WEATHER REPORT

The pronounced high area noted over the Oregon coast vesterday morning has almost entirely disappeared, though the pressure remains comparatively high along the coast. Cloudy weather prevails this morning in western Oregon and western Washington, but east of the mountains the skies have cleared. Light frosts were reported from Spokane and Baker City and a heavy frost from Boise. General rains from Utah and Arizona eastward to the lower Mississippi valley have attended the eastward movement of the Utah disturbance, which is now central over the entire country from the Rockies eastward to the Atlantic coast were decidedly higher than yesterday morning.
