

PRESIDENT ANGRY AT HIS DAUGHTER BAR PRESIDENT FROM CONFERENCE

Displeased at Publicity Given Announcement of Her Lecture.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Bellevue, Ohio, May 11.—At the urgent request of her father, President Roosevelt, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt-Longworth has changed her mind about stumping the eighth Ohio congressional district, where an election will be held this fall.
The president, it is said, was displeased with the publicity given the announcement that his daughter would make political speeches, and this is reported to be the principal reason why he asked her to change her mind.
In August the Countess of Warwick will address a mass meeting of 15,000 negroes in the eighth district, where she will endeavor to elect a Socialist to congress. It had been Mrs. Longworth's intention to debate with the countess on the stump. The latter has informed E. G. Wharton, socialist candidate for congress, that she will make 12 speeches for him in the county.

Attempt to Keep Mr. Roosevelt From Governors' Meeting Reported.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, May 11.—That an attempt will be made to bar President Roosevelt from participating in the proceedings of the conference of governors which meets here next Wednesday, after an organization is effected, is not unlikely, according to a report that has reached the ears of the governors who have already arrived here.
Why such action is contemplated, if it is, is a puzzle to many, as it is pointed out that, inasmuch as the president called the governors together he should be permitted to take any part he wishes in the deliberations. However, nobody can be found who wants to stand responsible for the story.
The basis for it may be found in the president's refusal to consider William George Jordan's proposition for a house of governors and a disposition on the part of many of the state executives to adopt the plan.

DEATH OF A NOTED MAN OF THE WEST

Louis Lee, a Willamette Pioneer and Tribesman by Adoption.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Tekoa, Wash., May 11.—Louis Lee, one of the oldest and most respected white residents of the Coeur d'Alene Indian reservation, died suddenly of apoplexy while talking with one of his sons. He was 86 years old and came to the Pacific coast at the age of 16. During the early days he engaged in steamboating on the Willamette river and then moved to Rathdrum, Idaho, where he engaged in business. From Rathdrum he came to the vicinity of Tekoa, over 30 years ago.
He married an Indian woman, Eleanor Peone, and secured control of a large body of land on the reservation, where he has since made his home. He was adopted by the Coeur d'Alene Indians and acted as interpreter and counselor for them.

MEET TO CONSIDER DRAINAGE QUESTION

Annual Convention of Congress Will Be Held Tomorrow at Washington.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Washington, May 11.—At the same time that President Roosevelt is conferring with the governors of the states and other prominent men at the White House on the preservation of the country's natural resources, another representative gathering will meet here to consider an allied subject—drainage. The annual convention of the national drainage congress begins tomorrow, and a large attendance is expected. All the governors have appointed delegates, and the boards of trade and commercial organizations of all the large cities will send representatives.
The subject of drainage will undoubtedly play an important part in the White House conference, and the two meetings will cooperate in spreading the propaganda of the reclamation of swamp lands through scientific application of drainage.
Probably the most important question to be discussed at the conference of governors is that of forest utilization and preservation. A mass of data has been prepared by the forest service on the matter.
President Roosevelt will have a good illustration to help in explaining what irrigation means. He can point to five irrigation projects now under construction. It will be demonstrated at the conference that these five projects will give high agricultural value to a total of nearly 1,900,000 acres of land. The five irrigation projects are the Milk and Sun river projects in Montana, the Shoshone in Wyoming, the Belle Fourche in South Dakota, and the North Platte in Wyoming and Nebraska.
The board that irrigation will solve the problem of floods and spring freshets is not founded on idle theory. The practice of irrigation is directly dependent upon storage of water. Every additional drop of water fished from above the regular level of a stream and stored in the irrigation reservoirs means bigger crops for the irrigated farms. And the reservoirs will take up the vast volume of water that starts out on a rampage to spread flood and destruction, before any damage can be done.

RACE TRACK FIGHT COMES UP AGAIN

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Albany, N. Y., May 11.—Interest so far as the legislators of the empire state are concerned seems today in Albany, where tonight the special session of the legislature called by Governor Hughes will convene. Law makers are arriving from all parts of the state and many are already here to wage the fight for and against the governor's anti-race-track gambling bills. There seems to have been a change in the attitude of the legislators on these measures. However, Governor Hughes thinks he is going to win, believing that public sentiment is strong enough to pass the bills.

All of the reservoirs for the five irrigation projects now being completed will exert an effect on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. The Big Muddy may be clarified remarkably, flooding of southern levees ameliorated, and conditions generally improved.

PORTLAND RAILWAY, LIGHT & POWER COMPANY

Bulletin No. 3

THE TRANSFER SYSTEM.

Before the various consolidations which resulted in the placing of the street railways here under one management, transfers were given only between lines of the same company. The person whose residence and place of business were upon lines belonging to the same company was fortunate; if this were not the case, it cost 10 cents or more each day to get down town and the same amount to return.

With the consolidation of the companies the transfer system has been constantly extended. There are at present 33 transfer points, while the "privileges of transfer," that is, the number of lines to which transfers may be had at these points, equals 759. The number of transfers used by the people of Portland has constantly increased, but actual figures are available only for the past two years, which are as follows:

1906—11,827,148.
1907—13,230,815.

That is to say, about 25 per cent of all passengers take transfers.

Let us see what this means, first to the Portland public; then to the company.

Without the transfer system it would have cost the people here about $1,250,000 more than they have paid in the last two years. This is a maximum figure and assumes that as many people would have ridden without the transfer privilege as with it, but cut this figure in two or even three parts, and the saving will still be immense.

Again, if the charge for transfers were 3 cents, as is the case for instance in Philadelphia, it would have cost the people of this city over $750,000 in the last two years for transfers alone.

It is often asked what benefit the people received from the consolidation of the street railways. The immense saving shown above is a complete answer to that question.

14 MILES FOR ONE TRANSFER.

Now let us see what this means to the company.

Twenty-five per cent of all passengers carried ride on transfers; that is to say, the company receives an average of 3 1/4 cents per passenger. In some cases you can ride 14 miles on this fare. Out of this 3 1/4 cents the company must pay all taxes, licenses and operating expenses, keep its portion of the streets in repair, maintain its system and pay the interest on its bonded debt.

These figures are convincing. They show two things: First, the advantage to the people and the burden to the company of the transfer privilege; second, the liberal opportunity afforded for its use.

RESTRICTIONS TO USE OF TRANSFERS.

It is only fair, however, that people should not ride twice for one fare, and reasonable regulations are necessary to prevent this.

The regulations provide that the passenger shall ask for a transfer at the time of payment of his fare; also that the transfer shall not be good on lines returning in the same general direction from which the passenger started.

From the above it will be seen that the only restrictions on the transfer privilege are such as are necessary for our own protection to prevent those economically inclined from getting a return trip at our expense.

No fair-minded man can say that such restrictions are unreasonable. We know, however, that every arrangement is subject to improvements, and we have men at work constantly studying the transfer system.

It is our business and intention to give you the best streetcar service that can be had, and we point to these figures as proof of what we have done in this most important particular. What we ask you to do is to read your transfer.

If it is not good on a certain line, do not blindly censure us; think out the reason for yourself, and you will find, we hope, that in every case the reason is not an arbitrary one, but a matter of necessity for self-protection.

INTEREST—The interest on these certificates commenced May 1, 1908, payable semi-annually and is guaranteed absolutely, under a trusteeship.

INCREASE VALUE—The increase value of Portland Business Real Estate has been steady and healthy and easily justifiable. Within the last few years the eastern money interests have fully realized the many and wonderful resources of Oregon, among which are its agricultural lands, its timber and its water-powers, all needing development and exploitation. These resources must all pay tribute to Portland, and it is easy to reason why Portland business property has within the past five years, increased from 175 to 400 per cent and it is safe to predict that the next five or ten years will see even a greater increase.

DIVIDENDS—The property purchased and held for these certificates will be so held under trusteeship for ten years and then sold. The certificate holders will receive in addition to the face of their certificates and the interest and income paid on them, one half of the increased valuation of the property, being the difference between the purchase price and the selling price of the property, which can easily be estimated between 200 per cent and 300 per cent, for every reason gives evidence that Portland should have between 500,000 and 600,000 population within the next ten years.

CONFIDENCE—This investment must appeal to all who have confidence in Portland, and all living in this beautiful and glorious Pacific northwest country must know that Portland is destined to be its financial and social center.
