ANGELS ON HAND TO PLAY BEAVERS

Captain Dillon Will Be Satisfied If His Team Breaks Even.

Batteries: Los Angeles—Randolph or Thorsen and Hogan.

Portland—Kinsella and Madden.

Los Angeles opens a week's engagement with Portland at the ball park here this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Captain Frank Dillon and his champions arrived here this morning and are putting up at the Calumet during their stay.

Captain Dillon stated that his men were in splendid condition and ready to put up the battle of their lives. He says there is nothing to the report that the team is weak in the box, but admits his pitchers have been out of condition. He says he will send in Randolph or the new man, Thorsen, to do the firing. Hogan will be at the receiving end.

Dillon evidently is afraid of the Beavers' sticking to the crafty captain and that he would be greatly satisfied if his team broke even on the trip.

On the other hand McCredie thinks his hurlers are well enough acquainted with the local grounds that there will be little trouble taking the series. More than once the heavy hitting Beavers have knocked out Angel slingers west and Mac feels that they can duplicate the trick again.

The big manager is mighty anxious to win the game today. He wants to show the fans that he has a team despite the bad showing of the opening week. One that purpose he is sending Big Eddie Kinsella against the Angels. Kinsella is one of the best twirlers on the staff and Mac knows that he is ready.

TOMMY RYAN QUILTS FIGHT GAME A CHAMP

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Chicago, May 12.—Tommy Ryan has quit the fighting game for all time. The once great welterweight said today: "I've had enough. I will retire without having been beaten by a man of my own weight. That's good enough for anybody to boast of, and it satisfies me right down to the ground."

That fruit came at Fair Play looks pretty good to me and I am going to stick there. The bad weather has put the fruit back a little, but I guess everything will come out all right.

"Only Kid McCoy has beaten me, and he was a light heavyweight and not even a middleweight. I never weighed over 145 pounds in my fighting days, and even now, with my overcoat on, I was boxing 175 pounds. Often when I was boxing I could do 142 pounds easily. That ought to show that almost every time I entered the ring I went out of my class."

"I claim that I retire middleweight champion, but of course that is not going to get me anything. But I will claim it just the same and see if I cannot make somebody mad."

"I lack only a few weeks of 30 years since Tommy Ryan became conspicuous as a pugilist. It was July 20, 1888, that I knocked out Joe Johnson in five rounds at Marion, Michigan, that being his first important fight. In his 26 years he has fought 110 times, and in only three of those he has been kept out of the ring. His last bouts were with Dave Barry and Hugo Kelly late in the winter of 1907."

PATRONS KICK ON SUNDAY CROWDING

Danger to Life and Limb From Rushing of Careless Spectators.

Several patrons of the baseball game Sunday are complaining of the manner of conducting the ticket sale and the method of shoving the big crowd into the grandstand and the grounds.

One gentleman escorting two ladies says that he was compelled to stand in the street half an hour before he could purchase tickets to the grounds and grandstand. When he finally was able to make his way through the throng, his two companions found that no seats could be had in the grandstand and he was forced to descend the stairs again and leave the grounds for want of suitable seating accommodations.

Several times he and the ladies had to be ground and trampled upon, he says. In addition to paying out money to see the game he was compelled to forego the pleasure of seeing the game because no advantage had been given him by the management.

This is only one of the many complaints that have reached The Journal.

Where Were the Cops?

One fan wonders why there were not enough policemen on the grounds to clear the crowd away after San Francisco had been retired in the ninth.

"I have seen a score of games in my life where the score was tied or beaten in the last inning," he writes, "and there is no reason to believe a sudden rally might not have enabled the visiting team to win. There were only six runs needed to tie the score, and there is always the element of luck which might bring such a number. I am not satisfied with the forfeiture and I know a dozen more ardent fans who feel the same way."

"I saw such a rush as last Sunday," says another fan. "That nobody was hurt seems miraculous. There were a score of men on the streets, Twenty-fourth and Vaughn. The turnstile for the bleachers is on the right or Twenty-fourth street side of the rail, while the grandstand entrance is on the Vaughn street side. It seemed to me that every man headed for the bleachers entered from the Vaughn street gate and surged across the open space. Those with grandstand tickets probably entered from Twenty-fourth street."

Saved Lady From Injury.

"When these two mobs met in the center it was something awful. I grab the lady's arm to keep her from going down under the feet of some charging men, but even then she was jammed into the rail. I saw another man do the same thing."

"Now why can't the management build a separate gate for the bleachers for the bleachers entered from the Vaughn street gate and surged across the open space. Those with grandstand tickets probably entered from Twenty-fourth street."

Baseballer Surprised.

"Portland is one of the best ball towns in the west and the way it supports a ball-end team is remarkable," remarked a visitor from the east.

"From the size of the town I was greatly surprised by the Sunday turnout for the bleachers entered from the Vaughn street gate and surged across the open space. Those with grandstand tickets probably entered from Twenty-fourth street."

COASTERS WOULD MAKE GREAT BASEBALL TEAM

Out of the old Coast league players now drawing salaries in the major leagues there could be organized a club that would make a respectable showing in any company.

Just behind the plate, we have McLean, Street, Elias and Donahue. The former is now rated as one of the very best catchers in the field, and it is showing up splendidly and Donahue will make good when given a chance. He was quite strong at Seattle on the pitching force by any means. There are some corking left-handers in the bunch, as well as some great right-handers.

On the bases, we have Fred Chase, Courtney, Sheehan, Atz, Freeman and Sweeney, and in the outfield Mitchell, Kretz, and Newson. The bunch would be a very strong one.

STARBUCKS ON RIGHT PATH

Dr. Eliot Says Selection as to Adaptability Is Solution.

The statement of Dr. Charles W. Eliot of Harvard that it is the duty of teachers to sort the children, is still being actively discussed whenever and wherever teachers meet. It is interesting in this connection to note the exact wording of President Eliot's address before the annual meeting of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education. Speaking on "Industrial Education as an Essential Factor in Our National Prosperity," he said in part:

"There is a great deal of confusion about the meaning of the term 'industrial education.' Industrial education ought to mean trade schools, and nothing but trade schools; that is, schools directed primarily and expressly to the preparation of young men and women for the trades. All such schools should be capable of being used by boys and girls who devote their whole time to the schools; just as they do to an ordinary high school; or by pupils who, being already at work, are allowed by their employers to give from six to 12 hours a week to the trade school."

Education—Life-long.

"In recent times we have begun to take a wrong view of education from what we used to take. We used to think of education as something which was going to last perhaps to the 14th or 15th year, or in extreme cases, to the 24th or 26th year. We no longer think of education in this way. Education should be continuous throughout life and particularly it should be continuous during the years of youth. The trade schools should be continuous schools for those children who are unfortunately obliged to leave the regular school system by the time they are 14 or 15 years of age."

DIRECT PRIMARY LAW IS ON TRIAL

Arguments for and Against Washington Measure Before Supreme Court.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Olympia, Wash., May 12.—The case testing the constitutionality of the new direct primary election law was submitted with brief oral arguments to the supreme court yesterday. The three points discussed were the provision fixing a fee for the filing of declarations of candidacy, the second choice provision, and the sections providing for the nomination of a non-partisan judiciary.

Attorney Gordon Mackay, attorney for the appellant, contended that the fee provision constituted discrimination in favor of the man who is able or has the inclination to pay for becoming a candidate, and restricts the constitutional right of any elector to become a candidate for office.

He claims that the second choice provision, in requiring an elector to vote for both a first and second choice candidate on penalty of having his vote thrown away, is unconstitutional because a person who is an opponent of the elector's real choice, and is therefore antagonistic to the constitutional guarantee of the right of suffrage, is allowed to use his vote to give from six to 12 hours a week to the trade school.

"The alleged flaw in the judicial provision is that primary nomination is in effect actual election, thus violating the constitutional requirement that judges shall be chosen at the general election." George B. Bigelow, city attorney of Olympia, and Assistant Attorney-General I. B. Knickerbocker defended the law. They maintained that the proponent of authorities give the legislature the right to exact a reasonable fee from candidates; that without the second choice provision it would be not only impossible, but probable, that a candidate who is not found invalid unless squarely in conflict with some constitutional provision, which they claimed it was not.

U. OF O. STUDENTS CHEER FOR CAKE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

University of Oregon, Eugene, May 12.—A crowd of university students at Eugene turned out last evening to make a demonstration for H. M. Cake, candidate for United States senator, as he passed through that city on the train. Mr. Cake addressed a good-sized audience here last night. He will speak at Eugene tonight.

"The argument on the judgment feature was confined to the contention that if this portion of the law is invalid the minority of the party would be chosen. It was insisted that the provision is so purely political in character that it should not be found invalid unless squarely in conflict with some constitutional provision, which they claimed it was not.
