer and placed him under arrest.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Prince Fredericktown, Md., May 9.—A mob is outside the little jail here tonight awaiting an opportunity to storm the weak prison and lynch Arthur Rand, a vicious-looking negro, who was convicted today of assaulting Mrs. Mary Bugby. With only a few minutes to go before the lynch mob is in constant fear of his prisoner being lynched, although he has threatened to shoot into the mob if the jail is attacked.

As yet the mob lacks a leader, but popular feeling runs high and the negro will be lynched if he is not taken care of before midnight.

If possible the negro will be spirited out of the district attorney for protection. Fear of the mob has caused the negro to quake with fear. He thinks every moment the mob will break in and take him out to the nearest tree.

WAREHOUSEMEN BLEED SHIPPERS

Heppner Man Alleges O. R. & N. or Its Agents Acts Collusively.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., May 9.—In a complaint to the railroad commission, Emil C. T. Grotkopp of Heppner alleges that the O. R. & N. or its agents in collusion with private warehousemen at Heppner and that receivers of shipments at Heppner are being held up by this collusion of the railroad or its agents with the warehousemen.

The law provides that shipments may be held without cost to the receiver of the shipment for 10 days after they are delivered by the carrier. But at Heppner the goods are delivered to one of two warehousemen there. These warehousemen then mail a note to the receiver of the freight informing him that the shipment has arrived and that he may have the same by paying freight charges plus storage charges; also incidentally forwarding charges and a small commission.

Mr. Grotkopp included in his complaint bills paid by him to Mr. Cohn, one of the warehousemen, for freight received by Cohn and stored in Cohn's private warehouse for three days after arrival. He stated that the goods were shipped direct to Grotkopp but Cohn took them in charge and then charged Grotkopp for three days' storage plus a small commission for storing them for three days, which, it is claimed, should have been paid by the railroad company until 10 days had passed, and in the meantime the goods had not been taken away by Grotkopp.

RICE AND COLE MUST ANSWER NEW CHARGE

Girl Witness in One Case Missing, New Complaint Filed.

"Disorderly saloon" is the charge booked against J. Rice and O. Cole, who run a dramshop at 148 Sixth street, but connected with the charge is a puzzling police story involving the mysterious disappearance of Vera Clifford, a young girl in her teens, while in the nominal custody of Mrs. Lola G. Baldwin, of the woman's police auxiliary. April 7 Cole and Rice were arrested on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors. It was alleged that they were keeping Vera Clifford in their saloon for immoral purposes. They were bound over to the grand jury, and the Clifford girl was held as the star witness, and given in charge of Mrs. Baldwin. She was missing when the time appointed for the hearing before the grand jury arrived. It is believed she is in Chicago. The present charge of running a disorderly saloon was then placed against Rice and Cole. The case will come up before Judge Cameron on Monday, May 11.

PORTLAND ARTISTS GUESTS OF O. A. C.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Corvallis, Or., May 9.—Last evening Waldo hall, the young women's dormitory of the Oregon Agricultural college, was the scene of one of the most successful receptions of the season. Many of the finest Turkish rugs in Portland were placed on exhibition and explained to the young ladies. These speakers came at the instance of Mrs. Clara H. Waldo of East Portland, who takes a deep interest in the young ladies attending the Agricultural college from all quarters of Oregon. The rooms were beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut roses, and light refreshments were served. The guests were the girls of O. A. C., the ladies of the faculty and the wives of the professors. About 250 were present.

FOREIGNERS EAGER TO LEARN ENGLISH

Miss Carrie E. Meyers, superintendent of the night school conducted by the Council of Jewish women, is making arrangements to build a new structure for the accommodation of the hundreds of foreigners who are daily increasing the population of Portland, which is assuming the same relation to these immigrants with regard to the Pacific coast that New York occupies on the Atlantic seaboard. These poor refugees are for the most part Russian and Polish Jews, and it is pitiful to see the eagerness with which they are attempting to master a strange language and adapt themselves to the new conditions which they find in the land of the free.
