SARCASTIC REMARKS ON VIEWERS' METHODS. In a communication to the city council, B. F. Padrick, a florist at 1308 Union avenue, vigorously protested against the manner in which he had been assessed by viewers for the proposed opening of Grand avenue. Padrick's communication was cleverly written and caused much laughter. Padrick said the viewing was not done properly, and set out at length the manner in which the viewers boarded a streetcar, made a hasty trip to the proposed improvement, smoked many cigars, glanced at the property to be assessed, estimated how much the property owner could stand and then hurried back to the streetcar to return to the city. Padrick's remonstrance against paying $90 for the viewers' work in connection with his property was overruled by the council. L. L.
