

EVANS' FLAG IS LOWERED

Pathetic Ceremony Over and Old Seafighter Starts on His Way to the East—Admiral Thomas Now Commands.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, May 9.—Today a new hand guides the destinies of the Atlantic fleet. Robley D. Evans has stepped down, his work done, and his nation grateful.

He did not see his blue star-studded pennant flutter to the deck of the flagship out in the bay but from his open window at the St. Francis he listened to the low rumble of the guns that bade him the fleet's farewell. What the subdued roar of that salute meant to him and the emotion it stirred up within him no man may know but his eye glistened as he listened and those near him detected a quaver in his voice. He had struck his flag for the first and the last time in his life on the sea.

Once more today the eyes of the broken sea fighter filled and glistened. It was when he was on his way across the bay, seated on the deck of a ferry. The course of the boat carried him past the head of the fleet he had brought safely through a voyage that has made the whole world applaud. Crossing the bow of the Connecticut he could see with a sailor's eye the flag that had taken the place of his own.

He rose and with bared head saluted his great fleet looking wistfully up and down the far flung lines and murmuring good bye, good bye.

A few minutes more and the ferry had carried him to the other side of the bay and he had started on his way to Washington and the rest he has so well earned.

Almost as simple as the departure of Admiral Evans was the ceremony in the morning of lowering his flag on the flagship Connecticut and the raising of the flag of the new commander, Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas.

Before 10 o'clock in the morning the Connecticut was ready for the last act in the sea life of the man who was leaving it. There was no shore leave and none was sought. There was no member of the crew who did not wish to play his little part in the leave taking.

At the Scott ranch, at the end of one of the finest mountain drives when the season opened for the water to be turned into the fields that many acres were covered with the fish to die and decay in the fields. This, he says, is the custom of all the country in regard to fish and game. No other section in the west compares with that in the matter of fish and game.

Cheap Lands There.

A thing that is stimulating the rush to that country, in addition to its natural resources, is the prospect of a railroad through the Harney valley in the near future. This, with the fact that land is so cheap, makes homeseekers willing to invest all their money in lands of these beautiful valleys, where, of course, the principal business will be stockraising, the climate not being suited to fruit or vegetables.

Harney Lake's Beauties.

Much has been said of the wonders of Harney lake, which lies in the midst of the valley of the same name, but Mr. Lander says the half has never been told. Such is his enthusiasm that many from this section are already planning to take their summer outing in this valley of beauty and peace.

KLAMATH BOOSTERS ORGANIZE A RIGHT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Klamath Falls, Or., May 9.—The Klamath chamber of commerce has been completely reorganized, and is now in position to do the most effective work for the Klamath basin. It is formed more on the lines of the city boards of trade, and its business will be conducted by seven directors instead of the whole chamber as in the past. The board of directors is made up of the following: President, George T. Baldwin; secretary, R. H. Dunbar; treasurer, Alex. Martin Jr.; John Ellis, W. H. Dolber and Frank W. White. One of the matters to receive the immediate attention of the chamber will be the placing of a permanent exhibit of Klamath products at Wood, which is now the gateway into the Klamath basin.

IDAHOAN RAVES OF INNER OREGON

Cheap Lands, Fish, Game, and Scenic Beauty All Abound There.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Caldwell, Ida., May 9.—J. H. Lander, traveling agent of the firm of Lowell, Madden & Lander, livestock commission merchants of this city, returned recently from a trip through southeastern Oregon, where he went to list livestock for sale. He came back with about 12,000 head of stock on his list for sale from the stockgrowers of this section, and gives it as his opinion that this is the very best country for the raising of stock that there is in the northwest, if not in the United States. He was completely taken with the country, and will do most of his business in livestock commission in that section this year.

The range cattle in that section, Mr. Lander says, are now selling for from $16 to $17 per head and the two and three-year beef for from $24 to $25 per head. These prices are some of them made from the fact that many of the stockmen who have been in the Malheur and Harney valleys for a number of years are anxious now to move out in order to educate their children and are really selling at reduced prices.

Remarkable Chalk Cliff.

Mr. Lander is very enthusiastic in his praise of the country in general, and says the reason there are so many inhabitants in the Malheur and Harney valleys is because the people have no idea what is there and are just beginning to find out.

He brought back with him some of the chalk he had broken from the natural cliff near Juntura, and says the ledge from which he took this specimen is about 20 feet thick and is of solid chalk. The country there is all in game and fish, and the streams are so full of mountain trout that they can be caught in any stream with little effort.

The traffic from the Oregon Short Line to Burns is, he says, greater than has ever been known in the memory of the first settlers of the valley, and the stage accommodations from Vale are not adequate for baggage transfer to interior points. There are special freight teams to transfer baggage from Vale to Burns and other interior points.

Fish for Fertilizer.

At the Scott ranch, at the end of one of the finest mountain drives when the season opened for the water to be turned into the fields that many acres were covered with the fish to die and decay in the fields. This, he says, is the custom of all the country in regard to fish and game. No other section in the west compares with that in the matter of fish and game.

BRYAN READY TO OPEN CAMPAIGN

Speech-Making Tour Expected to Have Bearing on Nomination Chances.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Omaha, Neb., May 9.—The trip which William J. Bryan began today is expected to have a strong bearing upon his chances for the presidency. He will leave this city Monday on an extended eastern trip, during which he is expected to make his final preparations for presenting his candidacy to the Denver convention. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday he will spend in Washington, conferring with his lieutenants there.

On May 17 Mr. Bryan will speak in Chicago, May 19 in Baltimore and May 20 in Hagerstown, Maryland.

Politicians here expect the Democratic leader to furnish some campaign capital for himself in this series of speeches.

Lincoln, Neb., May 9.—Assurances of support from every state in the union are pouring in upon William J. Bryan.

Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, declared yesterday that New York would cast its 78 votes for Bryan.

Several eastern Democrats asserted there would not even be a recall at the Denver convention to determine the presidential candidate.

An estimate by several close friends of Mr. Bryan has led to the prediction that 800 delegates will go to Denver pledged to the Nebraska

TO INSTRUCT THE PRIMARIES

Lane G. O. P. for Convention Next Time; Also for Taft—Calk at Roseburg.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Eugene, Or., May 9.—The Republican convention today resolved to stand for Taft and to support Calk. It resolved in favor of a convention before the primaries two years hence, as better results would be attained, it was claimed. It placed itself as unalterably in favor of the university bill.

Twelve delegates were chosen for the state convention and 12 to the district convention. Two hundred were present in the convention.

Roseburg, Or., May 9.—An audience that packed the courthouse here tonight heard Calk, Republican nominee for United States senator. On the platform with him were county candidates and a number of prominent men of this section. Calk spoke an hour or more, urging Republicans to support party nominees. He made no personal remarks with reference to Governor Chamberlain, but the audience, which seemed to be in sympathy with him, laughed considerably when the speaker told of the claims the Democratic candidate made of alone possessing the ability to serve as senator.

Calk spoke this afternoon at Oakland, where he was greeted by a fair-sized audience.

WOLF CREEK COLONY IS A SURE THING

Settlers Arriving to Found a New Center of Fruit Culture.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Wolf Creek, Or., May 9.—Wolf Creek colony is now a settled fact. Development work goes steadily on. The freight house has shown a congested condition for some time, several eastern families bring considerable of their belongings with them, and on their great satisfaction household goods shipped from Pennsylvania less than two weeks before they started awaited their owners on arrival here.

For a week a surveying party has been at work on the outside lines, running through to government section corners, then making corrections so that the work may be of a satisfactory character.

Several tracts have been staked off in subdivision No. 1, and tracts Nos. 2 and 3, comprising 75 acres, were purchased last evening by a young man from Chicago, who has been on the ground for three weeks awaiting the survey. Inquiries are being received from all parts of the country, and the "no saloon" feature is commented on and commended more than any other single feature.

Soil Like Helm's Orchard.

Wolf Creek is the first valley south of the Umpqua divide, introducing the traveler southward on the scenic Southern Pacific to the famous Rogue River valley. In formation, soil and climate this southernly sloping valley is much like the first valley north of the Siskiyou divide, in which is situated, on rich red soil which so abounds here also, the A. D. Helms Newton apple orchard, which without a single failure has yielded its owner net annual average profits of $781 per acre for the past seven years.

Recent showers have wonderfully stimulated growing crops, and a considerable acreage of corn is now being planted.

DIVORCE SUIT TO BOOM BOOK

Attorney Alleges Spouse Made Sensational Allegations to Advertise Self.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Chicago, May 9.—Charging that his wife filed a suit for separate maintenance just to get some free advertising for a novel she was writing, Attorney B. M. Shaffner today got an injunction preventing her from removing furniture and household goods from their house.

Shaffner's petition for the injunction alleged that "with a view of obtaining notoriety and publicity," Mrs. Shaffner filed her suit, hoping that this publicity would help the sale of "what she terms a novel, but which is a melange of inane, crude and erotic stuff, inartistically thrown together."
